Believe WCH lad only victim of torture-murderer

MIAMI, Fla. (AP) — Police say a handwritten diary of Albert Brust has convinced them that the building inspector who had a torture chamber in one room and the dismembered body of an Ohio youth buried in a shower stall was not responsible for any other murders.

Brust, 44, was found dead in the backyard of his home July 21, a victim, police say, of selfinflicted cyanide poisoning.

Police said the diary entitled "The Ultimate Solution" dated back to April, 1970, but trailed off late that year. Brust, who had a criminal record dating back to 1945, began the diary again July 12.

On July 22, police found inside the house a torture chamber and the decomposing body of Mark Bernard Matson, 16, of Washington Court House, Ohio.

He had been shot to death, chopped up and cemented into the shower stall in a spare bathroom. But body fluids began oozing from beneath the concrete and apparently moved Brust to further actions.

Brust wrote: "I have miscalculated. However I know I could save the situation by a lot of disagreeable work, but I see no good reason for going on."

Police said a 15-year-old Frankfort, Ky., girl told them Brust had taken her and Matson to his home and forced them to commit sex acts. When Matson resisted, the girl said, Brust shot and killed him.

Ten days before that, Brust had written in his diary, "No sex yet but I'm working on it. I need someone for sex...."

According to the girl, Brust kept her tied up for two days, repeatedly raping her. Finally he let her go saying, "I have taken a life. I am going to give you yours."

Major financial changes proposed

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Nixon today proposed major changes in the country's financial system, including phasing out interest rate ceilings on savings and other bank deposits over a 5½-year period.

The recommendations include inducements to banks and financial institutions to lend more money for home mortgages by providing a tax credit on the amount of mortgage loans.

In addition, savings and loan associations would be able to offer checking account services and the so-called NOW accounts would be authorized for both commercial banks and savings and loan associations. NOW stands for Negotiable Order of Withdrawal and provides for negotiated rates of interests on checking accounts.

There were seven major changes in the financial package released at the White House. They followed a study of the country's financial institutions initiated by the President in 1971.

Deputy Secretary of the Treasury William E. Simon said in explaining the proposed changes that the timing is right because "we are in a period that could be classified this moment as an interest rate crunch."

Simon said he hopes the proposed changes can be ready for presentation to Congress in September and that hearings can be held beginning in October.

He described the proposed changes as "the first major restructuring of our financial system since 1865 without a crisis being present."

He emphasized at a news briefing that a major goal of the changes is to maintain a flow of deposit money into banks and savings and loan institutions by lifting the interest rate ceilings.

Delta Queen approved

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Senate passed by voice vote today a bill extending the exemption from fire regulations for another five years of the Delta Queen, the last paddlewheel steamboat carrying overnight passengers on the Mississippi River.

Pentagon bewails defense fund cuts

More base closings possible

WASHINGTON (AP) — Pentagon officials reported the possibility of a new round of base closings amid a growing feud with Congress over severe defense cuts.

This could be a Pentagon signal that congressmen might feel the effects of their actions in the loss of military installations, and civilian jobs back home.

Sources indicated consideration of possible new shutdowns is in its early stages and involves examination of lists of bases that are of marginal value to the armed services.

Secretary of Defense James R. Schlesinger, in office only about a month, opened fire on congressional budget trimmers Wednesday. He accused them of "follies" in voting drastic cutbacks in military manpower, arms aid to South Vietnam and Laos, and other programs.

Thursday, Sen. Thomas J. McIntyre, D-N.H., returned Schlesinger's fire in a speech advising the new Pentagon chief "to extract his foot from his mouth."

McIntyre, a veteran member of the Senate Armed Services Committee, spoke of "Pentagon follies" as primarily responsible for the diminishing support for the defense effort. He accused the Pentagon of advancing "ill-conceived ... extravagant ... redundant programs."

The defense budget has been under its heaviest attack in years in both the House and Senate, with many key weapons projects feeling the bite.

The most immediate cause of concern to top Pentagon civilian and military officials is the Senate Armed Services vote to hack 156,000 men from the armed services over the coming year. This would bring the total down to 2,076,800 men, smallest in nearly a quarter of a century.

If this cut is sustained, Pentagon officials say the combat readiness of the forces will be seriously endangered.

In one private conference this week, Adm. Elmo R. Zumwalt, chief of Naval operations, reportedly said that the projected 9 per cent cut in the size of the Navy might mean laying up 45 ships and shutting down possibly eight major installations, including one shipyard.

Some Army officials suggested that a comparable 9 per cent reduction in its manpower might lead to elimination of one of the Army's 13 combat divisions and supporting elements.

Air Force authorities said a 6 per cent slash, as voted by the Senate committee, might translate into a reduction of 25 bomber, fighter and airlift squadrons or 10 major installations.

Of all the services, only the Marines would escape relatively unscathed, with a one per cent reduction in its manpower.

SIDEWALK SALE—Old Fashioned Bargain Days sidewalk sales got off to a booming, not to mention pushing and bumping, start this morning as shoppers scrambled to get first choice of merchandise. Clerks, many in old fashioned garb, did their best to accommodate the crowds.

Bargain Day events draw large crowds

Bargain shoppers were out in full force today for the sidewalk sales of Old Fashioned Bargain Days Week in Washington C.H.

Many merchants, some dressed in 1890s style clothing, moved their goods to the sidewalks and offered them for sale at bargain prices.

Business, generally, was termed "excellent".

Bargain Days activities will continue through Saturday with a Kiwanis-sponsored ice cream social at 4:30 p.m. today on the Courthouse lawn.

Events Saturday include a continuation of the sidewalks sale, an antique car show starting at 9 a.m., a beef barbecue, a book fair on the west side of Main Street and an employes' costume contest.

Cash awards will be presented to the employes judged to be the best dressed, in Old Fashioned costumes. Judging will begin at 4:30 p.m.

The car show, billed as the largest in Ohio, will feature 31 classes. This event will also be held on Main Street.

Rains, flooding kill 7 persons

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Heavy runoff threatened more flash flooding in the Northeast today following torrential rains that left at least seven dead, snarled traffic and forced hundreds to evacuate their homes.

Flash-flood warnings were posted for New England and the southern Rockies. Local flooding Thursday affected parts of Pennsylvania, New Jersey and New England.

Nine inches of rain left six persons dead and several missing, millions of dollars of damage and snarled traffic in New Jersey Thursday. A state of emergency was declared as flood waters rose 10 feet and forced hundreds to evacuate their homes.

Norristown in southeastern Pennsylvania was hit with two waves of torrential rains Thursday which caused severe flooding, evacuations, road closings and interruption of utility service. Flash floods also plagued sections of the Philadelphia area.

In New York City, 2.5 inches of rain knocked out thousands of Manhattan telephone lines, snarled subways and delayed trains and automobile traffic.

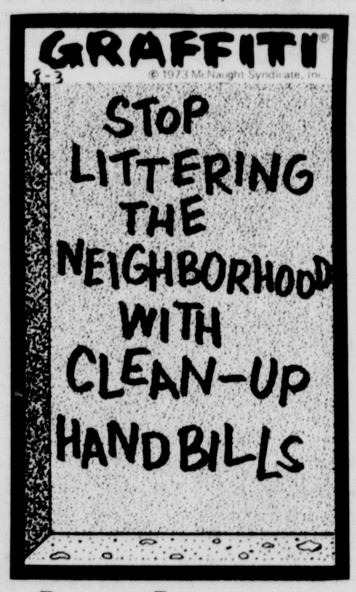

Elsewhere across the nation mostly sunny skies with little temperature change were ahead today except for lingering showers and thunderstorms on the Gulf Coast and isolated storms through the Western mountains and parts of the Plains.

A heat wave remained over the Plateau and northwestern Plains while the cool air which fanned the Midwest began to weaken.

Fair and a little cooler tonight, lows in the 50s. Sunny and a little warmer Saturday, highs in the upper 70s and low 80s.

Skylab rescue plans worked out

The first attempt to rescue a crew in space might have to be made if there is more deterioration in the Apollo command ship intended to ferry the astronauts back to earth Sept. 25.

But they decided the crew could remain aboard after detailed analysis showed the Apollo should retain its capability to bring them home safely at the scheduled end of the mission.

But as a precaution, launch crews at Cape Kennedy were directed to prepare the Skylab 3 rocket and Apollo spaceship for a possible rescue mission if further trouble developed.

"It's no panic situation. But we do think it prudent to keep a rescue operation capability," said Skylab project manager William Schneider.

In Florida, Kennedy Space Center director Walter Kapryan reported more than 1,000 men had immediately swung into a 24-hour-a-day, seven-day-a-week operation to get the vehicles ready in case the rescue mission is necessary.

"We are very confident we can do this thing and be ready to launch by Sept. 5 if needed," Kapryan said. That would be more than two months before the planned Nov. 9 launch of the Skylab 3 crew.

"It's a very serious problem," Apollo spacecraft manager Glynn S. Lunney told newsmen soon after the problem was discovered Thursday. "If we did not have a rescue capability, we would be moving in the direction of getting the spacecraft down as rapidly as we could."

Lunney said the main concern was that should the astronauts board the troubled Apollo and try to come home, there is a possibility that the third and fourth thruster systems could fail, leaving the spacemen with no way of steering the craft effectively.

The astronauts resumed medical and scientific experiments and troubleshooting a few minor problems in the space station, orbiting 271 miles high.

They planned today to fire up their earth resources sensors for the first time. A space walk scheduled Saturday by Garriott and Lousma to change telescope film and to erect a new protective sun shade was postponed again, for the fourth time, until new procedures are worked out for undocking the Apollo ship in case of an emergency during the outside excursion.

The new procedures are necessary because of the trouble with Apollo's rocket thrusters. Instead of three operating thrusters, it now only has two.

Three earlier plans for the space walk were scrubbed because of now-cured motion sickness suffered by all three astronauts.

Judge orders jet confiscated

NEW YORK (AP) — U.S. Atty. Robert A. Morse, ordered by a judge to seize a commercial jetliner, says he needs some advice from Washington.

U.S. District Court Judge Jack B. Weinstein ordered Morse on Thursday to seize a Braniff DC8 on which three convicted narcotics smugglers flew here from South America last spring.

Weinstein contended that Braniff had not been vigilant enough against drug traffickers and said the "action to forfeit the plane worth several million dollars will, in my opinion, bring the airlines around very quickly."

The Air Transport Association called the court order unprecedented and a perplexed Morse said he was referring the directive to the Department of Justice in Washington.

A Braniff spokesman said it was not up to the airline to police its passengers.

House approves Alaska pipeline

WASHINGTON (AP) — Environmentalists were defeated in another major effort to block the Alaska oil pipeline as the House followed the Senate's lead and approved building the 789-mile system.

The House Thursday voted 356 to 60 for the facility, despite the concern expressed on the floor in nearly 10 hours of debate over oil spills—both on land and in coastal waters.

But, principal backers of the pipeline say major disagreements between both houses still stand in the way of final passage.

"I don't look for a long drawn out conference, but there are important differences," Rep. John Melcher, D-Mont., said after the House vote.

"The broad range of the Senate bill, affecting all types of rights of way on public lands, flies in the face of the House bill," Melcher said.

Melcher, chairman of the Interior subcommittee which put the bill together, led the fight for it on the floor. He probably will be a member of the House-Senate conference committee which will begin meetings after Congress returns from its August recess.

The bill permits the secretary of the interior to grant rights of way in some circumstances in excess of the 50-foot maximum provided by the Mineral Leasing Act of 1920.

It limits this authority to oil and gas pipelines, unlike the Senate version, which sets up new procedures for granting rights of way across federal lands for all transportation and transmission purposes.

The $3.5-billion pipeline, expected to start moving oil in 1978 if finally approved, would stretch from the rich oil fields of the Prudhoe Bay area on Alaska's north slope to the icefree port of Valdez.

Environmentalists have expressed fears of damaging oil spills on the overland route or the course along which tankers will transport the oil from Valdez to refineries on Puget sound in Washington state.

They attempted by offering two amendments to clear the way for further environmental suits against the project or to delay it pending a study of an alternate route through Canada.

Both amendments were defeated.

Walters testifies on CIA-FBI meetings on Watergate

WASHINGTON (AP) — The deputy director of the Central Intelligence Agency testified today that H. R. Haldeman ordered him to deflect the FBI's Watergate investigation last year.

Army Lt. Gen. Vernon A. Walters said that at a meeting six days after the Watergate raid Haldeman, who was then President Nixon's chief of staff, told him to tell acting FBI Director L. Patrick Gray III that the FBI's investigations in Mexico might uncover CIA activity there.

Walters told the Senate Watergate committee that Haldeman repeatedly asserted some CIA secrets might be uncovered in Mexico even though Walters and his boss, then CIA Director Richard Helms, knew of no agency activities that might have been exposed by an investigation.

At the time, the FBI was investigating Nixon campaign checks that had passed through a Mexican bank on their way into the Miami bank account of one of the Watergate burglars. The checks eventually provided a direct financial link between Nixon's campaign committee and the wiretappers.

Haldeman has testified that he merely inquired of Helms and Walters whether a vigorous FBI investigation might uncover some CIA secrets. He said he told Walters to talk to Gray only after the CIA officials failed to give him any flat assurances that no secrets might be exposed.

Walters gave a different version. He said Haldeman asserted that "pursuit of the FBI's investigation in Mexico might uncover some CIA activity." He said Haldeman repeated this three times, and said "it has been decided" that Walters should tell Gray this.

Samuel Dash, chief counsel for the Senate committee, asked Walters if Haldeman had been inquiring whether CIA secrets might be uncovered, or was saying that on his own.

"I do not recall it being put in question form," Walters said. "It was put in directive form."

Walters said that although he and Helms knew of no CIA secrets that might be uncovered in Mexico, they didn't dispute Haldeman's authority because he was close to the President and because he might know something the top CIA officials didn't.

Walters has turned over to the Senate panel copies of personal memoranda that recount his dealings with White House aides and Gray.

Walters said that within an hour after he and Helms met with Haldeman and Ehrlichman, he went to see Gray who seemed to be expecting him.

"I said to Gray I had just come from the White House where I talked with senior staff members. I was to tell him the pursuit of the FBI investigation in Mexico might expose some covert activities of the CIA," said Walters.

He said he then reminded Gray of an agreement between their two agencies to inform one another if anything occurred that might expose the other's activities. He said Gray was aware of the agreement.

Walters said he returned to the CIA and reported to Helms, then questioned CIA staffers about any possible connection.

"It soon became clear nobody involved with Mexico operations thought

Sheriff cars are grounded at Athens

ATHENS, Ohio (AP) — Athens County sheriff's deputies were answering only emergency calls today while all but one patrol car remained in the parking lot out of gas.

The department's oil, gas and maintenance fund for its cruisers is all used up and county commissioners have refused to allocate any more money, said Sheriff Paul Brown.

Brown said he had asked for an additional $6,000 for the year, but was refused "because they said I wasn't cooperating in keeping the budget down."

He said the fund held $15,000 at the beginning of the year when he took office, but that was spent on new officer uniforms, laundry and medical care for prisoners and maintenance and fuel for five cruisers and two unmarked cars.

Benjamin Franklin said, "He that hath a trade, hath an estate."

Judge may order meat ceiling end

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

A federal judge in San Francisco says he will rule shortly on a suit asking for removal of the beef price freeze the meat industry claims is damming supplies and picking off its operations.

"We haven't closed this plant in 25 years," said William Hughes, president of King Meat Packing Co. in Vernon, Calif., one of six packing plants there that announced they were closing.

U.S. District Court Judge Robert F. Peckham said he would rule today or Monday on the Pacific Meat Jobbers Association's request for a preliminary injunction to stop the Cost of Living Council from enforcing the price freeze.

The suit claims that the price ceiling on beef, effective under Phase 4 guidelines until Sept. 12, discriminates against beef slaughterers and wholesalers who are unable to pass along the higher costs of cattle.

The freeze on other food prices was lifted by President Nixon on July 18.

Dr. Willard Williams, a Texas Tech University economist specializing in livestock and meat, said cattle prices have increased because of higher feed grain costs and that growers are withholding cattle in anticipation of even higher prices when the ceiling is lifted.

Williams said the slaughter of cattle is down 30 per cent and the amount of cattle going to feeder lots is down 11 per cent.

On Thursday, the Senate voted 84 to 5 on a measure to remove the freeze on beef prices. The measure goes now to the House.

The amendment, sponsored by Sen. John Tower, R-Tex., would allow retailers to pass on to the consumer any increases in the raw-agricultural-product costs of beef incurred since June 8.

A spokesman for the Western States Meat Packers Association said "by next week, meat packing plants will be operating at only 60 per cent of normal, which means production will be down one third from this week."

The cost and shortage of beef has led to a rise in the number of complaints about cattle rustling. Cattlemen from northern Idaho to southern Utah and from the Plains to Nevada are claiming that the Phase 4 price ceiling has touched off a rash of rustling.

"Believe me, it's bad," said Mrs. David Probst, wife of a Wasatch County, Utah, rancher. "We've been hit several times in the past couple of weeks and I'm afraid we'll probably be hit again." The family has lost 15 head of cattle since January.

Similar complaints are being heard from farmers in rural West Virginia and southeastern Ohio, where cattle owners in two counties have formed an antirustling protective association.

The group, which boasts 400 members, offers a $500 reward for information leading to the arrest of rustlers.

Minimum wage bill in House

WASHINGTON (AP) — Republican opponents of a bill to raise the minimum wage to $2.20 an hour predict President Nixon will veto the measure despite support for it from Labor Secretary Peter J. Brennan.

The veto threat has prompted House political strategists to reconsider whether to vote on the measure today or wait until September when the House returns after a month-long recess.

The compromise bill passed the Senate 62 to 28 Thursday. If the House passed the bill today, a veto would come during the recess and Congress would have no opportunity to override.

The House also gave overwhelming approval to the Alaska oil pipeline, passing 356 to 60 a measure that would permit its construction. The bill now goes to a House-Senate conference to iron out differences between versions of the bill approved by the two chambers.

In other action, the House Rules Committee decided 9 to 6 to put off until Sept. 5 a vote on Senate-passed amendments that would end the price freeze on beef and require the President to set up a mandatory fuel allocation system. The amendments were on a bill, already passed by the House, that would require copies of coins to be labeled as copies.

The minimum-wage bill was hammered out by Senate-House conferees after the two houses had approved slightly differing versions.

But Sen. Jacob K. Javits, R-N.Y., said Brennan promised he would ask Nixon to sign the measure.

The bill raises the minimum wage and extends it to an estimated seven million workers. Another 47 million workers already are under its provisions.

The measure would extend minimum wage and overtime to full-time domestics, including babysitters. Live-in domestics would receive the minimum but not overtime.

The bill raises the $1.60 hourly minimum for most nonfarm workers to $2 on Oct. 1, then to $2.20 next July 1. Workers first covered in 1966 or under the bill would get an increase from $1.60 to $1.80 on Oct. 1, to $2 next July 1, and $2.20 July 1, 1975.

anything could be uncovered by the FBI investigation," he said.

On June 27, three days later, Walters said he received a telephone call from a man who identified himself as John W. Dean III, then the White House counsel.

"I said I don't know who you are," Walters recalled. "He said you can call Ehrlichman and find out if I'm okay."

Walters said he called Ehrlichman and got the confirmation, then went to see Dean.

"Dean said he was handling this whole matter of the Watergate, it was causing a lot of trouble, was very embarrassing ... that the leads led to some important people and might lead to some other important people," Walters said.

He recalled being told the FBI was proceeding on theories that the Watergate break-in was instigated by the Republican National Committee, the CIA or someone else.

"I said I don't know who originated it, but that the CIA did not," said Walters. "He kept pressing and said it must have, these people all had worked for the CIA. I said maybe they had, but they didn't now."

Said Walters:

"This seemed to shock him somewhat. I said anything that would involve any of these government agencies like the CIA or the FBI, anything improper in this way, would be a disaster for the nation. Somewhat reluctantly he seemed to accept this line of argument."

Gray, who resigned after it was revealed he destroyed politically sensitive documents given him by White House aides, is scheduled to follow Walters to the witness table late today or Monday.

Two former CIA officials testified at the committee's hearings Thursday about the agency's role in furnishing spy equipment to E. Howard Hunt shortly before the 1971 Ellsberg break-in.

Hunt, a former CIA Clandestine Service officer, has been implicated in the break-in at the office of Daniel Ellsberg's psychiatrist and pleaded guilty in the Watergate conspiracy.

Gen. Robert E. Cushman, former deputy director of the agency and now commandant of the Marine Corps, swore he gave orders to help Hunt after being asked to do so by former presidential adviser John D. Ehrlichman.

Ehrlichman has testified he doesn't recall telephoning the request to Cushman.

This spring, however, a search of CIA records turned up the minutes of a meeting with CIA Director Richard M. Helms on July 8, 1971, in which Cushman reported on the Ehrlichman call of the previous day.

Plentiful foods list dies; result of fewer surpluses

WASHINGTON (AP) — Twenty-eight years of Plentiful Foods are over in the United States.

The Agriculture Department phased out this week its Plentiful Foods program, under which it listed monthly food in larger-than-usual supply.

The program was thought of as an aid to consumers with tight grocery budgets but an Agricultural Marketing Service spokesman said it spotlighted foods in need of marketing assistance and was an aid to producers.

The spokesman said the department was expecting "fewer surpluses for quite a long while." As a result, he said, the department announced June 6 that the program would end in its present form, the staff would be dispersed and the last list would be July's.

That July list pushed Navy and pinto beans, rolled oats, corn meal, grits and Maine sardines. It ended, "supplies of other major foods are somewhat lower than usual."

Food prices are at their highest levels in two decades, and many government officials attribute this development to decreased supplies caused by poor weather and increased demand by more affluent consumers.

The idea of the Plentiful Foods program was to help farmers and other producers when high supplies brought prices below costs.

The service was not designed specifically to help consumers, although the consumer-oriented activities within the department did draw on the list for their mass-distributed advice, adding in "the nutrition factors not built into our list."

Now the Plentiful Foods promotions will be handled through the normal information and commodity divisions.

Ohio will have sunshine today and Saturday, afternoon temperatures pushing into the 70s, with some lower 80s registered in the southern counties, the National Weather Service reports.

Lows tonight, under clear skies, will lower once again into the 50s. Highs on Saturday will be a bit warmer with readings in the 70s and 80s.

The service said it appears that a good and pleasant weather weekend is in store for Ohioans. The further extended outlook indicated some showers about Tuesday.

Skies were clear over most of the state Thursday night and Friday morning, with early morning temperatures rather cool at readings generally in the 50s.

A chance of showers Tuesday. Warm through Tuesday with highs in the 80s. Lows in the upper 50s and low 60s.

Kidnapers ask millions for Getty

ROME (AP) — Kidnapers are demanding a $17 million ransom for J. Paul Getty III, 16-year-old grandson of the American oil billionaire, a family lawyer disclosed today.

But he said the youth's parents can't pay that much, his grandfather won't, and the kidnapers have rejected a counteroffer.

"His mother is desperate," said the lawyer, Giovanni Iacovoni. "The grandfather doesn't want to pay a penny and she must depend only on her own money and that of her ex-husband, which is limited."

The 80-year-old oil magnate, who lives in Britain, said last week that if he ransomed one of his 15 grandchildren, he'd end up having to ransom the other 14.

There was no comment from the boy's father, who lives in London.

Iacovoni declined to say how the contact with the parents was made and refused to reveal the counter-offer. But the Italian press, quoting friends of the family, said it was about $430,000 and the kidnapers dismissed this as "paltry."

The lawyer's statement was the first official report of a ransom figure since young Getty, called the "golden hippie" by the Italian press, disappeared in Rome more than three weeks ago.

Bellino to be investigated

Sen. Sam J. Ervin Jr., chairman of the panel, sent letters Thursday to two Democratic members and one Republican member of the committee asking them to serve on the special body to examine accusations against Bellino raised last week by Republican National Chairman George Bush.

Bush released three affidavits, one of which said the author—now dead—swore he was confident, apparently based on hearsay, that Bellino had bugged the hotel room or telephone of then-Vice President Richard M. Nixon during the 1960 presidential campaign.

Bellino denounced the charges as "false and malicious lies" with which Bush "has attempted to distract me from carrying out what I consider one of the most important assignments of my life."

Sen. Herman E. Talmadge, D-Ga., was asked to head the special subcommittee, and Sens. Daniel K. Inouye, D-Hawaii, and Edward J. Gurney, R-Fla., were asked to be members.

Sources said Ervin, a North Carolina Democrat, was inclined to reject the charges against Bellino as unfounded but Sen. Howard H. Baker Jr., R-Tenn., vice chairman of the committee, prevailed on the chairman to refrain from any statement before looking into the matter further.

Baker, the sources said, was under pressure from the Republican leadership not to let the matter drop without the thorough investigation Bush called for. A spokesman for Baker refused to confirm that but said the senator "wants something done" about the charges. After Bush raised the issue, 21 Republican senators asked that Bellino be suspended from the committee staff and investigated.

Worst shortage yet seen

CHICAGO (AP) — First gasoline, then beef, and now the toilet shortage is on America.

The shortage may delay the occupancy of the upper floors in the new Standard Oil Building in Chicago, according to the contractor.

"Toilets are impossible to get," Lynn Krause, president of the Chicago Home Builders Association, said Thursday. "They're just not available."

"We're at full capacity in both of our plants and we plan to open a new pottery plant in Texas," said James Harff, director of public affairs for Kohler Plumbing Fixtures.

"The entire plumbing industry is faced with a tremendous demand caused by the recent housing construction boom," he said.

Harff said the demand is the major factor in the toilet shortage, but a strike at American Standard, Inc., one of the nation's largest suppliers of plumbing fixtures, does not help matters. The strike is two months old and no new talks are scheduled.

Although the housing boom is expected to slow down in early 1974, Harff said a change in consumer attitudes toward bathrooms will keep demand relatively high.

"People want bigger bathrooms and more of them," he said. "A lot of men want two sinks in the bathroom, one for themselves and one for their wives."

Phoenix, Ariz., was incorporated as a city in 1881.

Wallowing in Watergate

President Nixon's unfortunate remark, "Let others wallow in Watergate," may return to haunt him. The implication of this remark is that there is something disreputable and ignoble about the hearings of the Senate committee investigating campaign practices. It is an implication which does not stand up under scrutiny.

On the contrary, distasteful though the Watergate hearings may be, they serve the high purpose of bringing the truth to light. Additionally, the hearings fulfull an educational function in a way that could not be matched by any other proceeding in or out of the courts.

This educational function is of the utmost importance. The hearings' moments of drama are interlarded with tedium and reiterated triviality; no one can deny that. But in the end, many millions of Americans will have been given some insight into the wrongdoing and deceit, and contemptuous disregard for the vital principle of government by laws and not men, which the Senate investigation is spreading on the record.

The present hearings often are compared with the McCarthy hearings a couple of decades ago. In an important sense, what we are witnessing now is of even greater significance.

Through the McCarthy experience we learned that demagogery could breed such fear and near-hysteria as to result in the callous trampling of individual rights. Through Watergate we are learning that men whose zeal for power outweighs their regard for fundamental principles of morality and law can undermine our institutions of government.

By exposing the worst episode of this kind in American history, the Senate hearings perform a service beyond price. So let us "wallow in Watergate" until the full record is laid bare.

THESE DAYS . . . by John Chamberlain

Nixon has own Pumpkin Papers

On Aug. 3, 1948, Whittaker Chambers told a Congressional committee that Alger Hiss, who had been one of Franklin D. Roosevelt's advisers at the Yalta Conference, had allegedly been a member of a Communist underground in the State Department prior to World War II.

Among the congressmen who believed Chambers — "Uncle Whit," as he called him — was Richard M. Nixon. With the help of Bert Andrews of the New York Herald-Tribune, Rep. Nixon pushed the case that led to Hiss's incarceration for perjury. Chambers' famous "Pumpkin Papers" — the microfilm of State Department documents that sustained his case — helped nail Hiss's hide to the wall.

The whole thing is ironic. Now Nixon himself is the indirect object of a congressional investigation. Like Chambers, he has his own "Pumpkin Papers," the tapes of those White House conversations that may possibly reveal much about Watergate and the subsequent cover-up.

ALGER HISS, who is still around, obviously has hopes that if Nixon is discredited by the White House tapes, it will create a most favorable atmosphere for bringing credibility to the claim that Chambers perpetrated a gigantic fraud back in 1948. At least one book has been written to prove that Chambers was a sinister hoaxster, and others are said to be in the works.

Hiss himself has been writing opposite-the-editorial page material for the New York Times, claiming innocence of the charges that he passed secret papers to the Communists in the Thirties.

Naturally, if the 25-year-old verdict in the Hiss-Chambers case were to be overturned, it would deal Richard Nixon a most grievous wound. It would prove that the issue which first vaulted a young California congressman to a prominance that led to two terms in the White House was a blatant phony.

Hiss is evidently poised to make a good try to prove that he was framed by such ugly devices as "forgery by typewriter." I have no way of knowing whether you could actually forge a typed document by tinkering with a typewriter's keys, but the effort to show that Whittaker Chambers was a Dostoevskyan frame-up artist must fall apart on Chambers' own character.

Isaac Don Levine, who persuaded Chambers to go to Assistant Secretary of State Adolf Berle in September of 1938 to tell what he knew of Soviet espionage in Washington, knew Chambers as well as anybody knew him. In his recent memoirs, "Eyewitness to Hsitory," Levine offers a most vivid and circumstantial portrayal of Chambers as a troubled and tender man who tried to warn the U.S. government of dangerous spy activity in the State Department without, however, seriously incriminating Alger Hiss or any other friend. Chambers was always the most reluctant of witnesses.

I CAN TESTIFY to this from my own experience.

I happened to be in Chambers' office at Time, Inc., in 1948 when a batch of afternoon newspapers including the New York Sun was brought to his desk. On the front page of the Sun a story by Edward Nellor, as I remember it, urged the House Committee on Un-American Activities to subpoena a promient editor of a news magazine to tell what he knew about Soviet infiltration in Washington. Chambers turned white when he read the story.

Knowing nothing of Chambers visit to Berle in 1938, or Chambers' own underground career, I made light of it. "You don't understand," said Whit Chambers, looking down the hall to editor Tom Matthews' office, "they don't like informers around here." It was the reluctant witness again.

THE POINT is that Chambers had no desire to be cast in the role of the professional anti-Communist. He was dragged to the witness stand. He had made a new double career for himself since his Communist courier days, splitting his time between writing for Time and running a big dairy farm in Maryland.

His children were growing up in what he considered a healthy rural atmosphere, knowing nothing of the days when their father, pursued by Communists, had to sleep with a gun at his side. Chambers wanted "out" on the whole Communist business, even out on a role as an "anti."

The forthcoming pro-Hiss books will have to prove a malevolence that obviously was never there. Moreover, how could a man who had to produce long articles for Time and Life — in addition to other taxing editorial chores and simutaneously take care of a big herd of cows — have had the energy to plot the most intricate frame-up in history?

I think Nixon is safe enough from the charge of having ridden to fame and the White House on a phony issue. But this does not mean that his own "Pumpkin Papers" will be as good as those hidden in the pumpkin on Chambers' Maryland farm. There is a distinct possibility that Richard Nixon has framed himself.

Letters To The Editor

EDITOR, RECORD-HERALD:

I want to explain the situation in regard to the trees which we had hoped to see by this time on our downtown streets.

The committee has fought the weather throughout all our plans. Due to the rain, the ground was too wet until the middle of June to pull the trees. By this time they could not be guaranteed.

The boxes had been completed and needed to be paid for. We had planned to put them on the street and plant flowers in them until September when we could get the trees and have them guaranteed.

I am sorry to say they have become waste baskets and it has proven a job for the committee to persuade people to protect them instead of abusing them. Why flowers were not planted when they were first put out I do not know, because that was what the committee had ordered.

Since it is so late now— I ordered that we save that extra expense this summer and after the trees are planted then use the saved expense and plant flowers around the trees in the spring.

If the public will bear with us—by next summer our downtown will have beautiful trees and flower boxes which will discourage their being used as waste baskets.

There were many things we had to condiser when placing these boxes. We tried to arrange them evenly down Court Street. Two merchants objected to having the boxes near their store and one merchant, without our knowledge, moved one where cars are hitting it. They are expensive but luckily well-made. We have had the one box moved. We had to place them where cars would not back into them, where they would not obstruct windows and near the waste baskets already on the street.

The trees are Washington Hawthorne and will have white blossoms in the spring and red berries in the fall. We have Christmas lights to be on them at that time. They have thorns which we hope will protect them.

We spent much time on the selection of the type of tree and learned the Hawthorne was the most likely to grow well in boxes.

Many of the trees are memorials to people who have contributed much to our community in the past.

I would like to see our side streets with trees also. It has been a task to cover Court Street, but if someone would like to give a tree, please call the Chamber of Commerce.

Martha Reiff, Chairman,
Beautification Committee

"I HAVE BECOME FASCINATED WITH THE WAY SAM ERVIN'S EYEBROWS ARCH UP AND DOWN."

Hal Boyle . . . Robin Moore interviewed

NEW YORK (AP) — One of Harvard's English professors told Robin Moore:

"I would advise you against taking any further courses in creative writing. Your talents don't lie in that field."

That hurt Moore, future author of such best sellers as "The Green Berets," "The French Connection," and "The Happy Hooker."

"What hurt even more was that my other English teachers had the same low opinion of my writing ability," he recalled.

So at first, after getting his degree in 1949, Moore dutifully tried to find greener pastures in other fields. He tried to learn the hotel business under the tutelage of his father, Robert Lowell Moore, board chairman of the Sheraton Hotel chain.

He didn't like it. Then, following his urge for adventure, he says he did some gun running in Cuba — "first for Castro, then against him" — ran a bar called "The Teahouse of the Blue Lagoon" in Jamaica, and worked as a television producer and science fiction script writer in New York.

But all the time he kept churning out novels based on his own experiences.

"I think I wrote six failures in a row," he admitted. It looked as if his Harvard teachers had pegged him right.

His luck turned when his novel, "The Country Team," a story based on CIA operations in Southeast Asia, was sold to a paperback publisher for $250,000 after a meager sale in hard covers.

Since then he has hit nothing but jackpots with his tales of military derring—do and exposures of underworld profiteering in drugs and prsotitution. His paperbook sales alone run into a dozen millions.

His latest novel, "The Fifth Estate," which deals with an international crime syndicate's bid to control the American presidency, was sold in advance of hard cover production to a paperback publisher for $340,000. Moore is already working on the screen treatment.

Woman receives calls about traffic tickets

CLIFTON, N.J. (AP) — Rose Alexander has been getting a few more calls than usual since police in nearby Newark began using a new batch of traffic tickets early this week.

Ten thousand tickets were printed with the wrong telephone number, Miss Alexander said she's found some new friends but has also talked to a lot of irate people and one drunk who refused to hang up.

"I don't mind being popular, but this is ridiculous," said Miss Alexander, who is single.

Dear Abby:

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

Divorcee took his pillow talk seriously

DEAR ABBY: I am a married woman who has been deeply involved with a married man for four years. He has children and so have I.

I divorced my husband thinking he would divorce his wife and marry me. I can't honestly say that he promised to divorce his wife, but he said so many things like: "If we were both free, I would marry you in a minute." and: "I have never loved anyone the way I love you." I took it to mean he would divorce his wife and marry me. I was wrong.

My husband never suspected a thing until I made a full confession. Now that he knows the truth he will have nothing to do with me. Was I foolish?

VIRGO

DEAR VIRGO: You were. Your mistake was talking pillow talk seriously. Actually, it's nothing more than a lot of horsefeathers.

DEAR ABBY: I am so angry I want to scream. I'm expecting my first baby after wanting one for five years. I am only six weeks along, so naturally we haven't told anyone yet. Not even our parents.

Yesterday I attended a church luncheon. Afterwards, the chairman stood up and said, "The floral centerpiece is for one of our members who is expecting her first baby after wanting one so long!" Then she looked right at me.

Abby, I must have turned the color of a tomato. Then all the buzzing and chattering started. My mother and mother-in-law were both there looking surprised and hurt. I was so upset I wanted to run.

Neither my husband nor I told a soul, but yesterday he did bring home a used crib, and somebody must have seen him carry it into the houee.

Why do people have to be so nosy? Now it's going to seem like such a long pregnancy. I can just hear them asking me the last two months, "Are YOU still walking around?"

At the bottom of your column it says, "You'll feel better if you get it off your chest." Thanks for listening.

BURNING IN DETROIT

DEAR BURNING: And you'll feel better when you get it off. Thanks for writing.

DEAR ABBY: I love my in-laws, but they are my problem. My husband and I have two children, 6 and 3. They are the only grandchildren my in-laws have (which is probably why they spoil them the way they do).

My husband travels a lot, and I like to go with him for a few days every few months. This keeps our marriage healthy.

My in-laws beg to keep our children when we're gone, but after the children have been with their grandparents it takes me a week to get them to mind.

My in-laws let the kiddies stay up as late as they want to, and they feed them candy and soft drinks between meals. Also, when I say something, my word is law, and I don't put up with any backtalk. The grandparents never discipline them, and when the kids talk back, they laugh and think it's cute.

I don't want to seem ungrateful, Abby, but I resent my in-laws spoiling all the work I've put into training my children. I have stressed my rules several times, but they don't pay attention to them.

How can I drive my point home without getting them angry with me? If I hired a sitter my in-laws would be terribly hurt.

TOO SOFT

DEAR TOO: Your signature sums up the reason for your problem. Toughen up, and tell your in-laws that either they must follow your rules, or you'll not leave your children with them.

Open-Air Services start Sunday at MTHS stadium

The services will be held at 7:30 p.m. at the stadium each Sunday in August, with guest ministers from area churches.

REV. DON BAKER

This will be the fifth year for the Open-Air Services sponsored by the Churches of Christ and Christian Churches. They have been attended with increasing interest each year.

A spokesman for the sponsoring churches said, "The services offer the opportunity of worshiping and learning while enjoying the beauty of the Sunday evening hour in God's great outdoors."

The services include congregational singing and special music. An organ and piano will provide the accompaniment. The Lord's Supper will be served each Sunday.

Following Mr. Baker will be the Rev. Charles Richmond, of the South Side Church of Christ on Aug. 12; the Rev. Keith Wooley, of Hickory Lane Church on Aug. 19, and the Rev. Conrad Bower, of the Jeffersonville Church of Christ on Aug. 26.

An invitation is extended to the entire Fayette County community.

African missionaries for U.S.

By RUSS PULLIAM
Associated Press Writer

NEWARK, N.J. (AP) — An American agency that customarily has sent missionaries to Africa is taking steps to bring African missionaries to black urban areas in the United States.

"Urban America's needs are as great or greater than most of the underdeveloped countries of the world," explains Tom Hopler, who is directing the urban ministry of the African Inland Mission AIM.

"I think the other missions ought to wake up to the innercity mission field," the Rev. Grover Wilcox adds. He is pastor of Newark's Calvary Gospel Church, which is cooperating with Hopler on the AIM urban project.

Like other missions to Africa and other nonindustrial parts of the world, the 75-year-old African Inland Mission traditionally has sent white Americans out as missionaries.

But as churches in Africa have developed their own leadership and strength, African Christian leaders have rebelled against Western cultural domination by foreign missionaries.

So many missions have searched for new directions— such as providing technical assistance and turning over the leadership and control of churches to Africans.

African churches also have developed their own missionary programs, although most of their efforts are limited to other African countries.

AIM's own search for new directions has led to a unique attempt to set up an inner city ministry in America for Africans. Recognizing the distrust that blacks in urban areas often have toward whites, the AIM project assumes that Africans will have more credibility with blacks.

"Many black Americans believe that Christianity is a white man's religion," explains Bill Chavis, a black law student who is working in the AIM project at Calvary. "But black Africans can show Christianity's universality and show that blacks have played a role in the growth of Christianity."

For example, "Africa has always had a large part in the history of Christianity, especially northern Africa. This is something we need to tell American blacks about Christianity," Chavis says.

An offshoot of the AIM project is Today's Africa to America, started by Simon Kahunya, a student at Gordon Conwell Seminary in Massachusetts from Kenya in East Africa.

His project is an effort to encourage other African Christians to come to the United States as missionaries. He developed the idea from his own experience as AIM's first missionary from Africa, working in the Calvary Gospel church.

"I found that American blacks are seeking the African identity, culturally, economically, religiously," he says. "We find that American missionaries who have been in Africa have not been able to project the truth of the African culture to the American people."

African Inland Mission is also actively recruiting American blacks as missionaries to Africa. "We're basically a white American organization," Hopler says. "We have not had blacks as missionaries because simply we did not want them."

Good Shepherd Church adopts new schedule

There will be only one service of worship at Good Shepherd Lutheran Church, 1003 N. North St., beginning Sunday, Aug. 5. The worship service will be held at 9:15 a.m. through the month of August and Sunday Sept. 2.

Beginning Rally Day, Sept. 9, there will be only one service, but it will be held at either 10:15 or 10:30, the exact time to be announced later.

There will be no Sunday School during August and the first Sunday in September.

This Sunday will be the final Sunday for the Rev. Elmer E. Burrall, who will be leaving this community to take up work in Fountain Hills, Ariz. The Sacrament of Holy Communion will be celebrated.

By GLADYS KIRK

This week brings to a close a series of four small group sessions on use of the pressure canner. Special thanks to the Community Action Homemaker Aides for bringing in homemakers who were ready with many questions.

QUESTION: Is a pressure canner necessary to make foods safe?

ANSWER: Yes, it is necessary for low acid vegetables like beets, corn, peas, beans and pumpkin or squash. Most fruits and tomatoes that are high in acid do not require pressure canner cooking. A hot water bath canner is used for other than low acid foods. Open kettle and oven canning methods are not recommended.

QUESTION: Are old mayonnaise and pickle jars satisfactory for canning?

ANSWER: No. These jars are not standard in size and lids available do not give a tight seal. Some of these jars are so light in weight, they may break under home methods.

QUESTION: Can a pressure saucepan be used for canning?

ANSWER: It can be used only if it registers 10 pounds pressure and then only for pints. An additional 20 minutes must be allowed on all products because the saucepan heats and cools faster than a canner. Improvise a rack for the jars.

QUESTION: Why did you heat the beans and the liquid before processing in the pressure canner?

ANSWER: Unless both food and liquid are not, too much air is trapped inside when it is sealed. "Knifing out" air bubbles is also done for this reason.

QUESTION: Why don't jars seal?

ANSWER: Most canning is done with two-piece lids where the sealing takes place at the top rim. Check to see there are no nicks or uneven places on this edge. Wipe with a damp cloth after the jar is filled to be sure the rim is absolutely clean and free from anything. Occasionally a jar will be a non-sealer caused by imperfection not visible to the eye. When this is discovered, discard the jar.

QUESTION: I have been told that low-acid vegetables should be heated before tasting. Is this true?

ANSWER: Yes, to avoid any risk of dangerous food poisoning boil all low-acid vegetables, 10 to 15 minutes before tasting. Greens and corn should be boiled 20 minutes and stirred during the process since they tend to pack together.

QUESTION: Are old milk cartons and coffee cans O.K. to use for containers for storing food in the freezer?

ANSWER: No. Milk cartons are not clean and free from contamination. Coffee cans are not lacquered inside for protection against liquids and foods containing natural acids and foods stored in them may become discolored. Freezer containers should be clean and moisture vapor proof.

ANSWER: Yes, Blanching of vegetables is essential to check the enzyme activity in the vegetable while it is stored in the freezer. Unless vegetables are blanched, the foods will develop off-color and off-flavor.

QUESTION: How long should vegetables be blanched?

ANSWER: The time varies for each vegetable. Check our O.S.U. Bulletin No. 369 "Freezing and Using Vegetables, Fruits, and Prepared Foods".

If you haven't stopped in for our free packet of food preservation bulletins, do it now before the supply is gone.

FRUIT AND SPICE POT ROAST

It's cooked in a bag!

1 cup pitted prunes
1/2 cup raisins
3- to 4-pound blade beef pot roast
2 tablespoons mixed pickling spice
2 cups water
1/3 cup cider vinegar
1 teaspoon salt
1 tablespoon cornstarch
1/4 cup water

Put prunes and raisins in cooking film bag or wrap closing one end if using wrap. Place in baking pan. Put pot roast on fruit. Put pickling spice in cheesecloth and secure; put in bag. Combine water, vinegar and salt; pour over all. Fasten and vent bag or wrap as directed on package. Bake in a 350-degree oven until meat is tender — 2 1/2 to 3 hours. Cut bag open; remove roast to heated platter. Skim off excess fat from liquid and discard pickling spice. Pour liquid into pan and bring to a boil; stir in cornstarch mixed until smooth with water. Heat to boiling, stirring constantly; boil and stir 2 minutes. Serve with pot roast. Makes 4 to 6 servings.

For a change of pace

By JOAN O'SULLIVAN

SICK of cooking the same old thing? We all get in that mood now and again, and it's a sure sign that a change-of-pace menu is in order. Here are three suggestions to try when you feel like something different. They are meatless main dishes that are usually delicious.

Good, earthy potatoes, still one of your best busy at the supermarket, are the basis for a potato pudding that bakes to a crusty, golden-brown and unmolds hot onto a platter for serving. Surround the pudding with your choice of vegetables and dinner is served:

SWISS POTATO PUDDING

3 tablespoons butter
3 pounds potatoes (8-10 medium), peeled
1 pound Switzerland Swiss cheese, coarsely grated
6 green onions, sliced
2 teaspoons salt
1 teaspoon white pepper
½ teaspoon nutmeg
Paprika

Preheat oven to 450 F.

Use all 3 tablespoons of butter to grease the bottom and sides of a 2-quart charlotte mold or casserole.

Coarsely grate potatoes. Pat dry on paper towels.

In large bowl, mix well-grated potatoes, cheese, onions, salt, pepper and nutmeg. Pour into greased casserole. Do not pack down. If all of mixture does not fit, add remainder after casserole has baked about 5 minutes since shrinkage will occur. Bake casserole one hour. Sprinkle with paprika.

Makes 6 servings.

Steam or boil the vegetables of your choice in the smallest possible amount of water so they come to the table full of flavor, vitamins and minerals. Then spark them with:

ROSY DRESSING FOR VEGETABLES

1 can (8 ounces) tomato sauce
2 tablespoons yogurt
2 tablespoons tarragon vinegar or lemon juice
1 tablespoon salad oil
1 tablespoon minced green onion
1 teaspoon lemon pepper marinade

Makes about 1¼ cups.

HALIBUT ALMANDINE

2 pounds fresh or frozen North Pacific halibut steaks
Salt and pepper
one-third cup melted butter
½ cup ground almonds
Juice of ½ lemon
Parlsey and lemon slice for garnish

Sprinkle halibut steaks with salt and pepper.

JEFFERSONVILLE — The Fayette County Farm Bureau Cooperative Association is building a 600,000 - bushel addition to its Jeffersonville grain elevator, according to Robert T. Owens, Rt. 1, Jeffersonville, president of the board.

Construction, by Stout Brothers Construction Co. of Sylvania, is expected to be completed in time for the fall harvest. This will give the Jeffersonville elevator a total capacity of 1,150,000 bushels.

"There were several factors causing the board of directors to decide to increase the storage capacity at Jeffersonville," said Clarence Cooper, manager of the local cooperative.

"The railroad car shortage is getting more acute. It is almost impossible to get cars when needed," Cooper said. "Ever year since 1965 we have needed at least 300,000 bushels additional storage.

"By building at Jeffersonville, we avoid the extra cost of drying, loading and unloading equipment. The present elevator has all the necessary equipment to handle the additional storage," he explained.

COOPER INDICATED there will be 10 large bins with smaller connecting bins between them. The additional storage will be slip-form construction similar to the first unit that was built at Jeffersonville on Ohio 41 in 1965. Cost of the 600,000 bushel addition will be $557,000.

Financing will be handled through two main sources according to Board President Owens. The Louisville Bank for Cooperatives has agreed to loan the local farmer cooperative $375,000 for the construction of the new storage, providing $150,000 in stocks and bonds are sold in the Fayette County community. The remaining costs will be paid out of the cooperative operating funds.

The cooperative was organized by farmers as the Fayette Marketing Association in 1928, to market eggs, poultry, whole milk, and cream. In 1936 it was incorporated under the Ohio cooperative laws as the Fayette County Farm Bureau Cooperative Association for both marketing and purchasing. At that time a petroleum bulk plant was built on Delaware Street and the cooperative was into the business of delivering power fuels to farmers.

Three years later the association obtained the marketing facilities for eggs and poultry in Charleston, W. Va. The operations were moved to Washington C. H. The cooperative continued to have salesmen selling eggs and poultry to retail outlets in southern West Virginia until the middle 50's.

OVER THE YEARS, due to changes in farming operations the cooperative added and discontinued a number of services. For example, in 1944 the Fayette Producers Association and a food locker plant were purchased. This processing and freezing plant was operated by the association until 1951.

It was also in 1944 that the cooperative outgrew the facility on Market Street, and the board of directors purchased land on Fayette Street. In 1946 the association built on this property and started handling farm machinery.

It was also in 1944 that the cooperative outgrew the facility on Market Street, and the board of directors purchased land on Fayette Street. In 1946 the association built on this property and started handling farm machinery.

That same year the board of directors purchased the elevator of the Gwinn Milling Co. of Jeffersonville. A year later a lease was arranged with Gwinn Milling for the operation of the elevator at Washington C. H. Since then the Cooperative has purchased the Gwinn elevator in Washington C. H.

The present office and store building on S. Fayette Street was built in 1949, and the cooperative moved its office and produce business to this location. Later the Town and Country Store took the place of this produce business.

SINCE THEN a number of changes have taken place including fertilizer warehousing and the dry application of straight materials. The Elm Street fertilizer facility was completed in 1957, and the next year saw anhydrous ammonia tanks installed.

Two fires destroyed the Jeffersonville feed mill at different times. The first one occuring in 1951. After the Jeffersonville plant was rebuilt the second fire destroyed it in 1967. That same year the bulk fertilizer facilities and anhydrous ammonia tanks were built and installed where the Jeffersonville elevator was constructed in 1965. In June of 1969 a new feed plant was built beside the grain elevator.

The last addition to the Farm Bureau Cooperative Association's operations is the retail fertilizer facility located on Ohio 753, southeast of Washington C. H.

THE FAYETTE COUNTY Farm Bureau Cooperative's net worth has risen steadily from its $11,000 in 1936 to well over the million dollar mark in 1972. In addition to the Jeffersonville and Washington C. H. locations, there is also a branch at Greenfield. The cooperative now has assets of well over two million dollars. Fayette County's largest farm supply business and handler of grain.

The association has never missed a dividend or interest payment on investments or securities. In 37 years the cooperative's earnings have totaled about 1½ million dollars with average earnings over those years of a little over $38,000.

"Fayette County's agricultural future is healthy and sound. Agriculture and its related industries furnish more income for Fayette County than all other industry combined. The Fayette County Farm Bureau Cooperative Association, owned and backed by Fayette County farmers, will continue to play an active part in this industry," the announcement said.

TV Viewing

By JAY SHARBUTT
AP Television Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — "The Corner Bar," a summer series that premiered last year on the ABC Television network, is back with us tonight on ABC. Its only virtue is that it may drive you to drink.

The series is set in a neighborhood tavern in Manhattan. Gabe Dell, who ran the pub last summer, is gone. Comedienne Anne Meara and Gene Roche have replaced him as co-owners of the place.

The tavern, in the tradition of television taverns, is full of warm, wacky characters who juice a lot and kid each other. But tonight's premiere show is to comedy what a short beer is to serious drinking.

It spends a few long minutes establishing the regulars at the bar—the goofy actor, the nononsense cab driver, the tipsy lawyer and the kindly old waiter. It also reveals that Frank Flynn (Roche) served with the 105th Infantry Division in Korea during the war there.

He lets on that he was quite a ladies' man in Korea and was known to close friends as "filet of Seoul." Hokay.

Now, the plot thins. A 20-year-old Oriental lad, name of Lin, shows up at the tavern. The regulars at first think he's from the Red Chinese embassy around the corner. But they are wrong.

"I come from Korea," says Lin (played by Frank Young). And, he goes on to say, "I look for man. He was in 105th Division."

Well, it seems he's looking for his father, who of course turns out to be ex-Sgt. Frank Flynn. There is alarm, surprise, denials and finally acceptance of the fact that as Flynn sows, so has Flynn reaped.

"My son—Lin Flynn," the publican says with a proud smile, pledging to send his newfound son to college and all that.

Alas, it turns out that Lin is a flim-flam man. He's been contacting all former members of the 105th Division who knew his mother during the Korean war and pulling the "father" dodge on them.

Flynn learns this from an old pal from the 105th; before you know it, there are about five "fathers" confronting Lin when he returns to the bar after a shopping spree with Miss Meara.

He confesses all, promises to pay back his ill-gotten gains and say: "I now realize I haven't been honorable."

"Lin—the 105th Division hasn't been honorable," Miss Meara says sadly.

On the positive side, Ron Carey as the actor and Bill Fiore as the lawyer are scenestealing standouts in a good cast that does its best with a dog of a script.

CBS-TV has a pretty good alternative of its own on tonight at 9 p.m. EDT—"On the Road with Charles Kuralt." It's mainly a collection of the "Road" piece he's had on the CBS Evening News.

If you've never seen any of his TV vignettes about life in America, you might find it worth watching, Kuralt basically is doing the same thing the late Ernie Pyle did so well some 35 years ago—simply hitting the road, talking with people and reporting whatever comes up.

Ohio Perspective

Rep. McClaskey proves 'handyman'

BY PERRY SMITH
Associated Press Writer

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — If Vernal Riffe is the "mover" of legislation in the Ohio General Assembly and Oakley Collins is the "killer" of bills, then Rep. Walter D. McClaskey has got to be known as the "handyman."

Riffe, D-89 New Boston, is the speak pro tem. And he does move legislation. Collins, R-92 Ironton, a freshman in the House after long tenure in the Senate, still has the contacts to kill some legislation.

But McClaskey, a veterinarian, has provided services beyond the call of those demanded for the normal legislator.

Who else, for example, would provide the linament for the ailing arm of Rep. Tom Fries, D-35 Dayton, a one-time major league baseball player.

McClaskey, being the closest thing the General Assembly has to a doctor, said "I have to know where they hurt because my clients can't tell me," he says, paraphrasing Will Rogers. He has volunteered his services in other areas.

He took home each weekend a wobbly witness stand from committee hearing rooms and repaired them in his basement work shop.

When three legislators discussing medicine said they had never seen an operation in progress, McClaskey took them to his operating room.

Although there was some gagging by the onlookers, the patient—a cat—is doing fine.

The 53-year-old McClaskey, however, feels he may have carried his extra curricular chores too far.

He's not in trouble with the Ohio Medical Association and animals love him. But he is worried about a note he found in his car from a guard in the House parking lot.

The guard asked if he could recommend something to remove warts from his wrist.

"I'll have to ask him to go over to Senate parking lot," McClaskey deadpanned, "since I'm not allowed to make House calls."

Your Horoscope

By FRANCES DRAKE

Look in the section in which your birthday comes and find what your outlook is, according to the stars.

SATURDAY, AUG. 4

ARIES
(March 21 to April 20)

TAURUS
(April 21 to May 21)

Your day to get ahead. An associate of importance will be surprisingly helpful when asked for advice. Romance favored, too.

GEMINI
(May 22 to June 21)

Don't let a.m. disappointments get you down. Good progress indicated during the hours after noon. Try to force the pace.

CANCER
(June 22 to July 23)

Take a second look at your objectives — and recognize your limitations. You may be aiming too high for the present.

LEO
(July 24 to Aug. 23)

A clash of temperaments could cause needless friction. Don't jeopardize a warm friendship by becoming overly emotional.

VIRGO
(Aug. 24 to Sept. 23)

Some situations will be beyond your control now, so don't try to solve them on your own initiative. Ask advice from a trustworthy source.

LIBRA
(Sept. 24 to Oct. 23)

SCORPIO
(Oct. 24 to Nov. 22)

As with Libra, you, too, may be creatively inspired. Do-it-yourself jobs should turn out far better than you anticipate.

SAGITTARIUS
(Nov. 23 to Dec. 21)

This should be a highly stimulating weekend. Both travel and social activities should prove enlivening. Also, there's a hint of new romance in the air.

CAPRICORN
(Dec. 22 to Jan. 20)

Watch the budget now. Reject any ideas for entertainment which you can't really afford. Tendency is to be reckless.

AQUARIUS
(Jan. 21 to Feb. 19)

Don't plan any hectic activities. Day will be more satisfactory if you can get off by yourself and do some constructive thinking.

PISCES
(Feb. 20 to March 20)

Don't fret if it becomes necessary to sacrifice some leisure time to business matters. Results will more than make up for your disappointment.

YOU BORN TODAY are a determined, hard-working individual; usually highly efficient and self-contained. You could succeed in the theater but are less dramatic than many others of your Sign. Your brilliant wit, however, would make you an excellent comedian and, with your love of music, the musical comedy field would be an idea choice of career. Other areas in which you could excel: the law, medicine, sculpture, designing or decorating. Magnetic force drives you, attracts success, admirers. Don't offset this by trying to dominate those about you.

Canine survivor of plane crash has new home

Humane Society authorities said the dog, a 2½-year-old female beagle found two days after the crash, left Wednesday for return to a kennel in Henrietta, Tex.

James E. Hart, assistant shelter superintendent, said a prospective Dexter, Mo., person rejected the beagle on a trial basis and that its new owner chose to remain anonymous.

"We still don't know whether the dog will see or lose sight in its right eye," Hart said. The beagle was found amid broken suitcases and scattered parcels two days after the plane crashed, claiming 38 lives.

Woman takes oath as citizen at 72

MIAMI (AP) — Through she sat in a wheelchair, Mrs. Maria Ramos stood out from the other immigrants who were being sworn in as Americans.

Mrs. Ramos, 72, had waited 12 years for this day and she wasn't going to let a lung operation keep her from becoming a U.S. citizen.

So she managed to persuade doctors to let her take a couple of hours off from the hospital to take the oath Wednesday from her wheelchair.

Speaking of Your Health...

Lester L. Coleman, M.D.

Dizziness Hits Septuagenarian

I get attacks of dizziness, especially when I suddenly lie down or sit up. I am 70 years old.

My doctor says that at my age this is not unusual and that the cause is arteriosclerosis.

Can anything be done about this or must I just learn to live with it? I worry that it will get worse.

Mr. H. F., Nev.

Dear Mr. F.:

Most people in your age group have some narrowing of the blood vessels that lead from the heart, through the neck, and go to the brain.

In addition to arteriosclerosis, there is a loss of elasticity of the blood vessels. The result is that any sudden change of position momentarily deprives the brain of sufficient blood and oxygen.

A fleeting moment of imbalance follows.

When this is the cause of the sensation you describe, patients are advised to avoid sudden rapid changes of position. When they sit up from a lying-down position, they are told to sit up slowly, and thus allow the blood vessels to the brain to adjust gradually to the new change of position.

It is now possible to study, with a great deal of accuracy, the circulation of the blood in the brain.

Some of the most ingenious discoveries in the last decade revolve about biochemical studies that pinpoint the exact blood vessels in the brain responsible for poor circulation.

Certainly, you must continue to be under constant observation so that recommendations can be made to you to keep you in the most comfortable state possible.

In far more advanced cases, brilliant surgical methods are now used to open clogged arteries in the neck.

You must not live with the shadow of fear hanging over you. This can often be more destructive than the mild condition you apparently have.

When smog and pollution hang heavy over our city I feel depressed and actually cannot perform a day's work.

Of course I am told by my friends that this is psychological.

Miss R.E., Ind.

Dear Miss E.:

Loving friends make poor medical and psychological advisors. The easiest explanation for conditions that are not understood by "armchair doctors" is the obvious one that "it's all in the mind."

Actually, a great deal of information is now being accumulated that points to a definite relationship between mental depression and high levels of pollution.

Only recently, the American Chemical Society released such a report, showing that high levels of hydrogen sulfide in the air can cause anxiety, blurring of the vision, mental depression, and dizziness.

Rio Grande Zoo closes after fire destroys animals

ALBUQUERQUE, N.M. (AP)— The Rio Grande Zoo has closed following a fire that destroyed 27 animals in the children's zoo.

The damage to the city-operated facility by the Tuesday night fire was estimated at $10,000 by Rubin Rubio, administrative assistant to City Manager Herb Smith.

Rubio said the zoo will reopen when a labor dispute between the city and city workers is terminated. An estimated 1,-300 city employes, including more than 350 firemen, went on strike last Monday in a wage dispute.

Cattle reported killed

BOISE, Idaho (AP) — Two uncontrolled range fires burning in south-central Idaho have killed more than a dozen head of cattle, says the Bureau of Land Management.

The fires, which covered more than 56,000 acres by late Wednesday, were touched off Monday when a lightning storm swept across the Owyhee Desert.

Men start fires to help out deer

FRESNO (AP) — Two hundred men who normally battle fires with everything they can muster will be setting 1,000 acres of brush ablaze tonight.

But they haven't turned into firebugs. The men, under the direction of Kings River District Ranger Joe Ragsdale, are simply trying to give the North Kings Deer herd a square meal.

A 20-year study by wildlife biologists from the Sierra National Forest and the California Department of Fish and Game says the deer are suffering because the lack of a fire on their range for 50 years has caused their favorite foods, young lowgrowing brush grasses and herbs, to mature into tasteless brush which lacks the nutritional value of younger greenery.

Quadruplets well; now 5 weeks old

GIFU, Japan (AP) — Quadruplets born to the 23-year-old wife of a local farmer are now five weeks old and getting along fine, hospital authorities reported today.

The boy and three girls were born prematurely to Misao Hachiya on June 26. The boy weighed 5½ pounds and the girls between 3½ pounds and 4½ pounds each.

Phone firm talks hit new deadlock

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Contract talks between the General Telephone Co. of Ohio and 2,800 striking employes broke down Thursday.

Federal mediator Howard Hughes said practically no progress was made during a fifth bargaining session since the strike by Communication Workers of America began July 16.

"At this point, I am not optimistic," Hughes said hours before the negotiations ended.

Robert Fletcher, company vice president of personnel, said both sides were deadlocked over wages and the union's demand for an agency shop.

Martin Hughes, a union vice president, said his membership "is not wedded to any particular per cent increase" in wages. He said he wants the company to meet pay scales similar to other independent telephone firms.

About 150 installers, switchmen, operators and craftsmen at Minerva are expected to vote on a new contract with the company Sunday.

Details of the agreement with Local 642 of the International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers were not announced.

Newark officers appeal dismissal

NEWARK, Ohio (AP)—Twenty-one city policemen who were fired under the state's Ferguson Act, which prohibits strikes by public employes, filed appeals Thursday with Safety Director Russell Payne.

The safety director said he will hold hearings on the dismissals next week.

The officers called in sick Sunday, reportedly to press their demands for higher wages, and Mayor Richard Baker fired them the next day. Civil Service examinations for their replacements are scheduled Aug. 20.

Crash survivor faces amputation

BOSTON (AP) — The only survivor of Tuesday's crash of a Delta Airlines DC9 at Logan Airport was to have his legs amputated today in an effort to increase his chances of survival.

Air Force Sgt. Leopold Chouinard, 20, of Marshfield, Vt., was reported still in very critical condition, on the danger list as Massachusetts General Hospital early today with third degree burns over 80 per cent of his body.

Doctors said Chouinard's legs were the most badly burned parts of his body, and removal should help his survival chances. Some of the bones in his legs were also mangled in the crash in which 88 died.

Jeff Council gets sewer work report

JEFFERSONVILLE — Reports from the consulting engineer on the progress of construction of the village sewer system topped the regular meeting for members of the Jeffersonville Village Council Thursday night.

M. M. Schirtzinger and Associates, of Chillicothe, the village's consulting engineers on the sewer system construction project, reported to Council members that completion is anticipated prior to Sept. 1. The engineers reported that work has been postponed because of a delay in obtaining materials.

The Chillicothe firm also reported that repaving of village streets is scheduled to start Aug. 16-20 and hopefully will be completed prior to the opening of school.

Mayor Donald Morrow said three persons expressed interest in extending sewer lines to the Washington C. H. side of I-71. Morrow said the village will not extend sewer lines at the expense of Jeffersonville residents, but expressed willingness to extend the lines at the expense of those receiving the service.

AN ORDINANCE setting a rate with Dayton Power and Light Co. for the village utilities was approved by Council. The rate ordinance is for a five-year period.

Morrow expressed displeasure to George Winkle, of DP&L who attended Thursday's meeting, concerning the manner in which the utility has repaved streets following the installation of gas mains. Winkle told Morrow that these matters would be corrected in the future.

Council directed the village solicitor to inform the Sever-Williams Construction Co., Washington C. H., that work on the waterworks improvement project must be completed with the next 30 days. The work remaining includes installing fence around the sludge pits.

NELSON BAKER, a member of the Jeffersonville Village Council since 1960, resigned that position Thursday. Morrow appointed Baker to a four-year term on the Village Board of Public Affairs.

Morrow said Baker will assume the new duties effective Aug. 6 and he expects the vacant Council seat to be filled by the next Council meeting, which is scheduled Sept. 6.

In other matters, Safety Director Lindy Sharrett was directed to ask John Short of Staunton, to locate a site for a new well and proceed with drilling operations.

Multi-county burglary ring brings charges

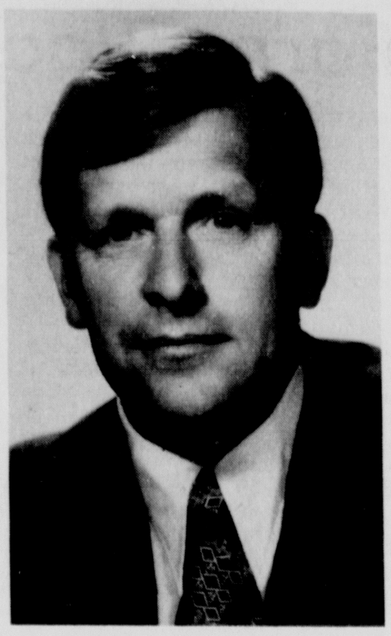

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Franklin County Prosecutor George Smith said Thursday a special grand jury has returned more than 140 indictments against 25 persons in connection with a multi-county burglary ring.

Smith said the indictments were being processed and will be served by Aug. 13.

Police have gone to several Ohio cities during the course of the investigation and have been checking into burglary reports dating back five years.

CUDAHY EXECUTIVE — Cudahy Foods Co. announces that Richard A. Turner has been named general manager for the company's Cheese Division. He succeeds L.W. Moss who retired in July after more than 45 years of service with the company. Turner will work out of Harrodsburg, Kentucky, the new location for the Cheese Division headquarters. In April, Turner was named assistant general manager for the company's Cheese Division, after having served as division operations manager. He joined Cudahy in 1963.

Hinde St. burglaries net less than $30

Burglars hits three S. Hinde Street business places in late Thursday afternoon daylight, but came away with less than $30 in cash, most of it change.

The break-ins were discovered by Kenneth Ford, of Ford Trucking, 221 S. Hinde St., at 6:40 p.m. Thursday. He returned to his place of business at that time and found a desk pried open and ransacked, and a safe that had been pried upon. Nothing, however, was missing. Police said the burglars entered the building by climbing up on a truck tire they rolled under an open window.

After finding his building had been broken into, Ford went next door and found the front door to Don's Body Shop, 225 S. Hinde St., unlocked. Police said the burglars entered the body shop by climbing pipes on the north side of the building and going through an open window. About $6 in bills and change was taken from a desk, and approximately $18 in change was removed from a pop machine. Thieves apparently found the key to the machine in the desk.

Found outside the shop were 181 pennies, which, police theorized, may have been from a previous burglary.

In the process of probing the burglary at Ford Trucking, police found that the Montgomery Ward Tire Shop, 220 S. Hinde St., had been entered. The padlock on a pop machine had been pried off with a screwdriver. About $3 or $4 in change was taken from the machine. The burglars may have entered through one of two open windows.

Police also received a report of a stolen toy slide projector Thursday. Paul Woods, 1222 E. Paint St., said the projector was removed from a storage compartment in a camping trailer parked in his driveway sometime during July.

Air-conditioning bids received by commissioners

The Fayette County Board of Commissioners took no action on bids opened Thursday for the air conditioning of the Common Pleas Courtroom.

Bids received were: Fayette Heating and Cooling, $5,309; Circleville Metal Works, $6,736, and Bogan Heating and Air Conditioning, $6,707.

The commissioners granted the City of Washington $29,479.53 as its share of the $5 county permissive license tax. According to the request, the city will use $24,880 to pay on the North Street bridge project, and the balance to pay for improvements to Gergg Street and Oakland Avenue.

A request for $3,772.74 by Jeffersonville as its share of the license tax also was granted. The money is to be used for the rebuilding of Railroad Street.

12 take city service exam

Twelve men took the Civil Service examination Thursday night for prespective firemen and policemen.

City Manager Dan Wolford said 15 persons had filed applications to take the test; 7 for firemen, and 8 for policemen.

The tests were given to create an eligibility list for the two departments.

BEEF FOR NIXON — Canadian butcher Henry Federman of Toronto says he is sending President Nixon $100 worth of beefs cuts on ice. He says he is upset over the refusal of a Washington D.C., company to supply the White House with beef steaks. The Washington company blamed Nixon's economy measures for the beef shortage there and sent hamburger instead.

Ohio sewage plant engineer wins million dollar lottery

By HUGH MORGAN
Associated Press Writer

IONIA, Mich. (AP) — Frank G. Kaminski, a 57-year-old sewage plant engineer in Toledo, Ohio, has a philosophy of not depending on others for help. It made him a millionaire.

Kaminski won the $1 million top prize in the Michigan Bureau of State Lottery's millionaire drawing Thursday night. He immediately announced he would quit his $14,000-a-year job with Toledo after his shift Sunday night.

Kaminski, who has gray, wavy hair, did his self-help bit after being selected as one of the 10 finalists from 120 semi-finalist in the drawing at the Ionia Free Fair.

The finalists were brought on stage and each was given a sealed envelope, with an unknown name inside. Each was told to put it next to one of the 10 prizes, which ranged from $5,000 to $1 million.

Without hesitating, Kaminski put his envelope next to the $1 million prize. It later turned out to contain his own name.

"The reason I did it is that I'm a man that always did everything by myself, for myself," he said. "In other words, I never asked for help, outside of my wife helping. And I said, 'Boy, this is it'."

A native of Toledo, Kaminski said he worked for 26 years for the Woolson Spice Co. as a supervisor, but that the firm "folded with no pension plan."

He took various jobs, but a year ago became a "water reclamation plant operator. This is a fancy name for sewage plant." In his job, he looks after various equipment, such as diesel engines.

Kaminski, who was embraced by his wife, Hattie, after winning the $1 million, said they would buy a home somewhere in Michigan, but probably still maintain a residence in Toledo.

After the drawing, he was presented with a check for $50,-000, the first of 20 such checks he will receive every year for the next two decades.

'Farm Bloc' covers wide range

WASHINGTON (AP) — One of the catch-phrases in descriptions of the factions within Congress is "the farm bloc" of "farm-belt congressmen."

What it may mean depends on the context and, often, the crop in question. On those occasions, "grain-producing states" or "citrus states" or "dairy belt" might be more accurate descriptions.

Other means exist to delineate this "farm bloc"-lists of members of Congress who are farmers by previous occupation, hold proprietary farm or ranch interests or have significant campaign support from farm organizations, for example.

Virtually all states have some farming interests, with Rhode Island and Alaska farmers producing the least gross income nationally.

But solely on the basis of gross farm-marketing income, before government payments from more than a dozen programs, these were the top 10 farm states last year, in descending order: California, Iowa, Texas, Illinois, Kansas, Nebraska, Minnesota, Missouri, Wisconsin, Indiana.

Government payments change the standings. For example, North Dakota, 26th last year in terms of income, was sixth in terms of government payments; Mississippi, 22nd in income, 10th in government payments.

California, the richest farm state, and Wisconsin were knocked out of the top 10 when it included government farmsupport payments.

With the payments considered, Colorado — 18th in payments and 11th in market income — knocked Wisconsin off the top 10, and Indiana moved up one into ninth.

The top four and Indiana have maintained their positions this decade, in the marketing column and, except for Colorado's entry last year, in the final totals, Kansas, Nebraska and Minnesota regularly run a statistical cat-and-mouse race.

Texas has led the last three years in government payments, followed last year by Iowa, Kansas, Illinois, Nebraska, North Dakota, Minnesota, Missouri, Indiana and Mississippi.

The government's farm programs' payments are totalled up at the Agriculture Department at the end of the fiscal year, June 30. Secretary Earl L. Butz expects them to be down $1.5 billion this past year from 1971-72.

The state breakdown probably won't be affected for another year or so, with many of the programs going off the books recently or in the near future as the department pursues a market "not tinkered with by the government," as an assistant secretary puts it.

But for the first six months of this year, here are the standings going into summer and fall harvests: Iowa, California, Texas, Illinois, Nebraska, Kansas, Florida, Wisconsin, Colorado and Indiana.

Marathon Oil declares quarterly dividend

FINDLAY, Ohio (AP) — A quarterly dividend of 40 cents per share, payable Sept. 10 to shareholders of record Aug. 17, was declared Thursday by Marathon Oil Co. directors.

Directors also announced the election to the board of James N. Land Jr., a member of the management committee of the First Boston Corp. Land succeeds John R. Donnell, who is retiring after 37 years with the company.

Opposite votes cast on medical measure

WASHINGTON (AP) — Opposite votes were cast by Ohio Republican Sens. William Saxbe and Robert Taft Jr. as the Senate voted 77-16 Thursday to override President Nixon's veto of a bill to prevent closing of eight Public Health Service hospitals.

Note earnings increase

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — The Nationwide Corp. reported Thursday its earnings increased about 20 per cent in the first half of this year over the same period in 1972, from $7.3 million to $8.3 million and from 71 to 86 cents per share.

Reds end series with explosion

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

A league-leading total of 81 runs batted in plus 21 home runs are figures which would make just about any baseball player quite happy.

Not Johnny Bench.

"It's been a very frustrating year for me," said the young Cincinnati Reds slugger.

"I just haven't been comfortable at the plate all year," Bench said Thursday. "I've been trying out all sorts of different things...tonight they worked."

Bench slugged a two-run homer in the fourth inning at Atlanta, starting the Reds on their way to a 17-2 rout of the Braves.

The victory left the secondplace Reds 3½ games behind Los Angeles in the National League West. The Dodgers beat the Houston Astros 4-2 in 11 innings Thursday night.

The Reds' 17-run outpouring climaxed a four-game series at Atlanta Stadium in which 77 runs were scored. Cincinnati tallied 45 of them, winning three of the four games.

Elsewhere in the National League, the Philadelphia Phils beat the Chicago Cubs 4-1, the Montreal Expos blanked the St. Louis Cardinals 2-0 and the New York Mets defeated the Pittsburgh Pirates 5-1. San Francisco and San Diego were not scheduled.

Phils 4, Cubs 1

Young Dick Ruthven of the Phils has a complaint about the baseball he's sometimes asked to pitch with.

"I learned to pitch with a baseball and they hand me a ball bearing," Ruthven said.

The "ball bearing" is the new ball being tested this season, which is stitched in Haiti. Ruthven had no trouble with the old American ball he was given Thursday night, however, as he beat the Cubs 4-1, allowing only five hits and striking out nine.

Expos 2, Cards 0

Balor Moore, recalled from a two-week stay at Peninsula of the International League on Tuesday, fired a four-hitter and Ron Hunt scored both of Montreal's runs in the 2-0 victory over the Cards.

Moore, 5-10, has notched three of his victories against St. Louis, which leads the National League East.

Dodgers 4, Astros 2

Ken McMllen delivered a two-run pinch-double in the 11th inning to lift the Dodgers to a 4-2 triumph over the Astros. Doug Rader and Lee May sent the game into extra innings with solo homers for Houston in the ninth.

Don Sutton, 13-u, pitched 10 innings to get the victory, then Jim Brewer hurled the 11th and earned his 13th save.

Mets 5, Pirates 1

Cleon Jones cracked a runscoring single in the third inning for the 1,000th hit of his career, capping a three-run rally that helped the Mets to a 5-1 triumph.

BASEBALL SCUFFLE — New York Yankee Gene Michael grabs Boston Red Sox catcher Carlton Fisk around the head as he and Carl Yastrzemski (8) break up a fight between Fisk and Thurman Munson in a game at Boston. Also moving into the action is Red Sox pitcher John Curtis. After breaking up the fight, Fisk and Michael started throwing punches and both benches emptied.

Heavy rains delay Westchester golf

HARRISON, N.Y. (AP) — Tom Weiskopf tried again today to extend a recent record of success that has been called golf's greatest since Byron Nelson's exploits of 1946.

Weiskopf, and the other 146 members of the field, were delayed by a day in their start in the $250,000 Westchester Golf Classic, one of pro golf's richest events.

The scheduled opening round Thursday was wiped out by heavy, day-long rains that turned the 6,614-yard, par 72 Westchester Country Club course into a soggy quagmire and cast doubts on officials' ability to get in today's round.

The 72-hole event was rescheduled for single rounds today and Saturday, with a double round of 36 holes set for Sunday.

Should the rains in suburban New York continue or if the tight little layout remains too wet to play—a decided possibility after more than 24 hours of rain—officials had two options:

—Extend the tournament through Monday, or

—Call it off after 36 holes.

Even though the prestigious PGA National championship, one of the world's four major tests, is scheduled next week in Cleveland and any delay in the completion of this event would hamper the players' preparations for the PGA, it appeared extremely doubtful officials would abandon this tournament after 36 holes.

Whatever the result, the streaking Weiskopf ranks as a solid choice to continue his string that is composed of five victories and no finish worse than fifth in his last eight starts. He's won the British and Canadian Open titles in his last two appearances and, in the string of eight, has won more than $185,000.

While the record is one of the best in recent years, it, of course, falls far short of Nelson's string of 11 consecutive victories a quarter-century ago.

Brown on sidelines

Duane Thomas debuts with 'Skins tonight

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

George Allen says he's out to win tonight when the Washington Redksins host the Detroit Lions. But the Redskin coach is not about to do anything reckless like risking last year's most valuable player, Larry Brown.

As was done last year, except toward the end of the National Football preseason, Brown will be on the sidelines, but Duane Thomas, whose running abilities most Redskins fans have only heard about, will be on display.

With a couple of exceptions, the Redskins starting lineup will be the same as the team that lost last year's Super Bowl to Miami 14-7.

Roger Staubach will be getting the nod in Dallas' game tonight against the Los Angeles Rams. Coach Tom Landry said Staubach would give way in the second half to Jack Concannon. There is also a chance that Craig Morton, whose arrival at the Cowboy camp was delayed because of a contract dispute, might see action.

Houston hopes the same combination will click twice when they clash with the New York Jets tonight. Dan Pastorini will oppose the Jets' star Joe Namath, in the same duel which produced the Oilers only victory last season.

Oakland is at New England Sunday while San Francisco plays at Cleveland Monday.

The Oilers made two trades Thursday—sending rookie wide receiver Edesel Garrison to the Los Angeles Rams for an undisclosed draft choice and acquiring running back Eddie Richardson from New York for an eighth round 1974 draft choice.

Kansas City Coach Hank Stram said three veterans are definitely out of his team's opening game. Guard Mo Moorman, wide receiver Otis Taylor and left cornerback Jim Marsalis are all definitely going to be out and the status of defensive tackle Buck Buchanon and center Jack Rudnay is still not known.

DUANE THOMAS

Running back Eddie Ray is being fined $100 each day he remains absent from the camp of the Atlanta Falcons, according to coach Norm Van Brocklin. The Falcon coach hinted he did not expect the former Lousiana State University star to show up at preseason camp.

Two rookie centers joined the St. Louis Cardinals at their training camp. Tom Brahaney, a 6-foot-2, 240-pound lineman was on the field an hour after singing his contract. Mike Irons came from Washington for the $20,000 waiver price.

BR all-stars debut tonight

The Fayette County Babe Ruth all-star team will be launching its hopes tonight in the Fayette County Babe Ruth tournament when Greenfield invades for a 5:30 p.m. game at Roszmann Feild.

The game between the Fayette County stars and Greenfield will launch the double elimination tournament while Jamestown and Gahanna will clash in the second game, scheduled for 7:30 p.m.

Eighteen players comprise the roster for the Fayette County all-stars, who will be managed by Buck Caulley. Willis Insurance, the 1973 Fayette County Babe Ruth champion, has four players on the 18-player team. They are Rex Coe, Mark Lamberson, Gary English and David Stackhouse.

Other members of the team are Scott Sefton, Wilson Chevrolet; Mark Jones, Medics; Jeff Elliot, Girtons; Alan Conners, Bloomingburg; Jack James, Girtons; Steve Smith, Jeffersonville; Wes Williams, Wilson Chevrolet; Ted Mercer, Girtons; Terry Rodgers, Good Hope; Howard Boggs, Sabina; Alan Fleming, Bloomingburg, Mark Fisher, Medics; Steve Waters, Good Hope, and Jeff Deweese, Medics.

The survivors of tonight's opening round games will meet at 1 p.m. Saturday and the losers will play at 3:30 p.m. The championship game will be played at 2 p.m. Sunday.

Secretariat, the King of the turf world, puts his regal presence on display in the $50,000-added Whitney Stakes at historic Saratoga race track Saturday.

Already a legend in his own time, the 3-year-old Meadow Stable colt will be competing against older horses for the first time. No matter, he is expected to win and join the equine millionaire's club. The first Triple Crown winner in a quarter of a century has earned $970,242 in his 16 career starts.

The appearance of Secretariat in the Whitney will be nationally televised over the CBS network.

The popularity of Secretariat seems certain to attract a record crowd of 30,000 to the century-old Saratoga track. And the King is ready for the 1⅛-mile test against a field likely to include True Knight, Onion, Tri Jet, West Coast Scout, Anno and Rule by Reason.

"All is well with the colt," said trainer Lucien Laurin after the big son of Bold Ruler had worked an easy half-mile in 48 seconds before a record early morning Thursday turnout of 5,000.

"He knows he's King," said Mrs. John Tweedy, who owns the Big Horse syndicated for $6,080,000.

Watergate lawyers find work exhausting, exhilarating

By ANN BLACKMAN
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — But for Watergate, both of them seemed certain of promising, unruffled careers.

Both were young, Republican, well-educated, well-spoken, well-dressed. Both belonged to Princeton's Ivy Club. One went on to Georgetown University's School of Foreign Service, the other to Georgetown's School of Law. Both married bright, attractive women. Both were offered jobs with President Nixon's re-election committee.

Hugh W. Sloan Jr. accepted. Searle Field didn't.

Sloan, 32, the committee's former treasurer, eventually found himself in the witness chair on one side of the table covered with green felt that dominates the Senate Watergate hearings. Field, 29, a Watergate investigator for Sen. Lowell P. Weicker Jr. R-Conn., was on the other.

It made all the difference.

Then he went back to Princeton, N.J., disillusioned with politics and ready for a new start, this time as an executive with a business firm.

Field is one of a dozen young attorneys working on or with the Senate Select Committee on Presidential Campaign Activities that is investigating the Watergate scandal.

Some have trouble sleeping. One attorney has a recurring nightmare that he is a pallbearer at the funeral of one of the principal Watergate witnesses.

A few are on ego trips, confusing the hundreds of hours of free television time with success. An attorney called his hometown newspaper to suggest that a reporter be sent to Washington to interview him. One was.

But most of them said in interviews that the whole Watergate drama has made them painfully aware of the pitfalls a professional can encounter.

"It's definitely affected my life," said Field of Brooklyn, Conn. "I've learned a tremendous amount about life, about some of the dangers of professional conduct.

"You have to be careful of compromise, careful of your principles, aware that even things done quietly in the back room can be as dangerous as so-called street crime."

Like most of the attorneys, Field puts in a 12-to-15 hour day, usually 7 days a week. He said the work is as exhilerating as it is exhausting.

"My father says to me, 'How can you take on the White House?' But walking down these halls of Congress, knowing of all these fine people, I wonder how the White House can take on us. Our diversity of leadership gives us a strength they don't have," Field said.

Field works closely with H. William Shure, 33, an assistant minority counsel on the committee staff who is assigned to Weicker.

Like Field, Shure has been affected by the parade of men with shattered careers who have come before the committee.

"It's made me realize the standards I set for myself have to be completely lived by, no matter what anyone else asks me to do," said Shure who is on a 6-month leave from a New Haven, Conn. law firm. "But I'm not going to let Watergate scare me out of politics."

Shure is on the staff of Fred D. Thompson, the committee's chief minority counsel who is 30. Thompson was asked to join the staff by his fellow Tennessean, Sen. Howard H. Baker Jr., Republican vice-chairman of the committee.

"It's very sobering for me to see the ease with which some of these people got into so much trouble," said Thompson, who expects to return to his Nashville law firm when the committee finishes its work.

"It's dangerous, Thompson said, "thinking that because you're in the system or have faith in your superior, things will work out all right."

Will Thompson's position on a committee that is closely examining the Nixon administration hurt any Republican political ambitions he may have?

"I don't think it will hurt me," Thompson said. "I think most people realize that this is something you have to do. And in my own mind, I can justify it."

Thompson's counterpart on the committee is chief counsel Samuel Dash, a Georgetown law professor who calls himself "the old man of the group at 48." From scores of applicants who wanted to be on his staff, Dash chose four assistant counsels, all in their 30s.

Rufus L. Edmisten, 32, the pipe-puffing deputy chief counsel from Boone, N.C., can usually be spotted leaning over the shoulder of Sen. Sam J. Ervin Jr., D-N.C., the committee chairman who, in Edmisten's view is "the greatest man in the country."

"The lessons of Watergate have made an indelible imprint on my mind," Edmisten said. "It's a terrific lesson for many men in this country. If you're going to run for political office, don't take any short cuts. Don't play fast and loose with the truth."

Edmisten has a definite interest in elective politics, but said, "I'm not as politically active as I was. I want to stop and think for a while. I want to practice law before I jump into politics."

The assistant chief counsel is Terry Falk Lenzner, a darkhaired young lawyer from Long Island, N.Y., who questioned White House aide Richard A. Moore when he testified before the committee. A product of Exeter Academy, Harvard where he was captain of the football team in his senior year and Harvard Law, Lenzner, 33, has had a role in some of the most controversial development of recent times: the civil rights movement, the antipoverty program, the Berrigan trial.

Lenzner said of his experience interviewing witnesses:

"At the beginning, when people started to topple, it was getting rather depressing. You'd get in to interviews and you could always tell by their facial expression, their gestures, when it was coming. Soon they'd say, 'There's something I have to tell you,' and you knew in the pit of your stomach, here it comes."

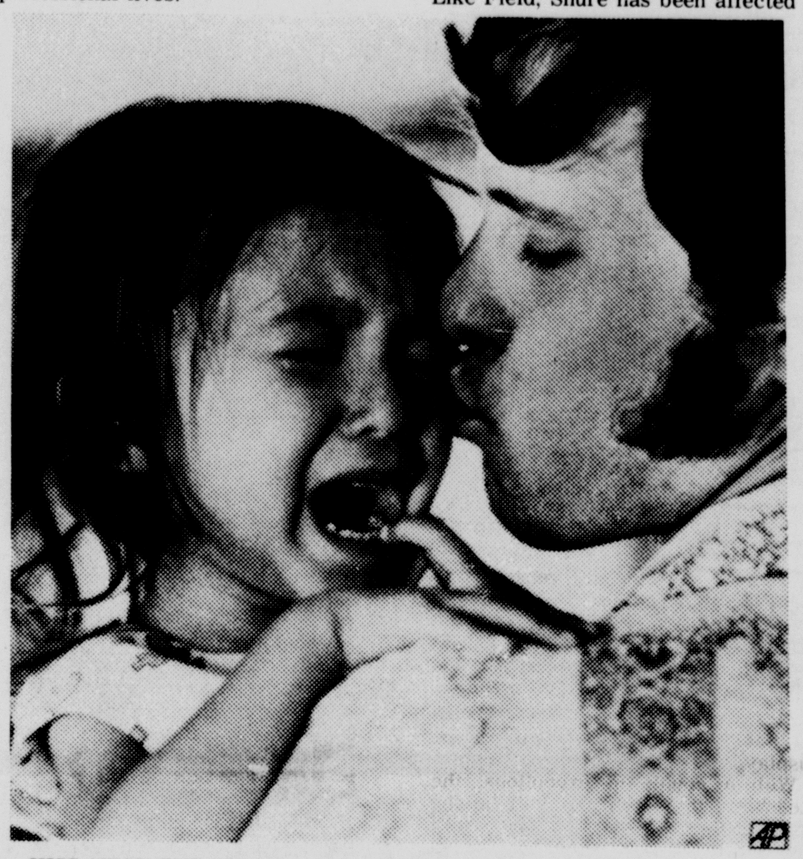

Lenzner said he pays a personal price for the long hours and high-pressure atmosphere that committ work demands.

"I don't sleep well at all during these things," he said, echoing the view of most of his colleagues. "I wake up at night and think of all the things I have to do, all the questions I should have asked. I haven't seen my 2½-year-old daughter in almost a month. My wife is expecting another child any day, and she wonders what happened to her moral support."

How has the experience affected Hamilton's life?

"My social life has gone to hell," he quipped. "And so has my tennis game."

KISS AWAY THE TEARS — John Flatray of Longmont, Colo., comforts his crying daughter, Duranee, 2½, when the youngster arrived at Denver from Thailand. It was the first time Flatray saw his daughter. Flatray married in Thailand in 1969 bringing his wife back to the U.S. after a tour of duty. His wife returned to Thailand to visit and died in childbirth.

Millionaire has own garden high atop apartment building

By BOB MONROE
Associated Press Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — The corn is as high as the Green Giant's eye in Stewart Mott's garden and the tomato plants stacked on his penthouse roof are a story higher.

Mott, heir to a fortune of General Motors stock, obviously doesn't need to grow vegetables outside the 14th-floor Park Avenue apartment to supply his food. But he likes things fresh.

And so the terrace and roof are filled with planters and containers of all shapes and sizes growing everything from artichokes to zucchini, wax beans to sweet potatoes and apples to grapes.

Given the limited space— there are about 3,500 square feet on the terrace and roof combined—Mott has made the most of it. Some 2,000 square feet, or about one-twentieth of an acre, is under cultivation.

"The object is to have absolutely fresh vegetables all the time," says Mott, 35, whose father was the late auto industry pioneer Charles Stewart Mott.

Growing up on the family's 65-acre estate, Applewood, in Flint, Mich., there was always fresh produce. He recalls some arduous summer work hoeing vegetables for 5 cents an hour.

When he moved into the penthouse in 1966 he limited his gardening to caring for a few shrubs left by a previous tenant. But in 1971 he took a "sabbatical" from his regular pursuits and began the garden.

Strong young assistants helped haul 80 tons of topsoil, peat moss and humus from the back elevator to the containers, which range from jars to metal and wood planters to a worn auto tire.

"I gradually realized it must be the most complete penthouse garden in the city," said Mott in an interview. "Obviously we don't have a wheat field but just about everything else."

In all there are 250 varities of vegetables and 200 kinds of decorative house plants.

"We could survive the year on what we grow here if we put in more potatoes and canned and froze things," said Mott.

In all, there are 20 pets available for loan, kept in little cages in the children's section of the Los Alamitos Rossmoor Library.

"We've got a waiting list of 26 for our rabbit, Honey Bunny, and most of the animals are out most of the time," says Joyce Kearns, children's section director.

Mrs. Kearns decided last spring to feature "creatures" for summer reading. Hearing of a similar lending program in Erie, Pa., she contacted the principal of a nearby elementary school in the Orange County community and got permission to keep the school's animals at the library during the summer.

Preschool and elementary school children are allowed to check out animals, taking them home in their library cages. At home they're allowed to take them out and pet them all they want.

A week's supply of food is provided with each animal. It is donated by frinds of the library.

"One of the big advantages of these animals is that, because of their experiences in the school, they are used to being handled by children and respond to it well," Mrs. Kearns says.

Lima man discovered dead of auto injuries

McGUFFEY, Ohio (AP) — Jeffrey L. Rainey, 30, of Lima was found dead on a bank of the Scioto River Thursday, apparently of injuries he received when his car plunged off Ohio 195 into the water.

McGuffey police said the car apparently was one that was pursued by a cruiser Wednesday night and had gone off the road on a curve. At the time, the officer involved reported the car had eluded him.

Chicago museum show focuses on the sky

CHICAGO (AP) — Throughout history man's fascination with the sky and the stars and the moon and the sun has been expressed in his writings and rituals and art.

An exhibition called "Sky Blue Pink" in the Junior Museum at the Art Institute of Chicago shows examples from the ancient to the modern of the forms this fascination has taken.

The exhibition which runs through August 1974, is designed primarily for children but also holds interest for adults.

A spiral-bound catalog contains a game in which children are asked questions about the works on display. In reverse, the catalog has descriptions for adult viewers.

The children's game explains the mysterious title for the show and the mystery the universe has held for man in a note saying, "Every once in a while we see something we really can't name or describe. That's sky blue pink."

LOIS RAASCH director of the Junior Museum, said its shows include items from as many of the larger museum's collections as possible.

In this way children are introduced to the various media used by artists, she said. The theme of each show helps to relate these artistic expressions to each other.

Sections of the "Sky Blue Pink" show illustrate architectural and other domes —"vaults of heaven"; towers, including skyscrapers — man's efforts to reach the heavens; flying creatures, symbols, weather, clouds and other items related to things beyond the earth.

The exhibition ranges from the Chou Dynasty of ancient China, 1122-255 B.C., to the present.

The Chinese period is represented in the symbols section with jade pi discs, thought to symbolize the sun, which were used in imperial worship at the altar of heaven until 1912.

THE SYMBOLS also include an American Steuben glass zodiac bowl, an intricately embroidered silk Chinese court robe, and a statue of the Indian sun god Surya.

One section includes representations of birds in clay and as decoys and masks. The paintings, including one by Claude Monet, include some striking representations of clouds and the various moods of the sky.

Isle of Man hotel blaze fatal to 40

DOUGLAS, Isle of Man (AP) — A fired roared through a crowded seven-story hotel and entertainment center on the Douglas seafront Thursday night, killing at least 40 men, women and children and injuring 80.

Police Chief Frank Weedon said the death toll would probably go higher as workers searched the upper floors of the Summerland, a multi-milliondollar "Coney Island under one roof" of bars, dance halls and hotel rooms.

Floor manager L. Shaffer said it was believed the inferno was set off by a child playing with matches on a balcony. Within minutes the flames engulfed the building, which was crowded with more than 2,000 people.

Firemen reached the scene almost immediately and began pumping water from the sea, but it was two hours before the fire was brought under control.

Thirty of the injured were in critical condition.

It was the worst tragedy in memory to hit this holiday island midway between England and Northern Ireland. Telephone lines from Britain and Ireland were jammed throughout the night with calls from anxious relatives of vacationers.

Summerland was completed in 1971 on a 3½-acre site at the north end of the sea front at Douglas. Last year it accounted for 13 per cent of the island's tourist revenue.

The Isle of Man government was a partner in financing the construction.

FARMERS MARKET — Home baked and hand made products were the order of the day Thursday as local clubs and organizations lined the sidewalk along the Courthouse with tables of home made goods. Mrs. Russell Whiting (left) and Mrs. Larry Joseph are shown with articles made by the Welcome Wagon Club.

Douglas hears bombing appeal

YAKIMA, Wash. (AP) — Supreme Court Justice William O. Douglas today holds a hearing on a request to overturn an order blocking a federal court ruling that the U.S. bombing of Cambodia is unconstitutional.

The hearing was scheduled for 9 a.m. (PDT) in the federal courthouse here. Douglas is vacationing near remote Goose Prairie, Wash.

If Douglas overturns the stay, it means the bombing must stop. However, his ruling could be overturned by the full Supreme Court.

Nab Ohioan for holdup

COLUMBIA CITY, Ind. (AP)—An Ohio youth, held in Whitley County Jail under $50,000 bond, awaits arraignment on a preliminary charge of bank robbery.

Authorities said Ovidio B. Suaceda Jr., 19, Defiance, Ohio, was arrested Thursday, shortly after the Auburn Federal Savings and Loan Association was robbed of about $2,220.

Arraignment was set for Monday.

Investigators said the bank was robbed by a man who showed a teller a note demanding money be placed in a sack. Tellers said they saw no gun during the holdup.

A short time later, an Allen County sheriff's deputy stopped Suaceda after a high-speed auto chase on U.S. 30, 10 miles west of Fort Wayne.

KSU probe to be resurrected

WASHINGTON (AP) — Atty. Gen. Elliot L. Richardson today ordered a new Justice Department investigation of the deaths of four Kent State University students shot by National Guardsmen in 1970.

Richardson said his decision was based on "the need to exhaust every potential for acquiring facts related to this tragedy."

Richardson ordered J. Stanley Pottinger, assistant attorney general in charge of the department's Civil Rights Division, "to pursue the additional inquiry by such means as he feels are appropriate so that we will both be completely satisfied that the department knows as much as can possibly be learned concerning possible violations of federal law."

Richardson reopened the Kent State investigation after studying the findings of Pottinger's preliminary review of existing files.

Richardson initiated the preliminary review on the heels of a White House statement last May which reaffirmed the Aug. 1971 decision by former Atty. Gen. John N. Mitchell to drop the case without a federal grand jury probe.

In a statement, Richardson said the resurrection of the investigation "does not mean that we have reason to believe that the prior decision to discontinue active investigation was wrong or made for improper reasons, nor does it mean that we think the additional inquiry is likely to lead to a different prosecutive judgment."

However, he said he has found "some areas where an additional inquiry is desirable."

Pottinger had said previously that his initial re-examination showed no substantial allegations that had not been investigated.

The review began at the time a House Judiciary subcommittee disclosed intentions to investigate Mitchell's decision.

It came at the same time that many of Mitchell's actions as attorney general came under scrutiny because of his subsequent involvement in the Watergate scandal and other allegations of improprieties.

Presidential counsel Leonard Garment wrote four Kent State students in May that the White House had rejected their plea for a federal grand jury investigation.

Garment said "It is our unanimous judgment if a grand jury were convened it would either bring no indictments, or bring indictments which would only result in acquittals."

Mitchell's decision on Aug. 14, 1971 dismayed the parents of the four slain students and a number of civil rights groups and congressmen. They had banked on a federal grand jury probe after an Ohio state grand jury exonerated the guardsmen and placed part of the blame for the shootings on lax campus administration.

Four students were killed and nine others wounded when a National Guard contingent opened fire on students demonstrating against the U.S. invasion of Cambodia.

The guard, dispatched to the campus to maintain order following three days of turbulence, said at first that shots were fired in response to sniper bullets. Later it said there was no evidence of snipers.

Seek restrictions on computer files

WASHINGTON (AP) — A coalition of congressmen and lawyers today demanded that the Justice Department seal its computer files on criminal offenders until the department can impose new restrictions to protect individual rights. The group threatened Atty. Gen. Elliot L. Richardson with a federal court lawsuit if he rejects the demand.

Sen. Edward Brooke, R-Mass., Reps. Michael Harrington, D-Mass., and Barry Goldwater Jr., R-Calif., and Republican Gov. Francis W. Sargent of Massachusetts led the coalition.

They planned to deliver to the Justice Department an administrative petition prepared by the Lawyers Committee for Civil Rights Under Law and supported by the American Civil Liberties Union.

The files often are incorrect, incomplete and unnecessary, the group asserted.

The petition specifically alleged that FBI data collection procedures:

—Fail "to insure the accuracy or completeness of the data on individuals," by amassing arrest records without indicating later whether charges were dropped or the individuals were acquitted or convicted.

—Allow "virtually uncontrolled access to the data" to employers and other agencies "for the purposes of clearing employment, promotions, the granting of credit and other basic rights." The FBI maintains that only law enforcement officials have access to the files.

—Include the unnecessary filing of "a host of minor offenses, many of which are misdemeanors involving no harm to others."

As a result, the group stated, "individuals whose names appear in the file have been denied employment. . . . have been given stricter sentences, and have been treated more harshly by parole boards."

Moreover, the group alleged, "it is almost impossible for the individual citizen to gain access to the file for the purpose of correcting errors or omissions."

United Phone boost OKd

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP)— Saying the action should be a positive step toward alleviating customer complaints, the Public Utilities Commission Thursday granted the United Telephone Co. a $3.9 million emergency rate increase.

The commission said the increase should be less than 10 per cent for the company's 500,-000 customers in Mansfield, Mount Vernon, Warren, Wooster and Lebanon as well as rural areas in 40 counties.

Believe WCH lad only victim of torture-murderer

MIAMI, Fla. (AP) — Police say a handwritten diary of Albert Brust has convinced them that the building inspector who had a torture chamber in one room and the dismembered body of an Ohio youth buried in a shower stall was not responsible for any other murders.

Brust, 44, was found dead in the backyard of his home July 21, a victim, police say, of selfinflicted cyanide poisoning.

Police said the diary entitled "The Ultimate Solution" dated back to April, 1970, but trailed off late that year. Brust, who had a criminal record dating back to 1945, began the diary again July 12.

On July 22, police found inside the house a torture chamber and the decomposing body of Mark Bernard Matson, 16, of Washington Court House, Ohio.

He had been shot to death, chopped up and cemented into the shower stall in a spare bathroom. But body fluids began oozing from beneath the concrete and apparently moved Brust to further actions.

Brust wrote: "I have miscalculated. However I know I could save the situation by a lot of disagreeable work, but I see no good reason for going on."

Police said a 15-year-old Frankfort, Ky., girl told them Brust had taken her and Matson to his home and forced them to commit sex acts. When Matson resisted, the girl said, Brust shot and killed him.

Ten days before that, Brust had written in his diary, "No sex yet but I'm working on it. I need someone for sex...."

According to the girl, Brust kept her tied up for two days, repeatedly raping her. Finally he let her go saying, "I have taken a life. I am going to give you yours."

Major financial changes proposed

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Nixon today proposed major changes in the country's financial system, including phasing out interest rate ceilings on savings and other bank deposits over a 5½-year period.

The recommendations include inducements to banks and financial institutions to lend more money for home mortgages by providing a tax credit on the amount of mortgage loans.

In addition, savings and loan associations would be able to offer checking account services and the so-called NOW accounts would be authorized for both commercial banks and savings and loan associations. NOW stands for Negotiable Order of Withdrawal and provides for negotiated rates of interests on checking accounts.

There were seven major changes in the financial package released at the White House. They followed a study of the country's financial institutions initiated by the President in 1971.

Deputy Secretary of the Treasury William E. Simon said in explaining the proposed changes that the timing is right because "we are in a period that could be classified this moment as an interest rate crunch."

Simon said he hopes the proposed changes can be ready for presentation to Congress in September and that hearings can be held beginning in October.

He described the proposed changes as "the first major restructuring of our financial system since 1865 without a crisis being present."

He emphasized at a news briefing that a major goal of the changes is to maintain a flow of deposit money into banks and savings and loan institutions by lifting the interest rate ceilings.

Pentagon bewails defense fund cuts

WASHINGTON (AP) — Pentagon officials reported the possibility of a new round of base closings amid a growing feud with Congress over severe defense cuts.

This could be a Pentagon signal that congressmen might feel the effects of their actions in the loss of military installations, and civilian jobs back home.

Sources indicated consideration of possible new shutdowns is in its early stages and involves examination of lists of bases that are of marginal value to the armed services.

Secretary of Defense James R. Schlesinger, in office only about a month, opened fire on congressional budget trimmers Wednesday. He accused them of "follies" in voting drastic cutbacks in military manpower, arms aid to South Vietnam and Laos, and other programs.

Thursday, Sen. Thomas J. McIntyre, D-N.H., returned Schlesinger's fire in a speech advising the new Pentagon chief "to extract his foot from his mouth."

McIntyre, a veteran member of the Senate Armed Services Committee, spoke of "Pentagon follies" as primarily responsible for the diminishing support for the defense effort. He accused the Pentagon of advancing "ill-conceived ... extravagant ... redundant programs."

The defense budget has been under its heaviest attack in years in both the House and Senate, with many key weapons projects feeling the bite.

The most immediate cause of concern to top Pentagon civilian and military officials is the Senate Armed Services vote to hack 156,000 men from the armed services over the coming year. This would bring the total down to 2,076,800 men, smallest in nearly a quarter of a century.

If this cut is sustained, Pentagon officials say the combat readiness of the forces will be seriously endangered.

In one private conference this week, Adm. Elmo R. Zumwalt, chief of Naval operations, reportedly said that the projected 9 per cent cut in the size of the Navy might mean laying up 45 ships and shutting down possibly eight major installations, including one shipyard.

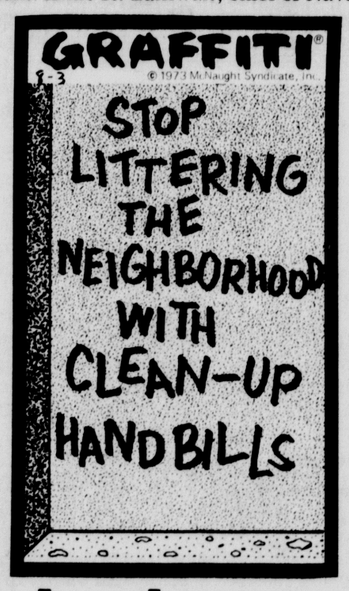

Some Army officials suggested that a comparable 9 per cent reduction in its manpower might lead to elimination of one of the Army's 13 combat divisions and supporting elements.

Air Force authorities said a 6 per cent slash, as voted by the Senate committee, might translate into a reduction of 25 bomber, fighter and airlift squadrons or 10 major installations.

Of all the services, only the Marines would escape relatively unscathed, with a one per cent reduction in its manpower.

SIDEWALK SALE—Old Fashioned Bargain Days sidewalk sales got off to a booming, not to mention pushing and bumping, start this morning as shoppers scrambled to get first choice of merchandise. Clerks, many in old fashioned garb, did their best to accommodate the crowds.

Skylab rescue plans worked out

The first attempt to rescue a crew in space might have to be made if there is more deterioration in the Apollo command ship intended to ferry the astronauts back to earth Sept. 25.

But they decided the crew could remain aboard after detailed analysis showed the Apollo should retain its capability to bring them home safely at the scheduled end of the mission.

But as a precaution, launch crews at Cape Kennedy were directed to prepare the Skylab 3 rocket and Apollo spaceship for a possible rescue mission if further trouble developed.

"It's no panic situation. But we do think it prudent to keep a rescue operation capability," said Skylab project manager William Schneider.

In Florida, Kennedy Space Center director Walter Kapryan reported more than 1,000 men had immediately swung into a 24-hour-a-day, seven-day-a-week operation to get the vehicles ready in case the rescue mission is necessary.

"We are very confident we can do this thing and be ready to launch by Sept. 5 if needed," Kapryan said. That would be more than two months before the planned Nov. 9 launch of the Skylab 3 crew.

"It's a very serious problem," Apollo spacecraft manager Glynn S. Lunney told newsmen soon after the problem was discovered Thursday. "If we did not have a rescue capability, we would be moving in the direction of getting the spacecraft down as rapidly as we could."

Lunney said the main concern was that should the astronauts board the troubled Apollo and try to come home, there is a possibility that the third and fourth thruster systems could fail, leaving the spacemen with no way of steering the craft effectively.

The astronauts resumed medical and scientific experiments and troubleshooting a few minor problems in the space station, orbiting 271 miles high.

They planned today to fire up their earth resources sensors for the first time. A space walk scheduled Saturday by Garriott and Lousma to change telescope film and to erect a new protective sun shade was postponed again, for the fourth time, until new procedures are worked out for undocking the Apollo ship in case of an emergency during the outside excursion.

The new procedures are necessary because of the trouble with Apollo's rocket thrusters. Instead of three operating thrusters, it now only has two.

Three earlier plans for the space walk were scrubbed because of now-cured motion sickness suffered by all three astronauts.

Bargain Day events draw large crowds

Bargain shoppers were out in full force today for the sidewalk sales of Old Fashioned Bargain Days Week in Washington C.H.

Many merchants, some dressed in 1890s style clothing, moved their goods to the sidewalks and offered them for sale at bargain prices.

Business, generally, was termed "excellent".

Bargain Days activities will continue through Saturday with a Kiwanis-sponsored ice cream social at 4:30 p.m. today on the Courthouse lawn.

Events Saturday include a continuation of the sidewalks sale, an antique car show starting at 9 a.m., a beef barbecue, a book fair on the west side of Main Street and an employes' costume contest.

Cash awards will be presented to the employes judged to be the best dressed, in Old Fashioned costumes. Judging will begin at 4:30 p.m.

The car show, billed as the largest in Ohio, will feature 31 classes. This event will also be held on Main Street.

Judge orders jet confiscated

NEW YORK (AP) — U.S. Atty. Robert A. Morse, ordered by a judge to seize a commercial jetliner, says he needs some advice from Washington.

U.S. District Court Judge Jack B. Weinstein ordered Morse on Thursday to seize a Braniff DC8 on which three convicted narcotics smugglers flew here from South America last spring.

Weinstein contended that Braniff had not been vigilant enough against drug traffickers and said the "action to forfeit the plane worth several million dollars will, in my opinion, bring the airlines around very quickly."

The Air Transport Association called the court order unprecedented and a perplexed Morse said he was referring the directive to the Department of Justice in Washington.

A Braniff spokesman said it was not up to the airline to police its passengers.

Rains, flooding kill 7 persons

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Heavy runoff threatened more flash flooding in the Northeast today following torrential rains that left at least seven dead, snarled traffic and forced hundreds to evacuate their homes.

Flash-flood warnings were posted for New England and the southern Rockies. Local flooding Thursday affected parts of Pennsylvania, New Jersey and New England.

Nine inches of rain left six persons dead and several missing, millions of dollars of damage and snarled traffic in New Jersey Thursday. A state of emergency was declared as flood waters rose 10 feet and forced hundreds to evacuate their homes.

Norristown in southeastern Pennsylvania was hit with two waves of torrential rains Thursday which caused severe flooding, evacuations, road closings and interruption of utility service. Flash floods also plagued sections of the Philadelphia area.

In New York City, 2.5 inches of rain knocked out thousands of Manhattan telephone lines, snarled subways and delayed trains and automobile traffic.

Elsewhere across the nation mostly sunny skies with little temperature change were ahead today except for lingering showers and thunderstorms on the Gulf Coast and isolated storms through the Western mountains and parts of the Plains.

A heat wave remained over the Plateau and northwestern Plains while the cool air which fanned the Midwest began to weaken.

Weather

Fair and a little cooler tonight, lows in the 50s. Sunny and a little warmer Saturday, highs in the upper 70s and low 80s.

House approves Alaska pipeline

WASHINGTON (AP) — Environmentalists were defeated in another major effort to block the Alaska oil pipeline as the House followed the Senate's lead and approved building the 789-mile system.

The House Thursday voted 356 to 60 for the facility, despite the concern expressed on the floor in nearly 10 hours of debate over oil spills—both on land and in coastal waters.

But, principal backers of the pipeline say major disagreements between both houses still stand in the way of final passage.

"I don't look for a long drawn out conference, but there are important differences," Rep. John Melcher, D-Mont., said after the House vote.

"The broad range of the Senate bill, affecting all types of rights of way on public lands, flies in the face of the House bill," Melcher said.

Melcher, chairman of the Interior subcommittee which put the bill together, led the fight for it on the floor. He probably will be a member of the House-Senate conference committee which will begin meetings after Congress returns from its August recess.

The bill permits the secretary of the interior to grant rights of way in some circumstances in excess of the 50-foot maximum provided by the Mineral Leasing Act of 1920.

It limits this authority to oil and gas pipelines, unlike the Senate version, which sets up new procedures for granting rights of way across federal lands for all transportation and transmission purposes.

The $3.5-billion pipeline, expected to start moving oil in 1978 if finally approved, would stretch from the rich oil fields of the Prudhoe Bay area on Alaska's north slope to the icefree port of Valdez.

Environmentalists have expressed fears of damaging oil spills on the overland route or the course along which tankers will transport the oil from Valdez to refineries on Puget sound in Washington state.

They attempted by offering two amendments to clear the way for further environmental suits against the project or to delay it pending a study of an alternate route through Canada.

Both amendments were defeated.

WASHINGTON (AP) — The deputy director of the Central Intelligence Agency testified today that H. R. Haldeman ordered him to deflect the FBI's Watergate investigation last year.

Army Lt. Gen. Vernon A. Walters said that at a meeting six days after the Watergate raid Haldeman, who was then President Nixon's chief of staff, told him to tell acting FBI Director L. Patrick Gray III that the FBI's investigations in Mexico might uncover CIA activity there.

Walters told the Senate Watergate committee that Haldeman repeatedly asserted some CIA secrets might be uncovered in Mexico even though Walters and his boss, then CIA Director Richard Helms, knew of no agency activities that might have been exposed by an investigation.

At the time, the FBI was investigating Nixon campaign checks that had passed through a Mexican bank on their way into the Miami bank account of one of the Watergate burglars. The checks eventually provided a direct financial link between Nixon's campaign committee and the wiretappers.

Haldeman has testified that he merely inquired of Helms and Walters whether a vigorous FBI investigation might uncover some CIA secrets. He said he told Walters to talk to Gray only after the CIA officials failed to give him any flat assurances that no secrets might be exposed.

Walters gave a different version. He said Haldeman asserted that "pursuit of the FBI's investigation in Mexico might uncover some CIA activity." He said Haldeman repeated this three times, and said "it has been decided" that Walters should tell Gray this.

Samuel Dash, chief counsel for the Senate committee, asked Walters if Haldeman had been inquiring whether CIA secrets might be uncovered, or was saying that on his own.

"I do not recall it being put in question form," Walters said. "It was put in directive form."

Walters said that although he and Helms knew of no CIA secrets that might be uncovered in Mexico, they didn't dispute Haldeman's authority because he was close to the President and because he might know something the top CIA officials didn't.

Walters has turned over to the Senate panel copies of personal memoranda that recount his dealings with White House aides and Gray.

Walters said that within an hour after he and Helms met with Haldeman and Ehrlichman, he went to see Gray who seemed to be expecting him.

"I said to Gray I had just come from the White House where I talked with senior staff members. I was to tell him the pursuit of the FBI investigation in Mexico might expose some covert activities of the CIA," said Walters.

He said he then reminded Gray of an agreement between their two agencies to inform one another if anything occurred that might expose the other's activities. He said Gray was aware of the agreement.

Walters said he returned to the CIA and reported to Helms, then questioned CIA staffers about any possible connection.

"It soon became clear nobody involved with Mexico operations thought

Sheriff cars are grounded at Athens

ATHENS, Ohio (AP) — Athens County sheriff's deputies were answering only emergency calls today while all but one patrol car remained in the parking lot out of gas.

The department's oil, gas and maintenance fund for its cruisers is all used up and county commissioners have refused to allocate any more money, said Sheriff Paul Brown.

Brown said he had asked for an additional $6,000 for the year, but was refused "because they said I wasn't cooperating in keeping the budget down."

He said the fund held $15,000 at the beginning of the year when he took office, but that was spent on new officer uniforms, laundry and medical care for prisoners and maintenance and fuel for five cruisers and two unmarked cars.

Benjamin Franklin said, "He that hath a trade, hath an estate."

Judge may order meat ceiling end

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

A federal judge in San Francisco says he will rule shortly on a suit asking for removal of the beef price freeze the meat industry claims is damming supplies and picking off its operations.

"We haven't closed this plant in 25 years," said William Hughes, president of King Meat Packing Co. in Vernon, Calif., one of six packing plants there that announced they were closing.

U.S. District Court Judge Robert F. Peckham said he would rule today or Monday on the Pacific Meat Jobbers Association's request for a preliminary injunction to stop the Cost of Living Council from enforcing the price freeze.

The suit claims that the price ceiling on beef, effective under Phase 4 guidelines until Sept. 12, discriminates against beef slaughterers and wholesalers who are unable to pass along the higher costs of cattle.

The freeze on other food prices was lifted by President Nixon on July 18.

Dr. Willard Williams, a Texas Tech University economist specializing in li 'estock and meat, said cattle prices have increased because of higher feed grain costs and that growers are withholding cattle in anticipation of even higher prices when the ceiling is lifted.

Williams said the slaughter of cattle is down 30 per cent and the amount of cattle going to feeder lots is down 11 per cent.

On Thursday, the Senate voted 84 to 5 on a measure to remove the freeze on beef prices. The measure goes now to the House.

The amendment, sponsored by Sen. John Tower, R-Tex., would allow retailers to pass on to the consumer any increases in the raw-agricultural-product costs of beef incurred since June 8.

A spokesman for the Western States Meat Packers Association said "by next week, meat packing plants will be operating at only 60 per cent of normal, which means production will be down one third from this week."

The cost and shortage of beef has led to a rise in the number of complaints about cattle rustling. Cattlemen from northern Idaho to southern Utah and from the Plains to Nevada are claiming that the Phase 4 price ceiling has touched off a rash of rustling.

"Believe me, it's bad," said Mrs. David Probst, wife of a Wasatch County, Utah, rancher. "We've been hit several times in the past couple of weeks and I'm afraid we'll probably be hit again." The family has lost 15 head of cattle since January.

Similar complaints are being heard from farmers in rural West Virginia and southeastern Ohio, where cattle owners in two counties have formed an antirustling protective association.

The group, which boasts 400 members, offers a $500 reward for information leading to the arrest of rustlers.

Minimum wage bill in House

WASHINGTON (AP) — Republican opponents of a bill to raise the minimum wage to $2.20 an hour predict President Nixon will veto the measure despite support for it from Labor Secretary Peter J. Brennan.

The veto threat has prompted House political strategists to reconsider whether to vote on the measure today or wait until September when the House returns after a month-long recess.

The compromise bill passed the Senate 62 to 28 Thursday. If the House passed the bill today, a veto would come during the recess and Congress would have no opportunity to override.

The House also gave overwhelming approval to the Alaska oil pipeline, passing 356 to 60 a measure that would permit its construction. The bill now goes to a House-Senate conference to iron out differences between versions of the bill approved by the two chambers.

In other action, the House Rules Committee decided 9 to 6 to put off until Sept. 5 a vote on Senate-passed amendments that would end the price freeze on beef and require the President to set up a mandatory fuel allocation system. The amendments were on a bill, already passed by the House, that would require copies of coins to be labeled as copies.

The minimum-wage bill was hammered out by Senate-House conferees after the two houses had approved slightly differing versions.

But Sen. Jacob K. Javits, R-N.Y., said Brennan promised he would ask Nixon to sign the measure.

The bill raises the minimum wage and extends it to an estimated seven million workers. Another 47 million workers already are under its provisions.

The measure would extend minimum wage and overtime to full-time domestics, including babysitters. Live-in domestics would receive the minimum but not overtime.

The bill raises the $1.60 hourly minimum for most nonfarm workers to $2 on Oct. 1, then to $2.20 next July 1. Workers first covered in 1966 or under the bill would get an increase from $1.60 to $1.80 on Oct. 1, to $2 next July 1, and $2.20 July 1, 1975.

Watergate scandal

anything could be uncovered by the FBI investigation," he said.

On June 27, three days later, Walters said he received a telephone call from a man who identified himself as John W. Dean III, then the White House counsel.

Walters said he called Ehrlichman and got the confirmation, then went to see Dean.

"Dean said he was handling this whole matter of the Watergate, it was causing a lot of trouble, was very embarrassing ... that the leads led to some important people and might lead to some other important people," Walters said.

He recalled being told the FBI was proceeding on theories that the Watergate break-in was instigated by the Republican National Committee, the CIA or someone else.

"I said I don't know who originated it, but that the CIA did not," said Walters. "He kept pressing and said it must have, these people all had worked for the CIA. I said maybe they had, but they didn't now."

Said Walters:

"This seemed to shock him somewhat. I said anything that would involve any of these government agencies like the CIA or the FBI, anything improper in this way, would be a disaster for the nation. Somewhat reluctantly he seemed to accept this line of argument."

Gray, who resigned after it was revealed he destroyed politically sensitive documents given him by White House aides, is scheduled to follow Walters to the witness table late today or Monday.

Two former CIA officials testified at the committee's hearings Thursday about the agency's role in furnishing spy equipment to E. Howard Hunt shortly before the 1971 Ellsberg break-in.

Hunt, a former CIA Clandestine Service officer, has been implicated in the break-in at the office of Daniel Ellsberg's psychiatrist and pleaded guilty in the Watergate conspiracy.

Gen. Robert E. Cushman, former deputy director of the agency and now commandant of the Marine Corps, swore he gave orders to help Hunt after being asked to do so by former presidential adviser John D. Ehrlichman.

Ehrlichman has testified he doesn't recall telephoning the request to Cushman.

This spring, however, a search of CIA records turned up the minutes of a meeting with CIA Director Richard M. Helms on July 8, 1971, in which Cushman reported on the Ehrlichman call of the previous day.

Plentiful foods list dies; result of fewer surpluses

WASHINGTON (AP) — Twenty-eight years of Plentiful Foods are over in the United States.

The Agriculture Department phased out this week its Plentiful Foods program, under which it listed monthly food in larger-than-usual supply.

The program was thought of as an aid to consumers with tight grocery budgets but an Agricultural Marketing Service spokesman said it spotlighted foods in need of marketing assistance and was an aid to producers.

The spokesman said the department was expecting "fewer surpluses for quite a long while." As a result, he said, the department announced June 6 that the program would end in its present form, the staff would be dispersed and the last list would be July's.

That July list pushed Navy and pinto beans, rolled oats, corn meal, grits and Maine sardines. It ended, "supplies of other major foods are somewhat lower than usual."

Food prices are at their highest levels in two decades, and many government officials attribute this development to decreased supplies caused by poor weather and increased demand by more affluent consumers.

The idea of the Plentiful Foods program was to help farmers and other producers when high supplies brought prices below costs.

The service was not designed specifically to help consumers, although the consumer-oriented activities within the department did draw on the list for their mass-distributed advice, adding in "the nutrition factors not built into our list."

Now the Plentiful Foods promotions will be handled through the normal information and commodity divisions.

Ohio will have sunshine today and Saturday, afternoon temperatures pushing into the 70s, with some lower 80s registered in the southern counties, the National Weather Service reports.

Lows tonight, under clear skies, will lower once again into the 50s. Highs on Saturday will be a bit warmer with readings in the 70s and 80s.

The service said it appears that a good and pleasant weather weekend is in store for Ohioans. The further extended outlook indicated some showers about Tuesday.

Skies were clear over most of the state Thursday night and Friday morning, with early morning temperatures rather cool at readings generally in the 50s.

A chance of showers Tuesday. Warm through Tuesday with highs in the 80s. Lows in the upper 50s and low 60s.

Kidnapers ask millions for Getty

ROME (AP) — Kidnapers are demanding a $17 million ransom for J. Paul Getty III, 16-year-old grandson of the American oil billionaire, a family lawyer disclosed today.

But he said the youth's parents can't pay that much, his grandfather won't, and the kidnapers have rejected a counteroffer.

"His mother is desperate," said the lawyer, Giovanni Iacovoni. "The grandfather doesn't want to pay a penny and she must depend only on her own money and that of her ex-husband, which is limited."

The 80-year-old oil magnate, who lives in Britain, said last week that if he ransomed one of his 15 grandchildren, he'd end up having to ransom the other 14.

There was no comment from the boy's father, who lives in London.

Iacovoni declined to say how the contact with the parents was made and refused to reveal the counter-offer. But the Italian press, quoting friends of the family, said it was about $430,000 and the kidnapers dismissed this as "paltry."

The lawyer's statement was the first official report of a ransom figure since young Getty, called the "golden hippie" by the Italian press, disappeared in Rome more than three weeks ago.

Bellino to be investigated

Sen. Sam J. Ervin Jr., chairman of the panel, sent letters Thursday to two Democratic members and one Republican member of the committee asking them to serve on the special body to examine accusations against Bellino raised last week by Republican National Chairman George Bush.

Bush released three affidavits, one of which said the author—now dead—swore he was confident, apparently based on hearsay, that Bellino had bugged the hotel room or telephone of then-Vice President Richard M. Nixon during the 1960 presidential campaign.

Bellino denounced the charges as "false and malicious lies" with which Bush "has attempted to distract me from carrying out what I consider one of the most important assignments of my life."

Sen. Herman E. Talmadge, D-Ga., was asked to head the special subcommittee, and Sens. Daniel K. Inouye, D-Hawaii, and Edward J. Gurney, R-Fla., were asked to be members.

Sources said Ervin, a North Carolina Democrat, was inclined to reject the charges against Bellino as unfounded but Sen. Howard H. Baker Jr., R-Tenn., vice chairman of the committee, prevailed on the chairman to refrain from any statement before looking into the matter further.

Baker, the sources said, was under pressure from the Republican leadership not to let the matter drop without the thorough investigation Bush called for. A spokesman for Baker refused to confirm that but said the senator "wants something done" about the charges. After Bush raised the issue, 21 Republican senators asked that Bellino be suspended from the committee staff and investigated.

Worst shortage yet seen

CHICAGO (AP) — First gasoline, then beef, and now the toilet shortage is on America.

The shortage may delay the occupancy of the upper floors in the new Standard Oil Building in Chicago, according to the contractor.

"Toilets are impossible to get," Lynn Krause, president of the Chicago Home Builders Association, said Thursday. "They're just not available."

"We're at full capacity in both of our plants and we plan to open a new pottery plant in Texas," said James Harff, director of public affairs for Kohler Plumbing Fixtures.

"The entire plumbing industry is faced with a tremendous demand caused by the recent housing construction boom," he said.

Harff said the demand is the major factor in the toilet shortage, but a strike at American Standard, Inc., one of the nation's largest suppliers of plumbing fixtures, does not help matters. The strike is two months old and no new talks are scheduled.

Although the housing boom is expected to slow down in early 1974, Harff said a change in consumer attitudes toward bathrooms will keep demand relatively high.

"People want bigger bathrooms and more of them," he said. "A lot of men want two sinks in the bathroom, one for themselves and one for their wives."

Phoenix, Ariz., was incorporated as a city in 1881.

Stock list lower again

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market moved lower today as profit taking and worries over inflation and interest rates eroded prices for the fifth consecutive session.

Warden welcomes Lucasville probe

LUCASVILLE, Ohio (AP) — The superintendent of the state's new prison here said Thursday he would welcome a federal investigation of the 11-month-old facility.

At the same time, Supt. Wilfred Whealon said 13 inmates and corrections officials are to appear before a Scioto County grand jury Monday.

County Prosecuting Atty. Everett Burton said earlier this week the grand jury will investigate the fatal shooting of two guards July 24 which involved an armed inmate.

Whealon also said Thursday that at least one guard associated with the incident was under suspension. He refused to identify the guard or say whether he was among those subpoenaed to appear before the grand jury.

Bennett Cooper, director of the Department of Rehabilitation and Corrections, said Thursday he was not contacted by the U.S. Justice Department regarding an investigation of the Southern Ohio Correctional Facility at Lucasville.

Cooper said he answered some general questions from a staff member of Sen. Edward Kennedy, D-Mass., who requested the Justice Department to investigate conditions at the institution before the two guards were killed.

said Thursday the department is "sort of watching the situation" at the prison. He said current evidence does not warrant an investigation.

The Ohio Highway Patrol, in fragmented reports released by the Corrections Department, said Arthur Sprouse, a guard, was shot to death by an inmate, Wayne L. Raney.

Another guard, Gary Underwood, was killed when sharpshooters aimed at Raney and hit Underwood who was taken hostage by the inmate, the Patrol said.

Raney was hospitalized after the incident and is expected to be released in time to appear before the grand jury. He was not charged.

Ohio escapee under arrest in bank holdup

BOSTON (AP) — The FBI said Thursday a 30-year-old Ohio prison escapee who is being held in a Florida jail is expected to be returned here to face a bank robbery charge.

Agents said Phillip Paul Hymes was being held in the Palm Beach County Jail at West Palm Beach, Fla., on the bank robbery charge and a flight to avoid prosecution charge from Ohio.

Hymes was identified as an escapee from the Marion Correctional Institute, where he was serving nine concurrent terms of 10 to 20 years for armed robbery.

He is accused of the June 30 holdup of the Union Federal Savings and Loan Association Coltsville branch in nearby Pittsfield.

Jamboree East open

An aerial bombardment of fireworks signaled the some 40,000 scouts gathered at flagpoles at 24 campsites on the 2,500-acre jamboree site to join in hoisting their flags.

Addressing selected scouts from each of the 1,700 troops were Chief Scout Executive Alden Barber; Robert Reneker, national president; Ken Beale Jr., youth representative on the national executive board; and Eagle Scout Ed Crawley, chairman of the scout youth committee.

Chair of private enterprise attacks 'economic illiteracy'

ATLANTA, Ga. (AP) — With consumerism and the shrinking dollar baffling most Americans, Georgia State University's Chair of Private Enterprise is quietly waging war on "economic illiteracy."

Inflation, export quotas, Phase 4 and fiscal policy often are meaningless words to many until they shop at a supermarket where the prices are high and the stocks low.

"Most students do not understand how the American economy works," said Dr. Michael H. Mescon, the young professor who occupies the chair. "The private enterprise system has been very, very poorly merchandized," he said in an interview.

The concept of the chair, the first of its kind, was established 10 years ago. It has served as a model for four others at Alabama's Sanford, Texas Christian, East Carolina and Akron universities.

While most academic chairs are occupied by educators who only teach and write, Georgia State's reinstructs economics teachers on today's economy through workshops, seminars and lectures.

The chair not only is devoted to private enterprise but is financed by it. More than 200 individuals and corporations in the Atlanta area and the Southeast support it, usually with modest amounts.

The antipathy of some students toward big business is the result of the failure of business to sell and inform young people on the basic precepts which undergird American life, Mescon says.

"I like profit. I like the sound of it, I like the spelling of it," he said.

"To me, profit represents to business what bread and water are to the individual. Without them, you die. Without profit, business can't survive."

Rebozo pals subpoenaed

WASHINGTON (AP)—American Broadcasting Co. News says it has learned that the Senate Watergate committee has subpoenaed close associates of President Nixon's close friend, Bebe Rebozo.

ABC News quoted sources close to the Senate committee as saying Rebozo, himself, will be summoned for questioning in the near future.

But ABC News said it learned subpoenas ordered several board members of the Rebozo bank to appear, along with bank records, for questioning by the committee staff next week.

Official sources confirm, ABC News said, that the Senate investigators are checking reports that huge sums in illegal campaign contributions were "laundered" through gambling casinos in the Bahamas with the cash routed through Miami. The network said Rebozo's associates are being asked to explain their role, if any, in such transactions.

More subpoenas are expected when the committee turns its attention to reports that still other campaign contributions were "laundered" through Las Vegas Nev., gambling casinos, ABC News said.

Illinois town lives in America's past

GALENA, Ill. (AP) — A thirsty hitchhiker from New York once stopped for beer at a tavern on the outskirts of Galena, Ill., and decided he must have stepped into a time warp.

The entire bar was decorated with pictures of famous New York Yankees—Babe Ruth, Lou Gehrig, Joe DiMaggio, Phil Rizzuto. Only a pair of relative newcomers, Mickey Mantle and Roger Maris, gave evidence that the 1950's and 60's had ever existed.

A walk to the center of town convinced the traveler that Galena wasn't living in an earlier part of the century—most of it was actually living in the age of Abner Doubleday.

Galena, a town of some 4,000 in the extreme northwestern corner of Illinois, takes its name from the lead ore which was mined nearby and which brought the town to wealth and importance in the 1840's.

It takes most of its historic fame from being the home of Ulysses S. Grant and the site of his ill-fated saddlery shop.

Today, however, Galena's main drawing point has become itself. It contains more period homes and shops than Williamsburgh, Va., did before its restoration.

The stone ante-bellum houses from the mining days and the riverboat gothic fronts from Galena's time as a Mississippi River port draw an estimated 500,000 tourists each summer and fall.

The town has also become a center for the antique trade in the Midwest—leaving some visitors with the impression that every other store is selling pewterware or butter churns.

Efforts in recent years to attract modern light industry and commerce to Galena have met little success—often being opposed by a large number of residents who do not wish to sacrifice the town's 19th century charm.

Some housewives have complained, however, that it's impossible to buy even a new set of bedsheets downtown.

Nevertheless, just a stroll down the municipal steps or an autumn glimpse of the town from the surrounding hills might make up for a lot to anyone tired of the 1970's.

Wallowing in Watergate

President Nixon's unfortunate remark, "Let others wallow in Watergate," may return to haunt him. The implication of this remark is that there is something disreputable and ignoble about the hearings of the Senate committee investigating campaign practices. It is an implication which does not stand up under scrutiny.

On the contrary, distasteful though the Watergate hearings may be, they serve the high purpose of bringing the truth to light. Additionally, the hearings fulfull an educational function in a way that could not be matched by any other proceeding in or out of the courts.

This educational function is of the utmost importance. The hearings' moments of drama are interlarded with tedium and reiterated triviality; no one can deny that. But in the end, many millions of Americans will have been given some insight into the wrongdoing and deceit, and contemptuous disregard for the vital principle of government by laws and not men, which the Senate investigation is spreading on the record.

The present hearings often are compared with the McCarthy hearings a couple of decades ago. In an important sense, what we are witnessing now is of even greater significance.

Through the McCarthy experience we learned that demagogery could breed such fear and near-hysteria as to result in the callous trampling of individual rights. Through Watergate we are learning that men whose zeal for power outweighs their regard for fundamental principles of morality and law can undermine our institutions of government.

By exposing the worst episode of this kind in American history, the Senate hearings perform a service beyond price. So let us "wallow in Watergate" until the full record is laid bare.

THESE DAYS . . . by John Chamberlain

Nixon has own Pumpkin Papers

On Aug. 3, 1948, Whittaker Chambers told a Congressional committee that Alger Hiss, who had been one of Franklin D. Roosevelt's advisers at the Yalta Conference, had allegedly been a member of a Communist underground in the State Department prior to World War II.

Among the congressmen who believed Chambers — "Uncle Whit," as he called him — was Richard M. Nixon. With the help of Bert Andrews of the New York Herald-Tribune, Rep. Nixon pushed the case that led to Hiss's incarceration for perjury. Chambers' famous "Pumpkin Papers" — the microfilm of State Department documents that sustained his case — helped nail Hiss's hide to the wall.

The whole thing is ironic. Now Nixon himself is the indirect object of a congressional investigation. Like Chambers, he has his own "Pumpkin Papers," the tapes of those White House conversations that may possibly reveal much about Watergate and the subsequent cover-up.

ALGER HISS, who is still around, obviously has hopes that if Nixon is discredited by the White House tapes, it will create a most favorable atmosphere for bringing credibility to the claim that Chambers perpetrated a gigantic fraud back in 1948. At least one book has been written to prove that Chambers was a sinister hoaxster, and others are said to be in the works.

Hiss himself has been writing opposite-the-editorial page material for the New York Times, claiming innocence of the charges that he passed secret papers to the Communists in the Thirties.

Naturally, if the 25-year-old verdict in the Hiss-Chambers case were to be overturned, it would deal Richard Nixon a most grievous wound. It would prove that the issue which first vaulted a young California congressman to a prominance that led to two terms in the White House was a blatant phony.

Hiss is evidently poised to make a good try to prove that he was framed by such ugly devices as "forgery by typewriter." I have no way of knowing whether you could actually forge a typed document by tinkering with a typewriter's keys, but the effort to show that Whittaker Chambers was a Dostoevskyan frame-up artist must fall apart on Chambers' own character.

Isaac Don Levine, who persuaded Chambers to go to Assistant Secretary of State Adolf Berle in September of 1938 to tell what he knew of Soviet espionage in Washington, knew Chambers as well as anybody knew him. In his recent memoirs, "Eyewitness to Hsitory," Levine offers a most vivid and circumstantial portrayal of Chambers as a troubled and tender man who tried to warn the U.S. government of dangerous spy activity in the State Department without, however, seriously incriminating Alger Hiss or any other friend. Chambers was always the most reluctant of witnesses.

I CAN TESTIFY to this from my own experience.

I happened to be in Chambers' office at Time, Inc., in 1948 when a batch of afternoon newspapers including the New York Sun was brought to his desk. On the front page of the Sun a story by Edward Nellor, as I remember it, urged the House Committee on Un-American Activities to subpoena a promient editor of a news magazine to tell what he knew about Soviet infiltration in Washington. Chambers turned white when he read the story.

Knowing nothing of Chambers visit to Berle in 1938, or Chambers' own underground career, I made light of it. "You don't understand," said Whit Chambers, looking down the hall to editor Tom Matthews' office, "they don't like informers around here." It was the reluctant witness again.

THE POINT is that Chambers had no desire to be cast in the role of the professional anti-Communist. He was dragged to the witness stand. He had made a new double career for himself since his Communist courier days, splitting his time between writing for Time and running a big dairy farm in Maryland.

His children were growing up in what he considered a healthy rural atmosphere, knowing nothing of the days when their father, pursued by Communists, had to sleep with a gun at his side. Chambers wanted "out" on the whole Communist business, even out on a role as an "anti."

The forthcoming pro-Hiss books will have to prove a malevolence that obviously was never there. Moreover, how could a man who had to produce long articles for Time and Life — in addition to other taxing editorial chores and simutaneously take care of a big herd of cows — have had the energy to plot the most intricate frame-up in history?

I think Nixon is safe enough from the charge of having ridden to fame and the White House on a phony issue. But this does not mean that his own "Pumpkin Papers" will be as good as those hidden in the pumpkin on Chambers' Maryland farm. There is a distinct possibility that Richard Nixon has framed himself.

Letters To The Editor

EDITOR, RECORD-HERALD:

I want to explain the situation in regard to the trees which we had hoped to see by this time on our downtown streets.

The committee has fought the weather throughout all our plans. Due to the rain, the ground was too wet until the middle of June to pull the trees. By this time they could not be guaranteed.

The boxes had been completed and needed to be paid for. We had planned to put them on the street and plant flowers in them until September when we could get the trees and have them guaranteed.

I am sorry to say they have become waste baskets and it has proven a job for the committee to persuade people to protect them instead of abusing them. Why flowers were not planted when they were first put out I do not know, because that was what the committee had ordered.

Since it is so late now— I ordered that we save that extra expense this summer and after the trees are planted then use the saved expense and plant flowers around the trees in the spring.

If the public will bear with us—by next summer our downtown will have beautiful trees and flower boxes which will discourage their being used as waste baskets.

There were many things we had to condiser when placing these boxes. We tried to arrange them evenly down Court Street. Two merchants objected to having the boxes near their store and one merchant, without our knowledge, moved one where cars are hitting it. They are expensive but luckily well-made. We have had the one box moved. We had to place them where cars would not back into them, where they would not obstruct windows and near the waste baskets already on the street.

The trees are Washington Hawthorne and will have white blossoms in the spring and red berries in the fall. We have Christmas lights to be on them at that time. They have thorns which we hope will protect them.

We spent much time on the selection of the type of tree and learned the Hawthorne was the most likely to grow well in boxes.

Many of the trees are memorials to people who have contributed much to our community in the past.

I would like to see our side streets with trees also. It has been a task to cover Court Street, but if someone would like to give a tree, please call the Chamber of Commerce.

"I HAVE BECOME FASCINATED WITH THE WAY SAM ERVIN'S EYEBROWS ARCH UP AND DOWN."

NEW YORK (AP) — One of Harvard's English professors told Robin Moore:

"I would advise you against taking any further courses in creative writing. Your talents don't lie in that field."

That hurt Moore, future author of such best sellers as "The Green Berets," "The French Connection," and "The Happy Hooker."

"What hurt even more was that my other English teachers had the same low opinion of my writing ability," he recalled.

So at first, after getting his degree in 1949, Moore dutifully tried to find greener pastures in other fields. He tried to learn the hotel business under the tutelage of his father, Robert Lowell Moore, board chairman of the Sheraton Hotel chain.

He didn't like it. Then, following his urge for adventure, he says he did some gun running in Cuba — "first for Castro, then against him" — ran a bar called "The Teahouse of the Blue Lagoon" in Jamaica, and worked as a television producer and science fiction script writer in New York.

But all the time he kept churning out novels based on his own experiences.

"I think I wrote six failures in a row," he admitted. It looked as if his Harvard teachers had pegged him right.

His luck turned when his novel, "The Country Team," a story based on CIA operations in Southeast Asia, was sold to a paperback publisher for $250,000 after a meager sale in hard covers.

Since then he has hit nothing but jackpots with his tales of military derring—do and exposures of underworld profiteering in drugs and prsotitution. His paperbook sales alone run into a dozen millions.

His latest novel, "The Fifth Estate," which deals with an international crime syndicate's bid to control the American presidency, was sold in advance of hard cover production to a paperback publisher for $340,000. Moore is already working on the screen treatment.

Woman receives calls about traffic tickets

CLIFTON, N.J. (AP) — Rose Alexander has been getting a few more calls than usual since police in nearby Newark began using a new batch of traffic tickets early this week.

Ten thousand tickets were printed with the wrong telephone number, Miss Alexander said she's found some new friends but has also talked to a lot of irate people and one drunk who refused to hang up.

"I don't mind being popular, but this is ridiculous," said Miss Alexander, who is single.

Yesterday's Answer 8-3

DAILY CRYPTOQUOTE – Here's how to work it:
is L O N G F E L L O W

One letter simply stands for another. In this sample A is used for the three L's, X for the two O's, etc. Single letters, apostrophes, the length and formation of the words are all hints. Each day the code letters are different.

Dear Abby:

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

Divorcee took his pillow talk seriously

DEAR ABBY: I am a married woman who has been deeply involved with a married man for four years. He has children and so have I.

I divorced my husband thinking he would divorce his wife and marry me. I can't honestly say that he promised to divorce his wife, but he said so many things like: "If we were both free, I would marry you in a minute." and: "I have never loved anyone the way I love you." I took it to mean he would divorce his wife and marry me. I was wrong.

My husband never suspected a thing until I made a full confession. Now that he knows the truth he will have nothing to do with me. Was I foolish?

VIRGO

DEAR VIRGO: You were. Your mistake was talking pillow talk seriously. Actually, it's nothing more than a lot of horsefeathers.

DEAR ABBY: I am so angry I want to scream. I'm expecting my first baby after wanting one for five years. I am only six weeks along, so naturally we haven't told anyone yet. Not even our parents.

Yesterday I attended a church luncheon. Afterwards, the chairman stood up and said, "The floral centerpiece is for one of our members who is expecting her first baby after wanting one so long!" Then she looked right at me.

Abby, I must have turned the color of a tomato. Then all the buzzing and chattering started. My mother and mother-in-law were both there looking surprised and hurt. I was so upset I wanted to run.

Neither my husband nor I told a soul, but yesterday he did bring home a used crib, and somebody must have seen him carry it into the houee.

Why do people have to be so nosy? Now it's going to seem like such a long pregnancy. I can just hear them asking me the last two months, "Are YOU still walking around?"

At the bottom of your column it says, "You'll feel better if you get it off your chest." Thanks for listening.

BURNING IN DETROIT

DEAR BURNING: And you'll feel better when you get it off. Thanks for writing.

DEAR ABBY: I love my in-laws, but they are my problem. My husband and I have two children, 6 and 3. They are the only grandchildren my in-laws have (which is probably why they spoil them the way they do).

My husband travels a lot, and I like to go with him for a few days every few months. This keeps our marriage healthy.

My in-laws beg to keep our children when we're gone, but after the children have been with their grandparents it takes me a week to get them to mind.

My in-laws let the kiddies stay up as late as they want to, and they feed them candy and soft drinks between meals. Also, when I say something, my word is law, and I don't put up with any backtalk. The grandparents never discipline them, and when the kids talk back, they laugh and think it's cute.

I don't want to seem ungrateful, Abby, but I resent my in-laws spoiling all the work I've put into training my children. I have stressed my rules several times, but they don't pay attention to them.

How can I drive my point home without getting them angry with me? If I hired a sitter my in-laws would be terribly hurt.

TOO SOFT

DEAR TOO: Your signature sums up the reason for your problem. Toughen up, and tell your in-laws that either they must follow your rules, or you'll not leave your children with them.

African missionaries for U.S.

By RUSS PULLIAM
Associated Press Writer

NEWARK, N.J. (AP) — An American agency that customarily has sent missionaries to Africa is taking steps to bring African missionaries to black urban areas in the United States.

"Urban America's needs are as great or greater than most of the underdeveloped countries of the world," explains Tom Hopler, who is directing the urban ministry of the African Inland Mission AIM.

"I think the other missions ought to wake up to the innercity mission field," the Rev. Grover Wilcox adds. He is pastor of Newark's Calvary Gospel Church, which is cooperating with Hopler on the AIM urban project.

Like other missions to Africa and other nonindustrial parts of the world, the 75-year-old African Inland Mission traditionally has sent white Americans out as missionaries.

But as churches in Africa have developed their own leadership and strength, African Christian leaders have rebelled against Western cultural domination by foreign missionaries.

So many missions have searched for new directions— such as providing technical assistance and turning over the leadership and control of churches to Africans.

African churches also have developed their own missionary programs, although most of their efforts are limited to other African countries.

AIM's own search for new directions has led to a unique attempt to set up an inner city ministry in America for Africans. Recognizing the distrust that blacks in urban areas often have toward whites, the AIM project assumes that Africans will have more credibility with blacks.

"Many black Americans believe that Christianity is a white man's religion," explains Bill Chavis, a black law student who is working in the AIM project at Calvary. "But black Africans can show Christianity's universality and show that blacks have played a role in the growth of Christianity."

For example, "Africa has always had a large part in the history of Christianity, especially northern Africa. This is something we need to tell American blacks about Christianity," Chavis says.

An offshoot of the AIM project is Today's Africa to America, started by Simon Kahunya, a student at Gordon Conwell Seminary in Massachusetts from Kenya in East Africa.

His project is an effort to encourage other African Christians to come to the United States as missionaries. He developed the idea from his own experience as AIM's first missionary from Africa, working in the Calvary Gospel church.

"I found that American blacks are seeking the African identity, culturally, economically, religiously," he says. "We find that American missionaries who have been in Africa have not been able to project the truth of the African culture to the American people."

African Inland Mission is also actively recruiting American blacks as missionaries to Africa. "We're basically a white American organization," Hopler says. "We have not had blacks as missionaries because simply we did not want them."

This week brings to a close a series of four small group sessions on use of the pressure canner. Special thanks to the Community Action Homemaker Aides for bringing in homemakers who were ready with many questions.

QUESTION: Is a pressure canner necessary to make foods safe?

ANSWER: Yes, it is necessary for low acid vegetables like beets, corn, peas, beans and pumpkin or squash. Most fruits and tomatoes that are high in acid do not require pressure canner cooking. A hot water bath canner is used for other than low acid foods. Open kettle and oven canning methods are not recommended.

QUESTION: Are old mayonnaise and pickle jars satisfactory for canning?

ANSWER: No. These jars are not standard in size and lids available do not give a tight seal. Some of these jars are so light in weight, they may break under home methods.

QUESTION: Can a pressure saucepan be used for canning?

ANSWER: It can be used only if it registers 10 pounds pressure and then only for pints. An additional 20 minutes must be allowed on all products because the saucepan heats and cools faster than a canner. Improvise a rack for the jars.

QUESTION: Why did you heat the beans and the liquid before processing in the pressure canner?

ANSWER: Unless both food and liquid are not, too much air is trapped inside when it is sealed. "Knifing out" air bubbles is also done for this reason.

QUESTION: Why don't jars seal?

ANSWER: Most canning is done with two-piece lids where the sealing takes place at the top rim. Check to see there are no nicks or uneven places on this edge. Wipe with a damp cloth after the jar is filled to be sure the rim is absolutely clean and free from anything. Occasionally a jar will be a non-sealer caused by imperfection not visible to the eye. When this is discovered, discard the jar.

QUESTION: I have been told that low-acid vegetables should be heated before tasting. Is this true?

ANSWER: Yes, to avoid any risk of dangerous food poisoning boil all low-acid vegetables, 10 to 15 minutes before tasting. Greens and corn should be boiled 20 minutes and stirred during the process since they tend to pack together.

QUESTION: Are old milk cartons and coffee cans O.K. to use for containers for storing food in the freezer?

ANSWER: No. Milk cartons are not clean and free from contamination. Coffee cans are not lacquered inside for protection against liquids and foods containing natural acids and foods stored in them may become discolored. Freezer containers should be clean and moisture vapor proof.

ANSWER: Yes, Blanching of vegetables is essential to check the enzyme activity in the vegetable while it is stored in the freezer. Unless vegetables are blanched, the foods will develop off-color and off-flavor.

QUESTION: How long should vegetables be blanched?

ANSWER: The time varies for each vegetable. Check our O.S.U. Bulletin No. 369 "Freezing and Using Vegetables, Fruits, and Prepared Foods".

If you haven't stopped in for our free packet of food preservation bulletins, do it now before the supply is gone.

Have you had your pressure canner gauge tested within the last three years? If not, do call and make an appointment. It takes 45 minutes to test. You may leave it and pick it up the next day if you prefer.

Butterscotch Pudding Beverage

FRUIT AND SPICE POT ROAST

It's cooked in a bag!

1 cup pitted prunes
1/2 cup raisins
3- to 4-pound blade beef pot roast
2 tablespoons mixed pickling spice
2 cups water
1/3 cup cider vinegar
1 teaspoon salt
1 tablespoon cornstarch
1/4 cup water

Put prunes and raisins in cooking film bag or wrap closing one end if using wrap. Place in baking pan. Put pot roast on fruit. Put pickling spice in cheesecloth and secure; put in bag. Combine water, vinegar and salt; pour over all. Fasten and vent bag or wrap as directed on package. Bake in a 350-degree oven until meat is tender — 2 1/2 to 3 hours. Cut bag open; remove roast to heated platter. Skim off excess fat from liquid and discard pickling spice. Pour liquid into pan and bring to a boil; stir in cornstarch mixed until smooth with water. Heat to boiling, stirring constantly; boil and stir 2 minutes. Serve with pot roast. Makes 4 to 6 servings.

For a change of pace

By JOAN O'SULLIVAN

SICK of cooking the same old thing? We all get in that mood now and again, and it's a sure sign that a change-of-pace menu is in order. Here are three suggestions to try when you feel like something different. They are meatless main dishes that are usually delicious.

Good, earthy potatoes, still one of your best busy at the supermarket, are the basis for a potato pudding that bakes to a crusty, golden-brown and unmolds hot onto a platter for serving. Surround the pudding with your choice of vegetables and dinner is served:

SWISS POTATO PUDDING

3 tablespoons butter
3 pounds potatoes (8-10 medium), peeled
1 pound Switzerland Swiss cheese, coarsely grated
6 green onions, sliced
2 teaspoons salt
1 teaspoon white pepper
½ teaspoon nutmeg
Paprika

Preheat oven to 450 F.

Use all 3 tablespoons of butter to grease the bottom and sides of a 2-quart charlotte mold or casserole.

In large bowl, mix well-grated potatoes, cheese, onions, salt, pepper and nutmeg. Pour into greased casserole. Do not pack down. If all of mixture does not fit, add remainder after casserole has baked about 5 minutes since shrinkage will occur. Bake casserole one hour. Sprinkle with paprika.

Makes 6 servings.

Steam or boil the vegetables of your choice in the smallest possible amount of water so they come to the table full of flavor, vitamins and minerals. Then spark them with:

ROSY DRESSING FOR VEGETABLES

1 can (8 ounces) tomato sauce
2 tablespoons yogurt
2 tablespoons tarragon vinegar or lemon juice
1 tablespoon salad oil
1 tablespoon minced green onion
1 teaspoon lemon pepper marinade

Makes about 1¼ cups.

HALIBUT ALMANDINE

2 pounds fresh or frozen North Pacific halibut steaks
Salt and pepper
one-third cup melted butter
½ cup ground almonds
Juice of ½ lemon
Parlsey and lemon slice for garnish

Sprinkle halibut steaks with salt and pepper.

JEFFERSONVILLE — The Fayette County Farm Bureau Cooperative Association is building a 600,000 - bushel addition to its Jeffersonville grain elevator, according to Robert T. Owens, Rt. 1, Jeffersonville, president of the board.

Construction, by Stout Brothers Construction Co. of Sylvania, is expected to be completed in time for the fall harvest. This will give the Jeffersonville elevator a total capacity of 1,150,000 bushels.

"There were several factors causing the board of directors to decide to increase the storage capacity at Jeffersonville," said Clarence Cooper, manager of the local cooperative.

"The railroad car shortage is getting more acute. It is almost impossible to get cars when needed," Cooper said. "Ever year since 1965 we have needed at least 300,000 bushels additional storage.

"By building at Jeffersonville, we avoid the extra cost of drying, loading and unloading equipment. The present elevator has all the necessary equipment to handle the additional storage," he explained.

COOPER INDICATED there will be 10 large bins with smaller connecting bins between them. The additional storage will be slip-form construction similar to the first unit that was built at Jeffersonville on Ohio 41 in 1965. Cost of the 600,000 bushel addition will be $557,000.

Financing will be handled through two main sources according to Board President Owens. The Louisville Bank for Cooperatives has agreed to loan the local farmer cooperative $375,000 for the construction of the new storage, providing $150,000 in stocks and bonds are sold in the Fayette County community. The remaining costs will be paid out of the cooperative operating funds.

The cooperative was organized by farmers as the Fayette Marketing Association in 1928, to market eggs, poultry, whole milk, and cream. In 1936 it was incorporated under the Ohio cooperative laws as the Fayette County Farm Bureau Cooperative Association for both marketing and purchasing. At that time a petroleum bulk plant was built on Delaware Street and the cooperative was into the business of delivering power fuels to farmers.

Three years later the association obtained the marketing facilities for eggs and poultry in Charleston, W. Va. The operations were moved to Washington C. H. The cooperative continued to have salesmen selling eggs and poultry to retail outlets in southern West Virginia until the middle 50's.

OVER THE YEARS, due to changes in farming operations the cooperative added and discontinued a number of services. For example, in 1944 the Fayette Producers Association and a food locker plant were purchased. This processing and freezing plant was operated by the association until 1951.

It was also in 1944 that the cooperative outgrew the facility on Market Street, and the board of directors purchased land on Fayette Street. In 1946 the association built on this property and started handling farm machinery.

It was also in 1944 that the cooperative outgrew the facility on Market Street, and the board of directors purchased land on Fayette Street. In 1946 the association built on this property and started handling farm machinery.

That same year the board of directors purchased the elevator of the Gwinn Milling Co. of Jeffersonville. A year later a lease was arranged with Gwinn Milling for the operation of the elevator at Washington C. H. Since then the Cooperative has purchased the Gwinn elevator in Washington C. H.

The present office and store building on S. Fayette Street was built in 1949, and the cooperative moved its office and produce business to this location. Later the Town and Country Store took the place of this produce business.

SINCE THEN a number of changes have taken place including fertilizer warehousing and the dry application of straight materials. The Elm Street fertilizer facility was completed in 1957, and the next year saw anhydrous ammonia tanks installed.

Two fires destroyed the Jeffersonville feed mill at different times. The first one occuring in 1951. After the Jeffersonville plant was rebuilt the second fire destroyed it in 1967. That same year the bulk fertilizer facilities and anhydrous ammonia tanks were built and installed where the Jeffersonville elevator was constructed in 1965. In June of 1969 a new feed plant was built beside the grain elevator.

The last addition to the Farm Bureau Cooperative Association's operations is the retail fertilizer facility located on Ohio 753, southeast of Washington C. H.

THE FAYETTE COUNTY Farm Bureau Cooperative's net worth has risen steadily from its $11,000 in 1936 to well over the million dollar mark in 1972. In addition to the Jeffersonville and Washington C. H. locations, there is also a branch at Greenfield. The cooperative now has assets of well over two million dollars. Fayette County's largest farm supply business and handler of grain.

The association has never missed a dividend or interest payment on investments or securities. In 37 years the cooperative's earnings have totaled about 1½ million dollars with average earnings over those years of a little over $38,000.

"Fayette County's agricultural future is healthy and sound. Agriculture and its related industries furnish more income for Fayette County than all other industry combined. The Fayette County Farm Bureau Cooperative Association, owned and backed by Fayette County farmers, will continue to play an active part in this industry," the announcement said.

TV Viewing

By JAY SHARBUTT
AP Television Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — "The Corner Bar," a summer series that premiered last year on the ABC Television network, is back with us tonight on ABC. Its only virtue is that it may drive you to drink.

The series is set in a neighborhood tavern in Manhattan. Gabe Dell, who ran the pub last summer, is gone. Comedienne Anne Meara and Gene Roche have replaced him as co-owners of the place.

The tavern, in the tradition of television taverns, is full of warm, wacky characters who juice a lot and kid each other. But tonight's premiere show is to comedy what a short beer is to serious drinking.

It spends a few long minutes establishing the regulars at the bar—the goofy actor, the nononsense cab driver, the tipsy lawyer and the kindly old waiter. It also reveals that Frank Flynn (Roche) served with the 105th Infantry Division in Korea during the war there.

He lets on that he was quite a ladies' man in Korea and was known to close friends as "filet of Seoul." Hokay.

Now, the plot thins. A 20-year-old Oriental lad, name of Lin, shows up at the tavern. The regulars at first think he's from the Red Chinese embassy around the corner. But they are wrong.

"I come from Korea," says Lin (played by Frank Young). And, he goes on to say, "I look for man. He was in 105th Division."

Well, it seems he's looking for his father, who of course turns out to be ex-Sgt. Frank Flynn. There is alarm, surprise, denials and finally acceptance of the fact that as Flynn sows, so has Flynn reaped.

"My son—Lin Flynn," the publican says with a proud smile, pledging to send his newfound son to college and all that.

Alas, it turns out that Lin is a flim-flam man. He's been contacting all former members of the 105th Division who knew his mother during the Korean war and pulling the "father" dodge on them.

Flynn learns this from an old pal from the 105th; before you know it, there are about five "fathers" confronting Lin when he returns to the bar after a shopping spree with Miss Meara.

He confesses all, promises to pay back his ill-gotten gains and say: "I now realize I haven't been honorable."

"Lin—the 105th Division hasn't been honorable," Miss Meara says sadly.

On the positive side, Ron Carey as the actor and Bill Fiore as the lawyer are scenestealing standouts in a good cast that does its best with a dog of a script.

CBS-TV has a pretty good alternative of its own on tonight at 9 p.m. EDT—"On the Road with Charles Kuralt." It's mainly a collection of the "Road" piece he's had on the CBS Evening News.

If you've never seen any of his TV vignettes about life in America, you might find it worth watching, Kuralt basically is doing the same thing the late Ernie Pyle did so well some 35 years ago—simply hitting the road, talking with people and reporting whatever comes up.

Ohio Perspective

Rep. McClaskey proves 'handyman'

BY PERRY SMITH
Associated Press Writer

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — If Vernal Riffe is the "mover" of legislation in the Ohio General Assembly and Oakley Collins is the "killer" of bills, then Rep. Walter D. McClaskey has got to be known as the "handyman."

Riffe, D-89 New Boston, is the speak pro tem. And he does move legislation. Collins, R-92 Ironton, a freshman in the House after long tenure in the Senate, still has the contacts to kill some legislation.

But McClaskey, a veterinarian, has provided services beyond the call of those demanded for the normal legislator.

Who else, for example, would provide the linament for the ailing arm of Rep. Tom Fries, D-35 Dayton, a one-time major league baseball player.

McClaskey, being the closest thing the General Assembly has to a doctor, said "I have to know where they hurt because my clients can't tell me," he says, paraphrasing Will Rogers. He has volunteered his services in other areas.

He's not in trouble with the Ohio Medical Association and animals love him. But he is worried about a note he found in his car from a guard in the House parking lot.

The guard asked if he could recommend something to remove warts from his wrist.

"I'll have to ask him to go over to Senate parking lot," McClaskey deadpanned, "since I'm not allowed to make House calls."

Your Horoscope

By FRANCES DRAKE

Look in the section in which your birthday comes and find what your outlook is, according to the stars.

SATURDAY, AUG. 4

ARIES
(March 21 to April 20)

TAURUS
(April 21 to May 21)

Your day to get ahead. An associate of importance will be surprisingly helpful when asked for advice. Romance favored, too.

GEMINI
(May 22 to June 21)

Don't let a.m. disappointments get you down. Good progress indicated during the hours after noon. Try to force the pace.

CANCER
(June 22 to July 23)

Take a second look at your objectives — and recognize your limitations. You may be aiming too high for the present.

LEO
(July 24 to Aug. 23)

VIRGO
(Aug. 24 to Sept. 23)

Some situations will be beyond your control now, so don't try to solve them on your own initiative. Ask advice from a trustworthy source.

LIBRA
(Sept. 24 to Oct. 23)

SCORPIO
(Oct. 24 to Nov. 22)

As with Libra, you, too, may be creatively inspired. Do-it-yourself jobs should turn out far better than you anticipate.

SAGITTARIUS
(Nov. 23 to Dec. 21)

This should be a highly stimulating weekend. Both travel and social activities should prove enlivening. Also, there's a hint of new romance in the air.

CAPRICORN
(Dec. 22 to Jan. 20)

Watch the budget now. Reject any ideas for entertainment which you can't really afford. Tendency is to be reckless.

AQUARIUS
(Jan. 21 to Feb. 19)

Don't plan any hectic activities. Day will be more satisfactory if you can get off by yourself and do some constructive thinking.

PISCES
(Feb. 20 to March 20)

Don't fret if it becomes necessary to sacrifice some leisure time to business matters. Results will more than make up for your disappointment.

YOU BORN TODAY are a determined, hard-working individual; usually highly efficient and self-contained. You could succeed in the theater but are less dramatic than many others of your Sign. Your brilliant wit, however, would make you an excellent comedian and, with your love of music, the musical comedy field would be an idea choice of career. Other areas in which you could excel: the law, medicine, sculpture, designing or decorating. Magnetic force drives you, attracts success, admirers. Don't offset this by trying to dominate those about you.

Canine survivor of plane crash has new home

James E. Hart, assistant shelter superintendent, said a prospective Dexter, Mo., person rejected the beagle on a trial basis and that its new owner chose to remain anonymous.

"We still don't know whether the dog will see or lose sight in its right eye," Hart said. The beagle was found amid broken suitcases and scattered parcels two days after the plane crashed, claiming 38 lives.

Woman takes oath as citizen at 72

MIAMI (AP) — Through she sat in a wheelchair, Mrs. Maria Ramos stood out from the other immigrants who were being sworn in as Americans.

Mrs. Ramos, 72, had waited 12 years for this day and she wasn't going to let a lung operation keep her from becoming a U.S. citizen.

So she managed to persuade doctors to let her take a couple of hours off from the hospital to take the oath Wednesday from her wheelchair.

Lester L. Coleman, M.D.

Dizziness Hits Septuagenarian

I get attacks of dizziness, especially when I suddenly lie down or sit up. I am 70 years old.

My doctor says that at my age this is not unusual and that the cause is arteriosclerosis.

Can anything be done about this or must I just learn to live with it? I worry that it will get worse.

Mr. H. F., Nev.

Dear Mr. F.:

Most people in your age group have some narrowing of the blood vessels that lead from the heart, through the neck, and go to the brain.

In addition to arteriosclerosis, there is a loss of elasticity of the blood vessels. The result is that any sudden change of position momentarily deprives the brain of sufficient blood and oxygen.

When this is the cause of the sensation you describe, patients are advised to avoid sudden rapid changes of position. When they sit up from a lying-down position, they are told to sit up slowly, and thus allow the blood vessels to the brain to adjust gradually to the new change of position.

It is now possible to study, with a great deal of accuracy, the circulation of the blood in the brain.

Some of the most ingenious discoveries in the last decade revolve about biochemical studies that pinpoint the exact blood vessels in the brain responsible for poor circulation.

Certainly, you must continue to be under constant observation so that recommendations can be made to you to keep you in the most comfortable state possible.

In far more advanced cases, brilliant surgical methods are now used to open clogged arteries in the neck.

You must not live with the shadow of fear hanging over you. This can often be more destructive than the mild condition you apparently have.

When smog and pollution hang heavy over our city I feel depressed and actually cannot perform a day's work.

Of course I am told by my friends that this is psychological.

Miss R.E., Ind.

Dear Miss E.:

Loving friends make poor medical and psychological advisors. The easiest explanation for conditions that are not understood by "armchair doctors" is the obvious one that "it's all in the mind."

Actually, a great deal of information is now being accumulated that points to a definite relationship between mental depression and high levels of pollution.

Only recently, the American Chemical Society released such a report, showing that high levels of hydrogen sulfide in the air can cause anxiety, blurring of the vision, mental depression, and dizziness.

ALBUQUERQUE, N.M. (AP)— The Rio Grande Zoo has closed following a fire that destroyed 27 animals in the children's zoo.

The damage to the city-operated facility by the Tuesday night fire was estimated at $10,000 by Rubin Rubio, administrative assistant to City Manager Herb Smith.

Rubio said the zoo will reopen when a labor dispute between the city and city workers is terminated. An estimated 1,-300 city employes, including more than 350 firemen, went on strike last Monday in a wage dispute.

Cattle reported killed

BOISE, Idaho (AP) — Two uncontrolled range fires burning in south-central Idaho have killed more than a dozen head of cattle, says the Bureau of Land Management.

The fires, which covered more than 56,000 acres by late Wednesday, were touched off Monday when a lightning storm swept across the Owyhee Desert.

Men start fires to help out deer

FRESNO (AP) — Two hundred men who normally battle fires with everything they can muster will be setting 1,000 acres of brush ablaze tonight.

But they haven't turned into firebugs. The men, under the direction of Kings River District Ranger Joe Ragsdale, are simply trying to give the North Kings Deer herd a square meal.

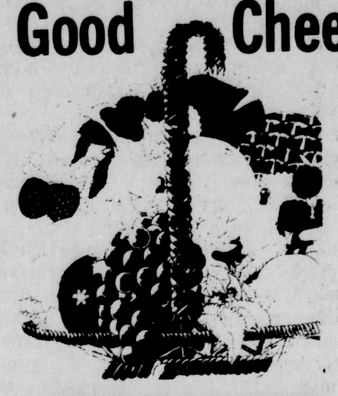

A 20-year study by wildlife biologists from the Sierra National Forest and the California Department of Fish and Game says the deer are suffering because the lack of a fire on their range for 50 years has caused their favorite foods, young lowgrowing brush grasses and herbs, to mature into tasteless brush which lacks the nutritional value of younger greenery.

Quadruplets well; now 5 weeks old

GIFU, Japan (AP) — Quadruplets born to the 23-year-old wife of a local farmer are now five weeks old and getting along fine, hospital authorities reported today.

The boy and three girls were born prematurely to Misao Hachiya on June 26. The boy weighed 5½ pounds and the girls between 3½ pounds and 4½ pounds each.

Phone firm talks hit new deadlock

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Contract talks between the General Telephone Co. of Ohio and 2,800 striking employes broke down Thursday.

Federal mediator Howard Hughes said practically no progress was made during a fifth bargaining session since the strike by Communication Workers of America began July 16.

"At this point, I am not optimistic," Hughes said hours before the negotiations ended.

Robert Fletcher, company vice president of personnel, said both sides were deadlocked over wages and the union's demand for an agency shop.

Martin Hughes, a union vice president, said his membership "is not wedded to any particular per cent increase" in wages. He said he wants the company to meet pay scales similar to other independent telephone firms.

About 150 installers, switchmen, operators and craftsmen at Minerva are expected to vote on a new contract with the company Sunday.

Details of the agreement with Local 642 of the International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers were not announced.

Newark officers appeal dismissal

NEWARK, Ohio (AP)—Twenty-one city policemen who were fired under the state's Ferguson Act, which prohibits strikes by public employes, filed appeals Thursday with Safety Director Russell Payne.

The safety director said he will hold hearings on the dismissals next week.

The officers called in sick Sunday, reportedly to press their demands for higher wages, and Mayor Richard Baker fired them the next day. Civil Service examinations for their replacements are scheduled Aug. 20.

Crash survivor faces amputation

BOSTON (AP) — The only survivor of Tuesday's crash of a Delta Airlines DC9 at Logan Airport was to have his legs amputated today in an effort to increase his chances of survival.

Air Force Sgt. Leopold Chouinard, 20, of Marshfield, Vt., was reported still in very critical condition, on the danger list as Massachusetts General Hospital early today with third degree burns over 80 per cent of his body.

Doctors said Chouinard's legs were the most badly burned parts of his body, and removal should help his survival chances. Some of the bones in his legs were also mangled in the crash in which 88 died.

Jeff Council gets sewer work report

JEFFERSONVILLE — Reports from the consulting engineer on the progress of construction of the village sewer system topped the regular meeting for members of the Jeffersonville Village Council Thursday night.

M. M. Schirtzinger and Associates, of Chillicothe, the village's consulting engineers on the sewer system construction project, reported to Council members that completion is anticipated prior to Sept. 1. The engineers reported that work has been postponed because of a delay in obtaining materials.

The Chillicothe firm also reported that repaving of village streets is scheduled to start Aug. 16-20 and hopefully will be completed prior to the opening of school.

Mayor Donald Morrow said three persons expressed interest in extending sewer lines to the Washington C. H. side of I-71. Morrow said the village will not extend sewer lines at the expense of Jeffersonville residents, but expressed willingness to extend the lines at the expense of those receiving the service.

AN ORDINANCE setting a rate with Dayton Power and Light Co. for the village utilities was approved by Council. The rate ordinance is for a five-year period.

Morrow expressed displeasure to George Winkle, of DP&L who attended Thursday's meeting, concerning the manner in which the utility has repaved streets following the installation of gas mains. Winkle told Morrow that these matters would be corrected in the future.

Council directed the village solicitor to inform the Sever-Williams Construction Co., Washington C. H., that work on the waterworks improvement project must be completed with the next 30 days. The work remaining includes installing fence around the sludge pits.

NELSON BAKER, a member of the Jeffersonville Village Council since 1960, resigned that position Thursday. Morrow appointed Baker to a four-year term on the Village Board of Public Affairs.

Morrow said Baker will assume the new duties effective Aug. 6 and he expects the vacant Council seat to be filled by the next Council meeting, which is scheduled Sept. 6.

In other matters, Safety Director Lindy Sharrett was directed to ask John Short of Staunton, to locate a site for a new well and proceed with drilling operations.

Multi-county burglary ring brings charges

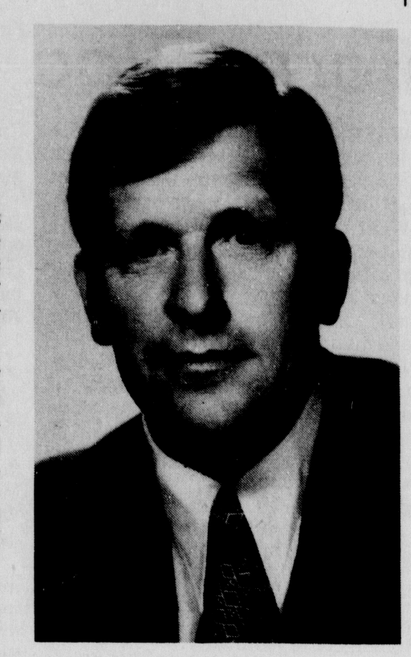

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Franklin County Prosecutor George Smith said Thursday a special grand jury has returned more than 140 indictments against 25 persons in connection with a multi-county burglary ring.

Smith said the indictments were being processed and will be served by Aug. 13.

Police have gone to several Ohio cities during the course of the investigation and have been checking into burglary reports dating back five years.

CUDAHY EXECUTIVE — Cudahy Foods Co. announces that Richard A. Turner has been named general manager for the company's Cheese Division. He succeeds L.W. Moss who retired in July after more than 45 years of service with the company. Turner will work out of Harrodsburg, Kentucky, the new location for the Cheese Division headquarters. In April, Turner was named assistant general manager for the company's Cheese Division, after having served as division operations manager. He joined Cudahy in 1963.

Hinde St. burglaries net less than $30

Burglars hits three S. Hinde Street business places in late Thursday afternoon daylight, but came away with less than $30 in cash, most of it change.

The break-ins were discovered by Kenneth Ford, of Ford Trucking, 221 S. Hinde St., at 6:40 p.m. Thursday. He returned to his place of business at that time and found a desk pried open and ransacked, and a safe that had been pried upon. Nothing, however, was missing. Police said the burglars entered the building by climbing up on a truck tire they rolled under an open window.

After finding his building had been broken into, Ford went next door and found the front door to Don's Body Shop, 225 S. Hinde St., unlocked. Police said the burglars entered the body shop by climbing pipes on the north side of the building and going through an open window. About $6 in bills and change was taken from a desk, and approximately $18 in change was removed from a pop machine. Thieves apparently found the key to the machine in the desk.

Found outside the shop were 181 pennies, which, police theorized, may have been from a previous burglary.

In the process of probing the burglary at Ford Trucking, police found that the Montgomery Ward Tire Shop, 220 S. Hinde St., had been entered. The padlock on a pop machine had been pried off with a screwdriver. About $3 or $4 in change was taken from the machine. The burglars may have entered through one of two open windows.

Police also received a report of a stolen toy slide projector Thursday. Paul Woods, 1222 E. Paint St., said the projector was removed from a storage compartment in a camping trailer parked in his driveway sometime during July.

Air-conditioning bids received by commissioners

The Fayette County Board of Commissioners took no action on bids opened Thursday for the air conditioning of the Common Pleas Courtroom.

Bids received were: Fayette Heating and Cooling, $5,309; Circleville Metal Works, $6,736, and Bogan Heating and Air Conditioning, $6,707.

The commissioners granted the City of Washington $29,479.53 as its share of the $5 county permissive license tax. According to the request, the city will use $24,880 to pay on the North Street bridge project, and the balance to pay for improvements to Gergg Street and Oakland Avenue.

A request for $3,772.74 by Jeffersonville as its share of the license tax also was granted. The money is to be used for the rebuilding of Railroad Street.

12 take city service exam

Twelve men took the Civil Service examination Thursday night for prespective firemen and policemen.

City Manager Dan Wolford said 15 persons had filed applications to take the test; 7 for firemen, and 8 for policemen.

The tests were given to create an eligibility list for the two departments.

BEEF FOR NIXON — Canadian butcher Henry Federman of Toronto says he is sending President Nixon $100 worth of beefs cuts on ice. He says he is upset over the refusal of a Washington D.C., company to supply the White House with beef steaks. The Washington company blamed Nixon's economy measures for the beef shortage there and sent hamburger instead.

Ohio sewage plant engineer wins million dollar lottery

By HUGH MORGAN
Associated Press Writer

IONIA, Mich. (AP) — Frank G. Kaminski, a 57-year-old sewage plant engineer in Toledo, Ohio, has a philosophy of not depending on others for help. It made him a millionaire.

Kaminski won the $1 million top prize in the Michigan Bureau of State Lottery's millionaire drawing Thursday night. He immediately announced he would quit his $14,000-a-year job with Toledo after his shift Sunday night.

Kaminski, who has gray, wavy hair, did his self-help bit after being selected as one of the 10 finalists from 120 semi-finalist in the drawing at the Ionia Free Fair.

The finalists were brought on stage and each was given a sealed envelope, with an unknown name inside. Each was told to put it next to one of the 10 prizes, which ranged from $5,000 to $1 million.

Without hesitating, Kaminski put his envelope next to the $1 million prize. It later turned out to contain his own name.

"The reason I did it is that I'm a man that always did everything by myself, for myself," he said. "In other words, I never asked for help, outside of my wife helping. And I said, 'Boy, this is it'."

A native of Toledo, Kaminski said he worked for 26 years for the Woolson Spice Co. as a supervisor, but that the firm "folded with no pension plan."

He took various jobs, but a year ago became a "water reclamation plant operator. This is a fancy name for sewage plant." In his job, he looks after various equipment, such as diesel engines.

Kaminski, who was embraced by his wife, Hattie, after winning the $1 million, said they would buy a home somewhere in Michigan, but probably still maintain a residence in Toledo.

After the drawing, he was presented with a check for $50,-000, the first of 20 such checks he will receive every year for the next two decades.

'Farm Bloc' covers wide range

What it may mean depends on the context and, often, the crop in question. On those occasions, "grain-producing states" or "citrus states" or "dairy belt" might be more accurate descriptions.

Other means exist to delineate this "farm bloc"-lists of members of Congress who are farmers by previous occupation, hold proprietary farm or ranch interests or have significant campaign support from farm organizations, for example.

Virtually all states have some farming interests, with Rhode Island and Alaska farmers producing the least gross income nationally.

But solely on the basis of gross farm-marketing income, before government payments from more than a dozen programs, these were the top 10 farm states last year, in descending order: California, Iowa, Texas, Illinois, Kansas, Nebraska, Minnesota, Missouri, Wisconsin, Indiana.

Government payments change the standings. For example, North Dakota, 26th last year in terms of income, was sixth in terms of government payments; Mississippi, 22nd in income, 10th in government payments.

California, the richest farm state, and Wisconsin were knocked out of the top 10 when it included government farmsupport payments.

With the payments considered, Colorado — 18th in payments and 11th in market income — knocked Wisconsin off the top 10, and Indiana moved up one into ninth.

The top four and Indiana have maintained their positions this decade, in the marketing column and, except for Colorado's entry last year, in the final totals, Kansas, Nebraska and Minnesota regularly run a statistical cat-and-mouse race.

Texas has led the last three years in government payments, followed last year by Iowa, Kansas, Illinois, Nebraska, North Dakota, Minnesota, Missouri, Indiana and Mississippi.

The government's farm programs' payments are totalled up at the Agriculture Department at the end of the fiscal year, June 30. Secretary Earl L. Butz expects them to be down $1.5 billion this past year from 1971-72.

The state breakdown probably won't be affected for another year or so, with many of the programs going off the books recently or in the near future as the department pursues a market "not tinkered with by the government," as an assistant secretary puts it.

But for the first six months of this year, here are the standings going into summer and fall harvests: Iowa, California, Texas, Illinois, Nebraska, Kansas, Florida, Wisconsin, Colorado and Indiana.

SEEING DOUBLE

Right now — just in pictures.
But at Jeffersonville, by the Fall harvest, we will have more than doubled the grain storage capacity. Original construction in 1965 contained 550,000 bushel storage. Big, but not big enough. So a 600,000 bushel addition will be made. The present elevator has all the necessary equipment to handle it — and the extra costs of drying, loading, and unloading can be avoided. Fayette County's Farm Bureau Cooperative has grown steadily for over 36 years with assets today of well over 2 million dollars. In that time, it has never missed a dividend or interest payment on investments or securities — and has provided earnings to farmers of 1½ million dollars.

Production of food products is vital to today's economy. Our agricultural future is healthy and sound.

LAND MARK®

Reds end series with explosion

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

A league-leading total of 81 runs batted in plus 21 home runs are figures which would make just about any baseball player quite happy.

Not Johnny Bench.

"It's been a very frustrating year for me," said the young Cincinnati Reds slugger.

"I just haven't been comfortable at the plate all year," Bench said Thursday. "I've been trying out all sorts of different things...tonight they worked."

Bench slugged a two-run homer in the fourth inning at Atlanta, starting the Reds on their way to a 17-2 rout of the Braves.

The victory left the secondplace Reds 3½ games behind Los Angeles in the National League West. The Dodgers beat the Houston Astros 4-2 in 11 innings Thursday night.

The Reds' 17-run outpouring climaxed a four-game series at Atlanta Stadium in which 77 runs were scored. Cincinnati tallied 45 of them, winning three of the four games.

Elsewhere in the National League, the Philadelphia Phils beat the Chicago Cubs 4-1, the Montreal Expos blanked the St. Louis Cardinals 2-0 and the New York Mets defeated the Pittsburgh Pirates 5-1. San Francisco and San Diego were not scheduled.

Phils 4, Cubs 1

Young Dick Ruthven of the Phils has a complaint about the baseball he's sometimes asked to pitch with.

"I learned to pitch with a baseball and they hand me a ball bearing," Ruthven said.

The "ball bearing" is the new ball being tested this season, which is stitched in Haiti. Ruthven had no trouble with the old American ball he was given Thursday night, however, as he beat the Cubs 4-1, allowing only five hits and striking out nine.

Expos 2, Cards 0

Balor Moore, recalled from a two-week stay at Peninsula of the International League on Tuesday, fired a four-hitter and Ron Hunt scored both of Montreal's runs in the 2-0 victory over the Cards.

Moore, 5-10, has notched three of his victories against St. Louis, which leads the National League East.

Dodgers 4, Astros 2

Ken McMllen delivered a two-run pinch-double in the 11th inning to lift the Dodgers to a 4-2 triumph over the Astros. Doug Rader and Lee May sent the game into extra innings with solo homers for Houston in the ninth.

Don Sutton, 13-u, pitched 10 innings to get the victory, then Jim Brewer hurled the 11th and earned his 13th save.

Mets 5, Pirates 1

Cleon Jones cracked a runscoring single in the third inning for the 1,000th hit of his career, capping a three-run rally that helped the Mets to a 5-1 triumph.

BASEBALL SCUFFLE — New York Yankee Gene Michael grabs Boston Red Sox catcher Carlton Fisk around the head as he and Carl Yastrzemski (8) break up a fight between Fisk and Thurman Munson in a game at Boston. Also moving into the action is Red Sox pitcher John Curtis. After breaking up the fight, Fisk and Michael started throwing punches and both benches emptied.

Heavy rains delay Westchester golf

HARRISON, N.Y. (AP) — Tom Weiskopf tried again today to extend a recent record of success that has been called golf's greatest since Byron Nelson's exploits of 1946.

Weiskopf, and the other 146 members of the field, were delayed by a day in their start in the $250,000 Westchester Golf Classic, one of pro golf's richest events.

The scheduled opening round Thursday was wiped out by heavy, day-long rains that turned the 6,614-yard, par 72 Westchester Country Club course into a soggy quagmire and cast doubts on officials' ability to get in today's round.

The 72-hole event was rescheduled for single rounds today and Saturday, with a double round of 36 holes set for Sunday.

Should the rains in suburban New York continue or if the tight little layout remains too wet to play—a decided possibility after more than 24 hours of rain—officials had two options:

—Extend the tournament through Monday, or

—Call it off after 36 holes.

Even though the prestigious PGA National championship, one of the world's four major tests, is scheduled next week in Cleveland and any delay in the completion of this event would hamper the players' preparations for the PGA, it appeared extremely doubtful officials would abandon this tournament after 36 holes.

Whatever the result, the streaking Weiskopf ranks as a solid choice to continue his string that is composed of five victories and no finish worse than fifth in his last eight starts. He's won the British and Canadian Open titles in his last two appearances and, in the string of eight, has won more than $185,000.

While the record is one of the best in recent years, it, of course, falls far short of Nelson's string of 11 consecutive victories a quarter-century ago.

Brown on sidelines

Duane Thomas debuts with 'Skins tonight

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

George Allen says he's out to win tonight when the Washington Redksins host the Detroit Lions. But the Redskin coach is not about to do anything reckless like risking last year's most valuable player, Larry Brown.

As was done last year, except toward the end of the National Football preseason, Brown will be on the sidelines, but Duane Thomas, whose running abilities most Redskins fans have only heard about, will be on display.

With a couple of exceptions, the Redskins starting lineup will be the same as the team that lost last year's Super Bowl to Miami 14-7.

Roger Staubach will be getting the nod in Dallas' game tonight against the Los Angeles Rams. Coach Tom Landry said Staubach would give way in the second half to Jack Concannon. There is also a chance that Craig Morton, whose arrival at the Cowboy camp was delayed because of a contract dispute, might see action.

Houston hopes the same combination will click twice when they clash with the New York Jets tonight. Dan Pastorini will oppose the Jets' star Joe Namath, in the same duel which produced the Oilers only victory last season.

Oakland is at New England Sunday while San Francisco plays at Cleveland Monday.

The Oilers made two trades Thursday—sending rookie wide receiver Edesel Garrison to the Los Angeles Rams for an undisclosed draft choice and acquiring running back Eddie Richardson from New York for an eighth round 1974 draft choice.

Kansas City Coach Hank Stram said three veterans are definitely out of his team's opening game. Guard Mo Moorman, wide receiver Otis Taylor and left cornerback Jim Marsalis are all definitely going to be out and the status of defensive tackle Buck Buchanon and center Jack Rudnay is still not known.

DUANE THOMAS

Running back Eddie Ray is being fined $100 each day he remains absent from the camp of the Atlanta Falcons, according to coach Norm Van Brocklin. The Falcon coach hinted he did not expect the former Lousiana State University star to show up at preseason camp.

Two rookie centers joined the St. Louis Cardinals at their training camp. Tom Brahaney, a 6-foot-2, 240-pound lineman was on the field an hour after singing his contract. Mike Irons came from Washington for the $20,000 waiver price.

BR all-stars debut tonight

The Fayette County Babe Ruth all-star team will be launching its hopes tonight in the Fayette County Babe Ruth tournament when Greenfield invades for a 5:30 p.m. game at Roszmann Feild.

The game between the Fayette County stars and Greenfield will launch the double elimination tournament while Jamestown and Gahanna will clash in the second game, scheduled for 7:30 p.m.

Eighteen players comprise the roster for the Fayette County all-stars, who will be managed by Buck Caulley. Willis Insurance, the 1973 Fayette County Babe Ruth champion, has four players on the 18-player team. They are Rex Coe, Mark Lamberson, Gary English and David Stackhouse.

The survivors of tonight's opening round games will meet at 1 p.m. Saturday and the losers will play at 3:30 p.m. The championship game will be played at 2 p.m. Sunday.

Secretariat favored

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Secretariat, the King of the turf world, puts his regal presence on display in the $50,000-added Whitney Stakes at historic Saratoga race track Saturday.

Already a legend in his own time, the 3-year-old Meadow Stable colt will be competing against older horses for the first time. No matter, he is expected to win and join the equine millionaire's club. The first Triple Crown winner in a quarter of a century has earned $970,242 in his 16 career starts.

The appearance of Secretariat in the Whitney will be nationally televised over the CBS network.

The popularity of Secretariat seems certain to attract a record crowd of 30,000 to the century-old Saratoga track. And the King is ready for the 1⅛-mile test against a field likely to include True Knight, Onion, Tri Jet, West Coast Scout, Anno and Rule by Reason.

"All is well with the colt," said trainer Lucien Laurin after the big son of Bold Ruler had worked an easy half-mile in 48 seconds before a record early morning Thursday turnout of 5,000.

"He knows he's King," said Mrs. John Tweedy, who owns the Big Horse syndicated for $6,080,000.

Watergate lawyers find work exhausting, exhilarating

By ANN BLACKMAN
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — But for Watergate, both of them seemed certain of promising, unruffled careers.

Both were young, Republican, well-educated, well-spoken, well-dressed. Both belonged to Princeton's Ivy Club. One went on to Georgetown University's School of Foreign Service, the other to Georgetown's School of Law. Both married bright, attractive women. Both were offered jobs with President Nixon's re-election committee.

Sloan, 32, the committee's former treasurer, eventually found himself in the witness chair on one side of the table covered with green felt that dominates the Senate Watergate hearings. Field, 29, a Watergate investigator for Sen. Lowell P. Weicker Jr. R-Conn., was on the other.

It made all the difference.

Then he went back to Princeton, N.J., disillusioned with politics and ready for a new start, this time as an executive with a business firm.

Field is one of a dozen young attorneys working on or with the Senate Select Committee on Presidential Campaign Activities that is investigating the Watergate scandal.

Some have trouble sleeping. One attorney has a recurring nightmare that he is a pallbearer at the funeral of one of the principal Watergate witnesses.

A few are on ego trips, confusing the hundreds of hours of free television time with success. An attorney called his hometown newspaper to suggest that a reporter be sent to Washington to interview him. One was.

But most of them said in interviews that the whole Watergate drama has made them painfully aware of the pitfalls a professional can encounter.

"It's definitely affected my life," said Field of Brooklyn, Conn. "I've learned a tremendous amount about life, about some of the dangers of professional conduct.

"You have to be careful of compromise, careful of your principles, aware that even things done quietly in the back room can be as dangerous as so-called street crime."

Like most of the attorneys, Field puts in a 12-to-15 hour day, usually 7 days a week. He said the work is as exhilerating as it is exhausting.

"My father says to me, 'How can you take on the White House?' But walking down these halls of Congress, knowing of all these fine people, I wonder how the White House can take on us. Our diversity of leadership gives us a strength they don't have," Field said.

Field works closely with H. William Shure, 33, an assistant minority counsel on the committee staff who is assigned to Weicker.

Like Field, Shure has been affected by the parade of men with shattered careers who have come before the committee.

"It's made me realize the standards I set for myself have to be completely lived by, no matter what anyone else asks me to do," said Shure who is on a 6-month leave from a New Haven, Conn. law firm. "But I'm not going to let Watergate scare me out of politics."

Shure is on the staff of Fred D. Thompson, the committee's chief minority counsel who is 30. Thompson was asked to join the staff by his fellow Tennessean, Sen. Howard H. Baker Jr., Republican vice-chairman of the committee.

"It's very sobering for me to see the ease with which some of these people got into so much trouble," said Thompson, who expects to return to his Nashville law firm when the committee finishes its work.

"It's dangerous, Thompson said, "thinking that because you're in the system or have faith in your superior, things will work out all right."

Will Thompson's position on a committee that is closely examining the Nixon administration hurt any Republican political ambitions he may have?

"I don't think it will hurt me," Thompson said. "I think most people realize that this is something you have to do. And in my own mind, I can justify it."

Thompson's counterpart on the committee is chief counsel Samuel Dash, a Georgetown law professor who calls himself "the old man of the group at 48." From scores of applicants who wanted to be on his staff, Dash chose four assistant counsels, all in their 30s.

Rufus L. Edmisten, 32, the pipe-puffing deputy chief counsel from Boone, N.C., can usually be spotted leaning over the shoulder of Sen. Sam J. Ervin Jr., D-N.C., the committee chairman who, in Edmisten's view is "the greatest man in the country."

"The lessons of Watergate have made an indelible imprint on my mind," Edmisten said. "It's a terrific lesson for many men in this country. If you're going to run for political office, don't take any short cuts. Don't play fast and loose with the truth."

Edmisten has a definite interest in elective politics, but said, "I'm not as politically active as I was. I want to stop and think for a while. I want to practice law before I jump into politics."

The assistant chief counsel is Terry Falk Lenzner, a darkhaired young lawyer from Long Island, N.Y., who questioned White House aide Richard A. Moore when he testified before the committee. A product of Exeter Academy, Harvard where he was captain of the football team in his senior year and Harvard Law, Lenzner, 33, has had a role in some of the most controversial development of recent times: the civil rights movement, the antipoverty program, the Berrigan trial.

Lenzner said of his experience interviewing witnesses:

"At the beginning, when people started to topple, it was getting rather depressing. You'd get in to interviews and you could always tell by their facial expression, their gestures, when it was coming. Soon they'd say, 'There's something I have to tell you,' and you knew in the pit of your stomach, here it comes."

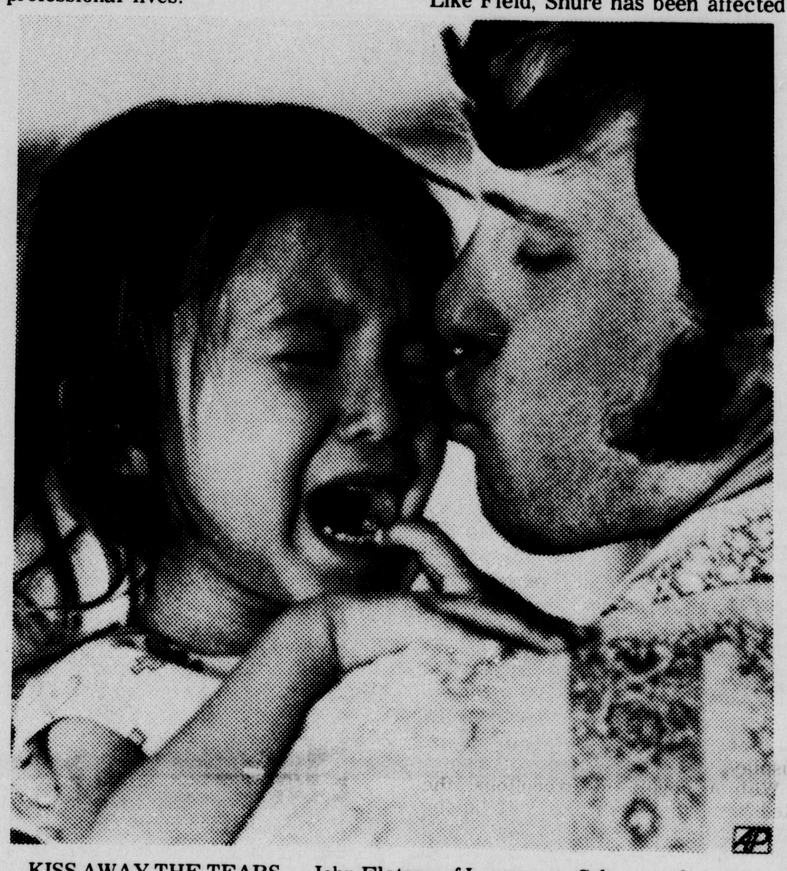

Lenzner said he pays a personal price for the long hours and high-pressure atmosphere that committ work demands.

"I don't sleep well at all during these things," he said, echoing the view of most of his colleagues. "I wake up at night and think of all the things I have to do, all the questions I should have asked. I haven't seen my 2½-year-old daughter in almost a month. My wife is expecting another child any day, and she wonders what happened to her moral support."

How has the experience affected Hamilton's life?

"My social life has gone to hell," he quipped. "And so has my tennis game."

KISS AWAY THE TEARS — John Flatray of Longmont, Colo., comforts his crying daughter, Duranee, 2½, when the youngster arrived at Denver from Thailand. It was the first time Flatray saw his daughter. Flatray married in Thailand in 1969 bringing his wife back to the U.S. after a tour of duty. His wife returned to Thailand to visit and died in childbirth.

Millionaire has own garden high atop apartment building

By BOB MONROE
Associated Press Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — The corn is as high as the Green Giant's eye in Stewart Mott's garden and the tomato plants stacked on his penthouse roof are a story higher.

Mott, heir to a fortune of General Motors stock, obviously doesn't need to grow vegetables outside the 14th-floor Park Avenue apartment to supply his food. But he likes things fresh.

And so the terrace and roof are filled with planters and containers of all shapes and sizes growing everything from artichokes to zucchini, wax beans to sweet potatoes and apples to grapes.

Given the limited space— there are about 3,500 square feet on the terrace and roof combined—Mott has made the most of it. Some 2,000 square feet, or about one-twentieth of an acre, is under cultivation.

"The object is to have absolutely fresh vegetables all the time," says Mott, 35, whose father was the late auto industry pioneer Charles Stewart Mott.

Growing up on the family's 65-acre estate, Applewood, in Flint, Mich., there was always fresh produce. He recalls some arduous summer work hoeing vegetables for 5 cents an hour.

When he moved into the penthouse in 1966 he limited his gardening to caring for a few shrubs left by a previous tenant. But in 1971 he took a "sabbatical" from his regular pursuits and began the garden.

Strong young assistants helped haul 80 tons of topsoil, peat moss and humus from the back elevator to the containers, which range from jars to metal and wood planters to a worn auto tire.

"I gradually realized it must be the most complete penthouse garden in the city," said Mott in an interview. "Obviously we don't have a wheat field but just about everything else."

In all there are 250 varities of vegetables and 200 kinds of decorative house plants.

"We could survive the year on what we grow here if we put in more potatoes and canned and froze things," said Mott.

In all, there are 20 pets available for loan, kept in little cages in the children's section of the Los Alamitos Rossmoor Library.

"We've got a waiting list of 26 for our rabbit, Honey Bunny, and most of the animals are out most of the time," says Joyce Kearns, children's section director.

Mrs. Kearns decided last spring to feature "creatures" for summer reading. Hearing of a similar lending program in Erie, Pa., she contacted the principal of a nearby elementary school in the Orange County community and got permission to keep the school's animals at the library during the summer.

Preschool and elementary school children are allowed to check out animals, taking them home in their library cages. At home they're allowed to take them out and pet them all they want.

A week's supply of food is provided with each animal. It is donated by frinds of the library.

"One of the big advantages of these animals is that, because of their experiences in the school, they are used to being handled by children and respond to it well," Mrs. Kearns says.

Lima man discovered dead of auto injuries

McGUFFEY, Ohio (AP) — Jeffrey L. Rainey, 30, of Lima was found dead on a bank of the Scioto River Thursday, apparently of injuries he received when his car plunged off Ohio 195 into the water.

McGuffey police said the car apparently was one that was pursued by a cruiser Wednesday night and had gone off the road on a curve. At the time, the officer involved reported the car had eluded him.

Chicago museum show focuses on the sky

CHICAGO (AP) — Throughout history man's fascination with the sky and the stars and the moon and the sun has been expressed in his writings and rituals and art.

An exhibition called "Sky Blue Pink" in the Junior Museum at the Art Institute of Chicago shows examples from the ancient to the modern of the forms this fascination has taken.

The exhibition which runs through August 1974, is designed primarily for children but also holds interest for adults.

A spiral-bound catalog contains a game in which children are asked questions about the works on display. In reverse, the catalog has descriptions for adult viewers.

The children's game explains the mysterious title for the show and the mystery the universe has held for man in a note saying, "Every once in a while we see something we really can't name or describe. That's sky blue pink."

LOIS RAASCH director of the Junior Museum, said its shows include items from as many of the larger museum's collections as possible.

In this way children are introduced to the various media used by artists, she said. The theme of each show helps to relate these artistic expressions to each other.

Sections of the "Sky Blue Pink" show illustrate architectural and other domes — "vaults of heaven"; towers, including skyscrapers — man's efforts to reach the heavens; flying creatures, symbols, weather, clouds and other items related to things beyond the earth.

The exhibition ranges from the Chou Dynasty of ancient China, 1122-255 B.C., to the present.

The Chinese period is represented in the symbols section with jade pi discs, thought to symbolize the sun, which were used in imperial worship at the altar of heaven until 1912.

THE SYMBOLS also include an American Steuben glass zodiac bowl, an intricately embroidered silk Chinese court robe, and a statue of the Indian sun god Surya.

One section includes representations of birds in clay and as decoys and masks. The paintings, including one by Claude Monet, include some striking representations of clouds and the various moods of the sky.

Isle of Man hotel blaze fatal to 40

DOUGLAS, Isle of Man (AP) — A fired roared through a crowded seven-story hotel and entertainment center on the Douglas seafront Thursday night, killing at least 40 men, women and children and injuring 80.

Police Chief Frank Weedon said the death toll would probably go higher as workers searched the upper floors of the Summerland, a multi-milliondollar "Coney Island under one roof" of bars, dance halls and hotel rooms.

Floor manager L. Shaffer said it was believed the inferno was set off by a child playing with matches on a balcony. Within minutes the flames engulfed the building, which was crowded with more than 2,000 people.

Firemen reached the scene almost immediately and began pumping water from the sea, but it was two hours before the fire was brought under control.

Thirty of the injured were in critical condition.

It was the worst tragedy in memory to hit this holiday island midway between England and Northern Ireland. Telephone lines from Britain and Ireland were jammed throughout the night with calls from anxious relatives of vacationers.

Summerland was completed in 1971 on a 3½-acre site at the north end of the sea front at Douglas. Last year it accounted for 13 per cent of the island's tourist revenue.

The Isle of Man government was a partner in financing the construction.

FARMERS MARKET — Home baked and hand made products were the order of the day Thursday as local clubs and organizations lined the sidewalk along the Courthouse with tables of home made goods. Mrs. Russell Whiting (left) and Mrs. Larry Joseph are shown with articles made by the Welcome Wagon Club.

Douglas hears bombing appeal

YAKIMA, Wash. (AP) — Supreme Court Justice William O. Douglas today holds a hearing on a request to overturn an order blocking a federal court ruling that the U.S. bombing of Cambodia is unconstitutional.

The hearing was scheduled for 9 a.m. (PDT) in the federal courthouse here. Douglas is vacationing near remote Goose Prairie, Wash.

If Douglas overturns the stay, it means the bombing must stop. However, his ruling could be overturned by the full Supreme Court.

Nab Ohioan for holdup

COLUMBIA CITY, Ind. (AP)—An Ohio youth, held in Whitley County Jail under $50,000 bond, awaits arraignment on a preliminary charge of bank robbery.

Authorities said Ovidio B. Suaceda Jr., 19, Defiance, Ohio, was arrested Thursday, shortly after the Auburn Federal Savings and Loan Association was robbed of about $2,220.

Arraignment was set for Monday.

Investigators said the bank was robbed by a man who showed a teller a note demanding money be placed in a sack. Tellers said they saw no gun during the holdup.

A short time later, an Allen County sheriff's deputy stopped Suaceda after a high-speed auto chase on U.S. 30, 10 miles west of Fort Wayne.

A handgun and a bundle of money were found in the car Suaceda was driving, authorities said.

KSU probe to be resurrected

WASHINGTON (AP) — Atty. Gen. Elliot L. Richardson today ordered a new Justice Department investigation of the deaths of four Kent State University students shot by National Guardsmen in 1970.

Richardson said his decision was based on "the need to exhaust every potential for acquiring facts related to this tragedy."

Richardson ordered J. Stanley Pottinger, assistant attorney general in charge of the department's Civil Rights Division, "to pursue the additional inquiry by such means as he feels are appropriate so that we will both be completely satisfied that the department knows as much as can possibly be learned concerning possible violations of federal law."

Richardson reopened the Kent State investigation after studying the findings of Pottinger's preliminary review of existing files.

Richardson initiated the preliminary review on the heels of a White House statement last May which reaffirmed the Aug. 1971 decision by former Atty. Gen. John N. Mitchell to drop the case without a federal grand jury probe.

In a statement, Richardson said the resurrection of the investigation "does not mean that we have reason to believe that the prior decision to discontinue active investigation was wrong or made for improper reasons, nor does it mean that we think the additional inquiry is likely to lead to a different prosecutive judgment."

However, he said he has found "some areas where an additional inquiry is desirable."

Pottinger had said previously that his initial re-examination showed no substantial allegations that had not been investigated.

The review began at the time a House Judiciary subcommittee disclosed intentions to investigate Mitchell's decision.

It came at the same time that many of Mitchell's actions as attorney general came under scrutiny because of his subsequent involvement in the Watergate scandal and other allegations of improprieties.

Presidential counsel Leonard Garment wrote four Kent State students in May that the White House had rejected their plea for a federal grand jury investigation.

Garment said "It is our unanimous judgment if a grand jury were convened it would either bring no indictments, or bring indictments which would only result in acquittals."

Mitchell's decision on Aug. 14, 1971 dismayed the parents of the four slain students and a number of civil rights groups and congressmen. They had banked on a federal grand jury probe after an Ohio state grand jury exonerated the guardsmen and placed part of the blame for the shootings on lax campus administration.

The guard, dispatched to the campus to maintain order following three days of turbulence, said at first that shots were fired in response to sniper bullets. Later it said there was no evidence of snipers.

Seek restrictions on computer files

WASHINGTON (AP) -- A coalition of congressmen and lawyers today demanded that the Justice Department seal its computer files on criminal offenders until the department can impose new restrictions to protect individual rights. The group threatened Atty. Gen. Elliot L. Richardson with a federal court lawsuit if he rejects the demand.

Sen. Edward Brooke, R-Mass., Reps. Michael Harrington, D-Mass., and Barry Goldwater Jr., R-Calif., and Republican Gov. Francis W. Sargent of Massachusetts led the coalition.

They planned to deliver to the Justice Department an administrative petition prepared by the Lawyers Committee for Civil Rights Under Law and supported by the American Civil Liberties Union.

The files often are incorrect, incomplete and unnecessary, the group asserted.

The petition specifically alleged that FBI data collection procedures:

—Fail "to insure the accuracy or completeness of the data on individuals," by amassing arrest records without indicating later whether charges were dropped or the individuals were acquitted or convicted.

—Allow "virtually uncontrolled access to the data" to employers and other agencies "for the purposes of clearing employment, promotions, the granting of credit and other basic rights." The FBI maintains that only law enforcement officials have access to the files.

—Include the unnecessary filing of "a host of minor offenses, many of which are misdemeanors involving no harm to others."

As a result, the group stated, "individuals whose names appear in the file have been denied employment. . . . have been given stricter sentences, and have been treated more harshly by parole boards."

Moreover, the group alleged, "it is almost impossible for the individual citizen to gain access to the file for the purpose of correcting errors or omissions."

United Phone boost OKd

The commission said the increase should be less than 10 per cent for the company's 500,-000 customers in Mansfield, Mount Vernon, Warren, Wooster and Lebanon as well as rural areas in 40 counties.
